BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess)

A NAP SPOILED
 There's a time to rest and even to sleep; There's a time likewise a virgil to keep. —Barker the Sea.

Barker the Sea wasn't keeping vigil. No, sir, he wasn't doing anything of the kind. He was asleep. That's what he was—asleep. He was taking a nap. He was on his favorite basking rock. To bask is to lie comfortably in the sunshine with nothing to do but to be lazy and enjoy it. That is exactly what Barker had been doing for some time this bright November day. Of course jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun wasn't as warming as in summer, but Barker didn't mind that. He already had his winter fur coat and under it another coat. This was a thick coat of fat and he couldn't have had a warmer coat than that. When Barker had hauled out on that rock he was a contented Seal as ever swim the sea. Pulling boats out of water is called hauling them out. So when Seals, who spend most of their time in water, do come out on shore or on rocks off shore, but with tops above water, they are said to haul themselves out. You see they have no legs with which to walk or crawl out of the water, only flippers. So when they do flop their way out on a rock, it looks much as if they were pulling themselves out. So Seals are said to haul out.

Contract Bridge

By Josephine Culbertson

A MATTER OF DISCARDING
 The error made by West in the following deal will be of great interest to experts, or even to advanced players, but this same sort of thing is very prevalent in "social" bridge circles.

South dealer. Neither side vulnerable.

♠ J5	♠ K83
♥ A743	♥ J886
♦ KJ106	♦ 72
♣ K82	♣ J65

♠ Q107 ♠ N
 ♠ 64 ♠ W
 ♠ 52 ♠ E
 ♠ 43 ♠ S
 ♠ Q1094 ♠ J

The bidding:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass
 2 NT Pass 4 ♠ Pass
 6 ♠ Pass Pass Pass

West led the spade six. South took East's king and led out four rounds of trumps. West's first discard was the heart deuce, and his second, the heart five.

Declarer had been worrying about how to handle the heart suit, but now his problem was solved. It was possible, he realized, that West had let go two hearts from a holding that included the jack, but this was certainly unlikely! So, since South could not afford to make a real test of the heart break, he led a low heart from dummy and confidently played his own ten. His confidence was warranted, of course, and he could now claim the slam contract, discarding a club on dummy's fourth heart.

South might have guessed the heart position even if he had not been helped so beautifully by West's discards, but he probably would have played the king and queen from his own hand on the fair chance that the jack would drop or that the suit would break 3-3. The point is that West's discards were inexcusable! Beyond doubt, West chose those discards because his hearts were so insignificant—but what he overlooked was that he owed protection to his partner! Nothing is more naive than to give up one's low cards in a suit, thus "exposing" partner's holding. Surely, West could well afford to discard spades!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

By Zane Grey

WHAT'S THAT STUFF?
 RICH MOLYB-DENIUM ORE—I PICKED IT UP IN THAT SECRET DRIFT IN THE MINE.
 WAY UP HERE IN ITS PRESENT FORM IT'S WORTH MUCH... BUT CONCENTRATED, IT COULD BE FLOWN OUT AT A HANDSOME PROFIT! THAT'S WHY GENIUS BROUGHT UP THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC PLANT. BOBBY, THE OLD HOMESTEAD IS WORTH A FORTUNE!
 LET'S GO, KINGS—COPS—!
 JUST A MOMENT, INSPECTOR. THE SERGEANT HAS A DEBT TO PAY... I'M SURE KING REMEMBERS!
