A CURIOUS BREAK OF A CAT. - The Journal reports: Mr. Isaac Schurman of Bedeque has a fine large cat. The other day she gave birth to four kittens, three of which were disposed of in some way, the women of Mr. Schurman's domicile not caring to have so many kittens about the house. A short time after the cat had lost her kittens a son of Mr. Schurman was out in the field near the house, and he noticed a squirrel running up an old rotten tree with a young squirrel in its mouth. He threw a stone at them, which struck the old one and she fell to the ground dead but still holding the young one securely in her mouth. The lad picked up the young squirrel and put it in his pocket. He then climbed up the tree and found three more squirrels, all of which he took to the house. The old cat, strange to say, at once took to the young squirrels and she is now rearing them with all the devotion of a mother.
