AMONG THE FARMERS

Federation of Agriculture Newsletter

STABILIZATION BILL

Last week's big farm news was, of course, the resolution debated in the House of Commons to introduce a bill "to establish a system of guaranteed prices for certain agricultural commodities and to provide that prices may be guaranteed for any other agricultural commodity as named from time to time." This legislation is, of course, designed to replace the Price Support Bill which was brought in 1944 and which has been used ever since to bolster farm prices as occasion demanded.

A great diversity of opinion was apparent in the debate in the House of Common,s government speakers maintained that the bill would do much to improve the farmer's position, the opposition saw little in it that would change conditions very much from those existing previously.

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture in an officially released statement notes some good points in the legislation, such as; an increase to 250 million dollars in the fund, the naming of certain products on which price supports will be paid automatically, on the naming of a committee to advise of price supports and the inclusion of a formula to determine the minimum level of assistance.

However, on the latter point the Federation is quite strong in its belief that the proposed formula is unsatisfactory, in fact it was studied by the Policy Committee of the C.F.A. and discarded on the grounds that a formula based on three years of unsatisfactory prices will be reflected in price supports for the fourth year at unsatisfactory levels.

The C.F.A. maintains that a satisfactory formula should take into consideration among other things the general state of the economy, cost of goods and services used by farmers, surplus position of any product and possibly consumption trends as well. The Federation has never suggested that a system of parity prices for agriculture is feasible but it does believe that the farmer is entitled to a parity of income with other groups or stating it more plainly to a fair deal.

It does not appear that price supports at 80 per cent of the average for the previous three years will go very far in insuring the farmer parity of income. However, it should be pointed out that the value of the act can well depend to a large extent upon how it is applied, certainly the old act was capable of a great deal more good than was the case, under it only a fraction of the funds available were ever used.

If the same policy is followed in the new act, the farmer will probably have to look in other directions for relief from his present difficulties.

COUNTY MEETINGS

As the press has already carried quite detailed reports of the three county annual meetings there is not a great deal addition-al to report. However, compared with the meetings of a year ago the attendance was very much larger and this in spite of bad
