he was quoted authoritatively as having said "Britain has accepted all Japanese proposals."

Premier Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma later reported on the matter to Emperor Hirohito.

Domei, Japanese news agency, quoted the Premier as telling the Japanese press that Britain had agreed to withhold further financial assistance to General Chiang Kai-Shek in China.

He was said to have added that "British rights and interests in China may be recognized only if Britain recognizes the interdependency of Japan, Manchoukuo and China."

The Asahi Shimbun gave the following version of the essential substance of the declaration:—

"The British Government recognizes the actual conditions prevailing in China where large scale acts of hostilities are in progress and also recognizes the fact that so long as said conditions continue to prevail. Japanese forces in China will have specific claims from the standpoint of guaranteeing their security as well as maintaing peace and order.

"It at the same time recognizes the necessity for exclusion of acts harmful to the Japanese and liable to benefit the Chinese. The British Government will exclude any action or measure liable to hamper the accomplishment of the aforementioned object of the Japanese forces and clearly recognizes this is to be the same policy of British authorities and nationals throughout China."

(In London, the British Foreign Office spokesman said "there is no foundation for the belief that Britain will withdraw support from Chinese currency" and added that Tokyo reports concerning the negotiations should be accepted with caution.)

CLAMP DOWN ON INTRIGUE

(Canadian Press)

PRETORIA, South Africa, July —The government intends taking strong action to stamp out subversive intrigues" in the Union, it is understood.

According to the Johannesburg Star, ministers are concerned at reports of the activities of Nazis and Communists. The Department of Defence has already, it is believed, issued a circular to Defence Rifle Associations hinting at the possibility of compulsory service in the next year.

This matter is still a question of policy with the government, but a decision is expected soon.

Quist Winner Of Longwood Bowl Tourney

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 23—Adrian Quist, Australian Davis Cup doubles star, today became the first foreign Longwood Bowl tennis victory in 14 years by defeating Gene Mako of Los Angeles, third ranking United States player, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

With a strong cross-court wind hampering his defensive volleys and lobs, Mako was unable to keep Quist behind the baselines, with the result the Australian rushed to the net and piled up a total of 50 placements, mostly kills during the 58-minute match.

Mako, out-played by a wide margin in all but the third set, managed to register 27 placements, most of them passing shots. Each had 46 errors charged again him.

Only once during the match did Quist yield his service. In the second game of the third set, when Mako gained his only lead, two games to love.

Not since 1925, when Gerald Patterson, also of Australia won a leg on the historic trophy, has a foreigner been a Longwood Bowl tennis victor.

After the match it became known that Mako was suffering from a cold that settled in his back and, heeding a masseur's advice, he defaulted the doubles engagement he and Frank Parker of Pasadena, Calif., had with Quist and Jack Crawford, also of Australia, in the final round.

Baltic Nations Not Interested In Guarantees

BY ELMER W. PETERSON

RIGA, Latvia, July 23 —(AP)—A flood of suspicion, distrust and resentment has been aroused in Latvia, Estonia and Finland over reports that British-French-Soviet negotiators are considering "guarantees" to the Baltic countries providing automatic assistance in event of direct or indirect attacks upon them.

Jealous of their independence and proud of their national existence, these three countries, which were carved out of Russian territory after the Great War, look toward Moscow with determination

In advance they reject any guarantees such as Soviet Russia is reported to have demanded as part of her price for entering a mutual Assistance Pact with France and Britain. They fear that Russian aid would mean Russian reoccupation of their soil.

"We are neutral and intend to stay neutral," leaders of the three nations say. "We do not want guarantees from anybody and we are prepared to defend our neutrality if necessary."

Though there are variations in their political and geographical positions, there is thorough agreement on one point—if Finland Latvia and Estonia want or need assistance they prefer to ask for it not have it thrust upon them.

Their view is that such guarantees as Moscow is said to desire wou'd give the Soviets the virtual privilege of deciding when and if neutrality of the three nations is threatened and of acting accordingly. Such a situation is impossible in the Baltic view and would be resisted to the last.

Credit Union Value Stressed At Convention

ANTIGONISH, N. S., July 23—(CP)—The primary value of the credit union was its "capicity to reach into and find in men and women, who have not had appreciable financial responsibility hitherto, the capacity to do things effectively for themselves," Roy F. Bergengren, Madison Wis., told the sixth annual convention of the Nova Scotia Credit Union Saturday.

"The solution of our economic ills is co-operation. From now on the develpment (of credit unions) in America will be rapid. We have left the direction of our economic life too long to others, to supermen who have taken our savings and managed them for us. We have learned through adversity that there are no supermen that we can do things co-operatively for ourselves."

In Fascist or Communist countries there was no real development of self-managed co-operatives, he said. It was only "in the soil of democracy" that it was possible to develop self-governed co-operative enterprises.

"And as democracy is being tested in the world, it is a matter of great international concern that working men and women in the two great democracies of North America should work together," Bergengren said.

Effective credit unions now were operating in all nine Canadian provinces and in 45 states of the union. In the United States there was also a Federal Credit Union Law so that in reality all 48 states were embraced in the co-operative set-up.

Resolutions passed at the final session included one urging Nova Scotia credit unions continue to keep in close touch with credit union development in other provinces and in the United States with a view to ultimate affiliation with the Credit Union National Association when that step "is practicable and expedient."

TO WRONG PALACE

LONDON — Taxi-driver George Long gasped when a purposeful looking man, stark naked, stepped into his cab and ordered "Drive me to Buckingham Palace." George eased his car into Westminster Institution courtyard where worried attendants were glad to see the demented man back.

LITTLE VESSEL

head broke above water and he spied Skipper Bernier in the dory a few feet away.

Describes Accident

Weeping at times, the stocky skipper, dark-haired and bronzed by 13 years of sailing between St. Lawrence River ports, described the accident to newspapermen.

"It was about 2:30 in the morning," Captain Bernier said. "I had just left my bunk after a little sleep. I was in the galley getting a bite. As I walked from a cupboard with food I glanced out to see what the night was like. I saw nothing but blackness for a moment and then a ship's lights coming toward me.

"I ran up to the deck and along the rail to the wheel-house. My brother Rosario was there. He and Armand Roy who was at the wheel seemed just to have noticed the lights. Things seemed to happen quick then. Too quick for any words. "The bow of the big ship was nigh over us and came into the side of our schooner. I didn't have time to get to the wheel because our ship started to go over. There wasn't much noise. One side of the deck came up toward my face. I tried to climb the top of the wheel-house but I just slipped. Water came over me but I could still see the big ship sliding and sliding along. There didn't seem to be anything I could do."

MASS MARRIAGE

nifying hope of salvation, Father Henri Roy who founded the movement eight years ago, celebrated mass and then the newlyweds and their guests, about 30 to a couple, went to nearby St. Helen's Island for a picnic—long beloved by the Quebecois.

All but one of the grooms wore grey fedoras, grey gloves and blue suits, the exception sporting morning clothes. In white satin and white flowing veils, most of the brides carried bouquets of lillies, but a few had pink roses.

Walking behind each couple as they entered the Stadium were two male witnesses, clad in dark business suits.

Earlier, the young couples—average of the brides was 23 and of the grooms 26—had received holy communion in St. James Cathedral. After a wedding breakfast in an hotel near the Cathedral, a motor cavalcade brought the party to the Stadium.

Tying of the marriage knot culminated a task undertaken a year ago by Father Roy, but it began another five-year job for the young oblate priest.

During the last year he supervised marriage-preparation courses for the grooms, who earn an average of $25 weekly, and the brides. Until 1944 he will keep in constant touch with them, ironing out difficulties and acting as counsellor.

BASEBALL GAME

On Friday evening last, two local baseball squads, the Has Beens and the Never Will Be's hooked up in a thrilling and exciting game on the local diamond. The Has Beens routed the Never Will Be's by a score of approximately 1-6, but the score didn't indicate the closeness of the game. Umpire in chief Ian Darrach had a difficult assignment but ruled with an iron and efficient hand. Base judges McLean, W. T. Lawson and Joe Jockelman were very fair and impartial in their decisions.

Summary:

WALL STREET GETS SOME CHEERING NEWS

While Wall Street technicians argued over whether the rapid, steady upswing of stocks headlined in the inserts above indicated a new bull market or merely a rally in the bear market, New York Stock Exchange traders and clerks worked at a pace that reminded them of the lush days of a decade ago. The photo shows the crowded floor of the Exchange on a recent day when the volume of trading climbed near the two-million mark.
