RIPLEY'S BELIEVE IT OR NOT

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. JAY BECKER

Partner bids One Diamond, next player passes, both sides vulnerable. What would you now bid with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠Q72 ♥KQJ6 ♦6 ♣KQ754
2. ♠KJ7 ♥Q96 ♦A75 ♣AK98
3. ♠Q832 ♥KJ74 ♦65 ♣Q92
4. ♠KJ63 ♥6 ♦KQ843 ♣A95

1. Two clubs. This is in line with the usual policy of bidding the longer suit first. The intention is to then bid two hearts over the expected two diamond rebid by partner. In this way the hearts, having been bid secondarily, become identified as a four-card suit. At the same time the clubs become marked as being at least five cards in length.

But if the first response were one heart, and the clubs were bid later over any rebid by the opener, it would become next to impossible for partner to guess that the longer suit was clubs.

2. Three notrump. The most descriptive bid possible is three notrump. This shows a hand with 16 to 18 high-card points, notrump distribution (4-3-3-3 or 4-4-3-2), and strength in the three side suits. It is true there is no real heart stopper and that the jump to three notrump therefore contains a defect, but this imperfection is countenanced because of the great advantage of describing in one motion the exact nature of the hand. It is extremely probable that partner has heart strength.

The alternate bids of two or three clubs would infer distributional values which do not exist. The three notrump response strongly suggests slam possibilities, but partner is permitted to pass with minimum values.

3. One heart. As usual, the search for a major suit fit starts early. A notrump response would be wrong for this reason. Because the intention is to bid only onee, unless partner forces another response, the lower suit is selected. This permits the opener to raise hearts or name spades at a low level, whereas an initial spade response might result in not discovering an existing heart fit.

4. One spade. The excellent diamond support is suppressed for the moment in favor of a plan to reveal eventually the distributional values present. The intention is to later support diamonds vigorously and, if the opportunity arises, to bid clubs also. By this combination of bids partner will be able to infer the singleton heart and may, as a result, be willing to undertake a slam contract if the singleton is the key to a sound slam.

There are ample values for an immediate jump raise to three diamonds, but this response would leave partner up a tree so far as the picture of the distribution and the location of the high cards held are concerned. This is a hand where partner should be told what's what.

Federal Gov't. Will Pay One-Half Payroll Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — The municipalities again will be offered federal incentives to fight winter unemployment with public works projects.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker Wednesday announced renewal of the winter works program under which the federal government will pay half the payroll costs of municipal projects approved by the provincial governments.

The type of projects qualifying for federal aid include construction and major improvement of municipal roads, streets, sidewalks, bridges, underpasses and water and sewage facilities—except buildings and construction—plus development of municipal parks and playgrounds.

IDENTICAL PROGRAM

The program is identical to that undertaken between Dec. 1 and last May 31. It will run from Dec. 1 to April 30. There was a one-month extension last year following heavy unemployment and a late start by municipalities which weren't advised until Oct. 27 of the federal plan.

Mr. Diefenbaker said following a morning cabinet meeting that he hopes the earlier announcement this year will make it possible for municipalities to get their plans made in plenty of time for the winter months.

The announcement was the only one to come from the morning and afternoon cabinet sessions. Another meeting of the cabinet is scheduled today.

Reports here said the agenda includes the question of embarking on the $12,750,000 second stage of the national capital plan. The $3,500,000 first stage for lifting cross-town railway tracks and shifting railway freight sheds to the suburbs has been completed.

As planned, the second stage covers lifting railway spurs, removing railway tracks from the interprovincial bridge linking the capital and Hull, Que., across the Ottawa River and transfer of further freight yards to the suburbs.

Mr. Deifenbaker will not attend today's meeting. He leaves in the morning for Chicago to speak to the Rotary Club, going on to Vancouver for an address to the Canadian Bar Association.

BRIGHTER PICTURE

The prime minister said Wednesday that labor department surveys indicate the employment picture this winter will be brighter than last winter when January unemployment hit 538,000, a post-war high for that month. However, it was below the post-war peak 590,000 reached during the winter of 1957-58.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the problem of winter unemployment is one that all levels of government have to face. Progress was being made through the co-operation of industries, employers, unions, governments and the general public toward creating more winter jobs.

Reviewing last winter's works program, he said 40,000 men were employed an average of 41 working days on site at 2,000 different projects. The total spent was $62,000,000 of which about $20,000,000 represented labor costs.

He said that because of the earlier announcement of the program of incentives this year he expects more projects will be approved and federal contributions toward labor costs will be about $15,000,000—a 50-per-cent increase on the $10,000,000 contributed by the federal government last winter.

He noted that many municipalities, provincial governments and other groups had urged the government to renew the program for this winter.

Papers Blast Trip Coverage

LONDON (Reuters)—Two British national newspapers have criticized news coverage arrangements for President Eisenhower's talks here with Prime Minister Macmillan.

The Times says the televised "fireside chat" by the two leaders on Monday was not an adequate substitute for a formal communique or press conference.

The Daily Express raps the twicedaily briefings for 500 reporters covering the meetings as producing "silly answers to silly questions" because "there was no news to divulge."

The Times says the public "has a right to be more widely, more independently and more immediately informed" and that "so far no way of doing this has been found better than the press."

While "the television cameras may offer an escape from the awkward questioner," television programs "give little satisfaction to the serious student of affairs."

Referring to the late George Owell's novel, "1984," The Times comments: "There were moments Monday evening when benevolent Big Brother did not seem so very far away."

Big Families Swap Homes

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — A Lockerby, Ont., family of 12 swapped homes for a few days with a Newton family of nine.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hoy, superintendent of separate schools at Sudbury, Ont., has moved into the Newton home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul McSweeney, and the McSweeneys are spending their vacation at the Hoy home in northern Ontario.

The temporary trade came about shortly after Hoy was invited to participate in the Convention of Lay Apostolates now in progress at Boston College.

"I wanted to come, but I didn't want to be away from my family—so I decided to see if I could bring them along on a holiday," Hoy said.

After writing Rev. Edward S. Stanton, S.J., director of the convention, Hoy received a telephone call from McSweeney offering the temporary trade of homes.

"We struck a bargain almost immediately," Hoy said. "He was interested in our place as a vacation site and it offered everything he wanted."

GYMANFA GANU WEEKEND

TORONTO (CP) — Thousands of Welshmen will stream into Toronto this weekend for three solid days of singing. More than 3,000 are to attend the 28th annual International gymanfa Ganu or song festival—the first to be held in Canada. The festival started in 1929 at a Labor Day outing organized by the St. David's Society of Youngstown, Ohio.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints—each day the code letters are different.
