

Strong Powers Urged For Job On Waterfront

OTTAWA—Judge J.T. Norris proposed strong powers for three trustees to clean up abuses in unions which were failing to integrate the rival sailors' union into one body.

Norris suggested the chairman be a judge or a lawyer, backed by an economist with labor knowledge and an expert in transportation as the two other members.

OVER ASSETS

The trusteeship would take over all financial assets, disinvest the senior officials of the SIU, reverse the constitution to restore democratic action of the membership and supervise collective bargaining with shipowners.

The judge also proposed:

1. A ban on the present hiring hall system run by the SIU, until it could be replaced with a government supervised job agency for seamen.
2. A study of shipping disruptions by the U.S.-Canadian International Joint Commission, which could be a step toward a treaty establishing the principle of free movement of ships on the lakes.
3. New powers for the Canada Labor Relations Board to supervise periods of the trusteeship empowered to veto all strikes and boycott adversely affecting the union under trusteeship.
4. Forbidding shipowners from signing contracts with any union for the seamen.
5. Prohibition of formation of new marine unions during the trusteeship period, with the trustees empowered to veto all strikes and boycott adversely affecting the union under trusteeship.
6. Changes to the St. Lawrence Seaway Act to levy on unions disrupting the seaway operation in violation of their contract to be subject to $10,000-a-day payments as damages.
7. Fines of $20,000 a day to shipowners or others who refuse to move their ships from unsafe moorings that block the seaway route.

CONSIDER CHANGES

A report of a special commission to consider whether charges should be laid against Mr. Banks and his top aides for conspiracy, intimidation and coercion.

As expected, the report centered on burly, barrel-chested Harold Chamberlain, 38 a.k.a., American-born president of the SIU of Canada. He came to this country in 1949 to lead the SIU in a violent battle to oust the Communist-dominated Canadian Seamen's Union.

"If one thing was demonstrated on this inquiry," said Mr. Justice Norris, "it was that lawlessness begets lawlessness."

"Undoubtedly there is no labor leader in the Great Lakes as long as Banks, who has bludgeoned his way into power and seeks to maintain it by violent and lawless means, and his senior officers occupy positions of influence in any maritime union."

Ordinary seamen were portrayed as "mere automatons" who were brainwashed, terrorized and intimidated into submitting to the will of Mr. Banks.

"As shipowners fear him and accept his dictation, it is little wonder that seamen on the Great Lakes, without power or influence, many of them vocal, are forced to accept his domination."

Banks is capable, decisive, egocentric, intolerant and ruthless," said Judge Norris.

NOTES RECORD

"He is the stuff of the Capones and the Hoffas of whom the dictators throughout history, from the earliest times to the totalitarians, Hitler and Stalin, are prototypes."

The judge noted Mr. Banks' criminal record in the United States—including a 2 1/2-year term in San Quentin penitentiary.

Gordon Aids Talk Delayed

OTTAWA (CP)—Speaker Alan Macnaughton ruled Tuesday that Commons privileges were not involved in the question of the legality of the hiring of three men to help Finance Minister Gordon shape his budget.

He rejected an attempt by Stanley Knowles (NDP, Winnipeg North Centre) to refer the matter to the Commons committee on privileges but suggested if Mr. Knowles wanted to carry the matter further he raise it as a grievance at some other time.

Mr. Knowles replied that he accepted Mr. Macnaughton's ruling and served notice that he will "deal with the matter on another occasion."

Mr. Knowles moved his motion Monday after Justice Minister Chevrier maintained that the hiring of the three men was proper and within the government's legal powers.

Mr. Knowles then proposed that the committee examine the legal opinion of Deputy Justice Minister A. E. Driedger on the legality of the hiring.

He contended that the opinion supported his argument that the government "constantly" has legal right to hire the men although the law and regulations gave the government no specific authority to do so. He suggested that the law in fact prohibited such an action.

BUILD GREAT DAM

Some $800,000,000 is expected to be spent on building a 100-foot-high, 1 1/4-mile-long dam on British Columbia's Peace River.

French Language Students Doubled In Last Five Years

By JEFFREY GARLICK

MONTREAL (CP)—The number of commerce students at Quebec's three French-language universities has more than doubled in the last five years.

Roger Charbonneau, director of the Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales, University of Montreal's commerce faculty, says there is a twofold reason for the rapid growth.

French-speaking people are becoming more interested in business careers, and expanding corporations have more room for French-Canadians in senior positions, he said.

Although these universities have offered courses in commerce for some years, the majority of French university graduates have come from the faculties of law, medicine, the study and, since the end of the Second World War, science and engineering, said Mr. Charbonneau.

A survey showed the University of Montreal commerce faculty had 60 first-year master's students and 110 in the bachelor program in 1958. By 1963, these numbers have swelled to 140 and 300 respectively. This growth rate is definitely higher than the normal rate of university expansion, said Mr. Charbonneau.

This year, 386 commerce students graduated from Quebec City's Laval University, compared with 177 in 1958. Master's graduates numbered 176 against 79 in 1955.

HAVE GROWING PAINS

Laval also has a master of business administration program and master of commercial science. However, doctorate students are encouraged to pursue their studies in the United States or Europe.

University of Sherbrooke, established nine years ago, about 100 miles east of Montreal, graduated its first bachelor of commerce class in 1959, numbering about 20 students, in 1963, 46 received bachelor degrees.

The commerce faculties at both Laval and University of Montreal are experiencing growing pains. Laval recently opened a new commerce building, with facilities for 850 students, with 800 now registered in the faculty, the university is already thinking of further expansion.

University of Montreal expects to reach its capacity of 600 students this year and will move to enlarged quarters in September, 1966.

For University of Sherbrooke, a full house is in sight. The commerce faculty has facilities for 350 students and there now are 285 enrolled.

Laval and University of Montreal also offer night courses in commerce subjects. Laval has 2,000 students registered in its evening school. These courses do not lead to a degree, but are useful to businessmen or students training to become chartered accountants.

In the University of Montreal's commerce division, diplomas have been awarded in accounting for nearly 30 years. Present enrollment is in the neighborhood of 1,500.
