FEDERATION OF AGRIC. NEWSLETTER

Processing Crop Growers Slated To Meet Tonight

Birch Court on Friday evening is the setting for a general meeting of the growers of crops for freezing and processing.

It will be recalled that on Dec. 18th growers met at the Charlottetown Hotel for a discussion of matters related to production and marketing of these crops and named a committee to study the situation, to acquire information on the matter from other provinces, and to make recommendations with respect to the need or otherwise of organization. The main business of the meeting will be the presentation of the committee's report and consideration of it. What action will be taken on the report, of course, will be entirely the decision of the meeting.

The Federation has assisted the committee in obtaining information on practices in other provinces and, in addition, numerous contacts were made by the Chairman of the committee at the C.F.A. meeting in Windsor Ontario.

The growing of these crops appears to offer valuable possibilities and in the beginning it would appear wise for growers to concern themselves with the structure of the industry.

ARDA WEEKEND

Last weekend was one in which quite special attention was paid to the ARDA program. Country Calendar on Sunday afternoon produced a special feature dealing with the program as it is developing in the province and, in addition to local viewpoint projected the ideas of the director Mr. Davidson.

On Monday night Farm Radio Forum produced reports from all provinces indicating a great variety of approach and many different stages of development. Farm Forum established that generally in the provinces ARDA is making a slow start. However, this is not necessarily a cause for concern as the initial development period of three years would very likely be extended from time to time. In addition, to Farm Forum groups meetings were convened by Federation directors; and, a number of Resources Development groups met as such and reported to the Farm Forum office.

In any event it would appear that knowledge of and information on ARDA has been spread about extensively as a result of the weekend effort.

FEDERATION PROPOSAL

Reference has been made both on the air and in the press to a proposal brought forward by the Federation of Agriculture for consideration as an ARDA project.

There is no secret about this matter as the document was fairly widely circulated and knowledge of its contents available to many people.

Described briefly the proposal called for the setting up of an Agricultural Research and Development Companion in the province. It was proposed that research would be done by top level people and with a responsibility to guide and put into practice programs tending towards long range planning with a master plan for Island agriculture.

The plan was presented for consideration to the Resources Development Council and is still a subject for consideration by that group. As all provincial ARDA projects must be approved by the cabinet it would clearly be quite futile for the Federation to approach Ottawa directly requesting that the proposal be put into effect.

What the future of the proposal may be is a matter of conjecture. Certainly it appears to have support in some quarters and the Director on ARDA on television did suggest that projects of this kind had merit and were worthy of consideration.

PULP WOOD MATTERS

A meeting convened on very short notice took place in Montreal on Tuesday to consider matters related to pulp wood. Called by the Quebec Marketing Board representatives were expected from Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Prince Edward Island was invited to be represented but as very short notice was given it was impossible to make arrangements.

However, the Federation office is keeping in touch with pulp wood marketing developments and will be made aware of what transpires at the Montreal meeting. Certainly there is a wide spread in Quebec prices and those obtained in the Maritimes and the opinion is quite prevalent that pulp wood buyers are making a heavy charge for the services which they render.

FARM FORUM SPECIAL

Farm Forum will present on March 4th a special program designed to examine the problems of the rural church. All denominations have signified their intention to take part and special groups will meet on a denominational basis throughout Canada.

Certainly the topic appears to be creating considerable interest as the rural church has been affected by the savage economic purge going on in agriculture for the past ten years. Traditionally one of the cornerstones of rural culture, of rural development, and of the community the rural church faces in common with its people the stern necessity of adjustment to the changing pattern of rural life, of transportation and of population density.

MARITIME DAIRY

On February 28th in Moncton representatives of Maritime groups will meet to consider matters related to the new promotional program. A special executive apart from the Board of Directors of the Dairy Farmers of Canada is being set up to guide and develop the promotional effort. It is proposed that where feasible planning and organization will be carried out on a regional basis with regional programs of promotion and advertising complementing a national effort. Greater responsibility is expected to be accepted at the regional level in the actual organization of collections which for the first year will be at the rate of one-quarter of one percent on dairy returns.

PRODUCTION AND PRICES

"Agriculture will continue in the perpetual squeeze because the only kinds of action that could halt the vicious circle are unlikely to be inaugurated. There will continue to be good livings and profits for the minority of farmers who are able to out-produce their smaller neighbours, but the majority will continue to suffer substandard incomes because they are locked in the system (overproduction as soon as prices rise slightly) Neither will we soon 'eat our way out of our surpluses', because farm productivity is increasing faster than markets and on the slightest incentive would increase still faster. The only way the majority of farmers could get off this treadmill would be for all farmers to unite effectively and universally enough so they could exercise restraint in the expansion of farm production and at the same time reorganize conditions within farming so that more farms would have adequate-sized enterprises. However, the amount of disciplined unity and control necessary to achieve this is very unlikely, is nearly impossible and is perhaps not even desirable considering the conflicts that would be involved." "Farm Forum Guide February 18th."

MAITIME FARMING

"There has been a major decline in farm numbers throughout the Maritimes. Many of these farmers have small holdings of land and, as they cease production, a great deal of land is taken out of production. There has not been the consolidation of farm land area in these provinces that is required to maintain larger commercial farm units. The future of farming in the Maritime area depends to a great extent on the continuation of Federal Government policies to feed freight assistance, the growth of Maritime markets, the degree that farm lands are consolidated into larger holdings, and the development of farm managers into wise business managers." "Farm Forum Guide — February 18th."

Booming Stolen Fur Trade Sparks Industry's Concern

MONTREAL (CP)—A flourishing trade in stolen furs is causing concern in Canada's $100,000,000 retail fur industry and police say they are powerless to stop it.

The concern has become more evident in recent weeks. More than $220,000 worth of furs have been stolen from Montreal furriers since Jan. 1.

In the 11th and 12th robberies this year, thieves got away Wednesday night with a total of $17,000 worth of coats, jackets and stoles.

Each year in Montreal alone, thieves make off with $1,000,000 in furs. Police say most of these furs will never be recovered. They will be recut, relined, reassembled and sold to fur buyers across the country.

In many cases, police suspect that someone in the industry helps thieves to get rid of the stolen furs.

PROBLEM ACUTE

The problem has become so acute that insurance rates for furs have risen 300 per cent in less than five years. Some major underwriters have lacked clauses on their contracts making the client liable for losses up to the first $25,000.

Some help for the industry may be on the way. The Fur Trade Association of Canada and the Master Furriers Association say they have developed an indelible ink for fool-proof marking of furs.

The two groups have started a campaign to convince furriers to use the ink but there has been no reaction so far.

A survey of major fur dealers in Montreal, who asked not to be identified, indicates that the theft and resale of furs is big business in Canada.

BUSINESS ORGANIZED

"It's vast," one dealer said. "It is an incredibly well organized operation involving elaborate transportation, storage and disposal procedures." Two dealers said they had been threatened for making public statements about the racket, but declined to elaborate.

"Police can tell you where stolen furs are hanging at this moment," a dealer said. "But they're deflated because no one can, or will, identify them." Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa were mentioned as Canadian centres for the illicit trade. Some skins are said to enter the United States through Buffalo, N.Y.

A Montreal manufacturer who took legal action recently against a women he spotted wearing one of his furs stolen several months earlier, lost his case because he could only identify the garment by memory. The woman said she bought the fur in Toronto.

P.E.I. Blood Donations Topped 106 Per Cent In Last Year

Volunteer blood donations reached 106 per cent of the objective for the Island, it is the first time more bottles were collected than were called for, Miss Arsenault said. In 1959 a record number of 5,900 bottles was collected but this number was still less than expected.

Blood donations for all Canada were up 9.52 per cent over last year it is reported by Vernon C. Hale, Hamilton, national blood donor chairman.

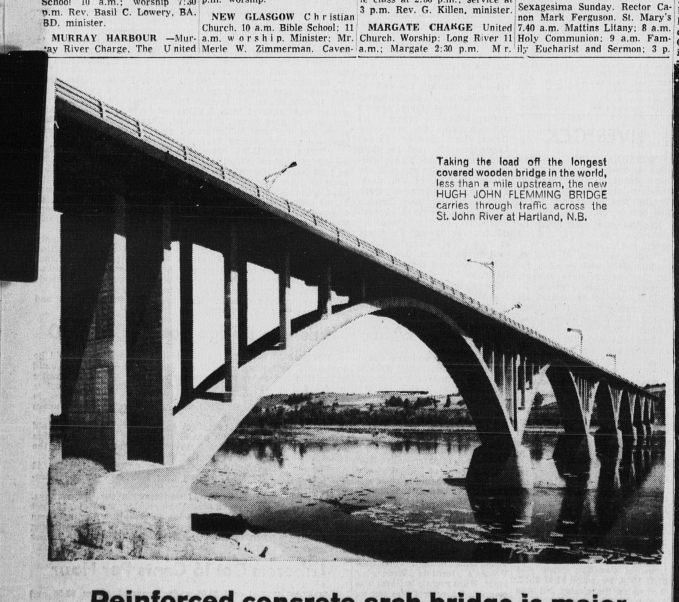
Based on the price of blood prior to the introduction of the free blood service, usually $25. per bottle, Red Cross authorities estimate the blood transfusion service saved Canadian patients more than $18,000,000 in 1962.

Collections increased by 64-687 bottles to 744,006 last year, and enabled almost 300,000 patients to receive free transfusion therapy during the year.

The Island was able to exceed its objective last year by bringing the Red Cross team over on five different occasions instead of only once as was done in the past, Miss Arsenault said.

EDITOR DIES

LONDON, Int. (CP) — Mrs. Madeleine (Madge) Sanor, 61, assistant women's editor of the London Free Press, died in hospital Thursday after a long illness. She was a former women's editor of the Winnipeg Free Press.



Taking the load off the longest covered wooden bridge in the world, less than a mile upstream, the new HUGH JOHN FLEMMING BRIDGE carries through traffic across the St. John River at Hartland, N.B.

Reinforced concrete arch bridge is major Maritime link in Trans-Canada Highway

An estimated 14,500 cubic yards of concrete made with Maritime Cement was required for the seven arches and six piers of this 2,170-foot structure. Linking Trans-Canada Highway No. 2 as it runs southward along the eastern and then the western banks of the river, it soars one hundred feet above the water.
