

P.W.C. To Hold College Day

The second annual Prince of Wales "College Day", tomorrow, will feature contests between Moncton High School and the local college. College Day was introduced last year and proved successful despite the inclement weather conditions. It is sponsored by the Student's Council in the hope that it will give the students another day to remember in their college years.

The program commences at 2 p.m. in the afternoon with the local squad taking to the ice in a game with Moncton boys; this should prove to be a good battle. Last year P.W.C. came out on the top end of a 7-4 score. The game will be played at the forum. Immediately following the hockey game, the P.W.C. girls will welcome back to the annals of basketball a team of former Prince of Wales players who call themselves the "Old Timers". This team will feature such former stars as Edie Smith, Arlene Gaudon, Donna Bonness, Shirley Vessey, Shirley Perry and others. The evenings program will feature more basketball to be followed by a college dance. The local boys' basketball quintet will play the High School boys of Moncton. The climax of the day will be the dance which will include specialties such as vocalists, impersonations and the like. The committee has done a great deal of work to insure that a good program has been arranged.

Agricultural Institute Meets

The February meeting of the Agricultural Institute of Canada was held at Birch Court, the Experimental Station, at 3:30 p.m. yesterday. Topic for the month was a panel discussion on the veterinary services, both Federal and Provincial, as they affect agriculture in general. Dr. George Fisher, Director of Veterinary Services, and P. E. I. acted as chairman for the panel.
Dr. Earl Knapp, assistant District Veterinarian of Moncton, N. B. was the first speaker. He outlined the duties of the Health of animals branch of the Canada Department of Agriculture. Inspection in killing and packing plants is a major part of the duties of this branch. Seventy percent of the animals slaughtered in Canada last year were inspected. Another important service of this branch is the control of contagious diseases of animals. Imported animals are quarantined and inspected. This branch also handles a great many other duties of which the testing for tuberculosis and brucellosis in cattle is very important.
Dr. Julius Frank, head of the Division of animal pathology branch laboratory at Sackville, N. B. spoke on the laboratory service in Canada, both Federal and Provincial. The Federal Laboratories devote their time to research work, while the Provincial laboratories are chiefly concerned with diagnosing diseases to aid the veterinarians working throughout the area. Dr. Frank outlined the types of work handled by the laboratories, and stressed the working relationship between them and the work of the veterinarian.
Dr. James Higgins, Public Health Veterinarian for P. E. I. spoke of his duties. The production of pure milk is the major concern of the branch of the Veterinary Service. Regulations on milk production are enforced, and milk is inspected after processing. Dr. Higgins also stressed the tie-up between the various branches of the service.
Dr. George Fisher was the last speaker. He outlined the Provincial Veterinary Service as it is carried out on P. E. I., and spoke about the benefits made available to animal breeders in this province. Dr. Fisher also summarized the work of the Provincial laboratory.
The meeting was very interesting and was enjoyed by all members present.

S. P. Home, School Meeting

Mr. Claude Pineau was elected treasurer, and Mrs. Elmer MacRae was appointed convener of program with Mrs. Willard Burke in charge of hospitality.

Seized Romanian

But the three—holdouts of a band that originally numbered six—faced trial in Switzerland for the fatal wounding of the legation chauffeur, Aurel Sedu, in the attack which strained relations between this neutral nation and the Bucharest government.
Another member of the group was already under arrest. He was picked up by police before dawn Tuesday as he sought to get away with arms and documents. Commissioner Kurt Kessi said police are convinced two others escaped.
Police had reckoned until the surrender that four men were gar-isoned in the building. But the leader of the group reported that for the last 36 hours there had been only three and "the fourth is a bluff."
The band had vowed to hold the legation until Romania freed five imprisoned resistance leaders, including a general and a bishop, or die in the attempt. But they weakened under interrogations by Swiss authorities and a visit to the legation by a Roman Catholic priest.
Swarms of police and troops screened the anti-Reds as they walked from the building. They declined to give their names. Police said the leader told them the Russians had killed his father in Romania. A crowd of nearly a thousand curious spectators got barely a glimpse of them.
Though the anti-Communists face trial here for killing the chauffeur, it is understood Swiss authorities, in negotiating the band's surrender without further bloodshed, indicated they will not be extradited.

Rubinstein Death

Financial manipulator on three continents, as an ex-convict draft dodger, and a woman chasing cafe society bigshot made him potentially an ideal target for murder—or kidnapping. He was worth an estimated $100,000.
Police sources now claim, they set their sights on Scholz less than 48 hours after the murder. From that time on he was shadowed around the clock.
Scholz was picked up Tuesday and grilled for hours. His interrogators handled him like a baby, feeding him hot milk at intervals to ease the pain of a bad ulcer from which he suffers.
