

RED CHINESE DELEGATES AT BERLIN CONGRESS

Members of the Chinese Communist delegation are shown at opening session of the East German Communist Party Congress in East Berlin Tuesday. In center is the delegation's head, Wu Hsiu Tschuan. Others are unidentified. They heard Walter Ulbricht, East German Communist Party Congress in East Berlin.

DR. FOUND IS TERMED 'GREAT HUMANITARIAN'

"In reviewing the many worthy nominations for the Islander who best fulfilled the spirit of this award the panel of judges was unanimous in its decision to recommend Dr. E. M. Found, medical superintendent of the Provincial Sanatorium of P.E.I., as Islander of the Year for 1962.

"Judged by the panel as a truly great humanitarian, Dr. Found has constantly displayed a diligence and devotion to his avocation far beyond the normal scope of his profession. During the year 1962, as in fact during all his years of office, Dr. Found has indeed used the best means available to him to serve this very worthy Island purpose.

"Adjudged equally outstanding were his professional achievements in the field of tuberculosis which have given Prince Edward Island an enviable record over the years.

"Letters of nomination from all over Prince Edward Island attested to the qualifications of Dr. Found as a candidate for this award and the panel of judges are confident that every Islander will recognize that again this year the award is richly deserved."

Signed:
Richard T. Henthorn
Dr. Kenneth A. Parker
Keir C. Clark

British Build Airlines For Red Chinese

LONDON (Reuters) — The British Vickers Armstrong Aircraft Company said Tuesday it is building Viscout turbo-prop aircraft for Communist China, a Vickers spokesman said in answer to questions that a firm called the China National Machinery Import and Export Corporation ordered the Viscouts in December, 1961.

"Under the contract we are not allowed to disclose the number of aircraft they have ordered nor can we say when the delivery will start," the spokesman said.

He said some Chinese aviation experts recently visited the Vickers factory.

A British Overseas Airways Spokesman said China has "shown interest" in the purchase of the corporation's surplus fleet of 14 Britannia airliners, which are being offered for sale in the second-hand market.

The spokesman said Chinese experts made a trial flight in one of the Britannias last week.

BILL FOR SCROLLS

More than $250,000 was paid out to shepherds and Bedouins who found the Dead Sea Scrolls.

NEW ORGANIZER TAKES OVER FOR PCS

Dalton K. Camp (right) of Toronto, newly-named national organizer of the Progressive Conservative party, gets some tips from retiring national director, Senator Allison Groat, following a press conference in Ottawa Tuesday.

Mr. Camp's appointment was a move made by Prime Minister DeLoach Monday (CP Wirephoto).

JANUARY 16th

JANUARY 26th

Buyers Now Attending Gigantic Canadian Wide Furniture And Furnishings Show at Toronto - Must Make Room For New Styles And Models - Savings Up To 50% And More!

4 Seater CHESTERFIELD & CHAIR

Foam cushions and back - Color dark brown. Regular $242.00. Special $179.00

5 Piece Phenol or Chrome SUITE No. 1500

Regular $79.50. Special $54.95

5 Piece Inlaid Top Phenol SUITE No. 270

Regular $179.95. Special $119.95

FREE DRAPES

H. D. Track and Installation on All Made-to-Measure Orders. Visit our store, or phone and our interior decorator will visit your home for suggestions and estimates.

PLAIN 100% TERYLENE DRAPES

44" x 84", 8 Colors. Reg. $29.95. Special $14.95

ADIRAL - 9 cu. ft. REFRIGERATOR - 45 lb. deep freeze. Reg. $239.95. Special $199.95

FULL AUTOMATIC - 13.5 cu. ft. REFRIGERATOR - 80 lb. deep freeze. Reg. $299.00. Special $229.00

17.5 cu. ft. CHEST FREEZER. Reg. $325.00. Special $269.00

RECLINER CHAIR

By SKLAR

In soft leather-like supported vinyl; large pillow back, adjustment from sitting to full recline position. Choice of green or brown. Regular $129.95. Special $99.95

DINNERWARE Specials

52 Piece Set CHINA WARE

36 Piece Set GLASSWARE

124 Piece Set STAINLESS STEEL

Regular $39.95. Special $39.95

2 END TABLES, 1 COFFEE TABLE Oil Walnut Wood - Arborite Tops. Reg. $49.50. Special $34.50

SWIVEL ROCKERS, HI-BACK. Regular $67.00. Special $56.00

6 Piece BEDROOM SUITE

Modern 6-piece bedroom suite magnificent design, modern suite includes dresser, mirror, chest, bookcase bed, mattress and spring. Regular Retail $245.95. Special $189.00

Open Stock, Birch Veneer SUITE

Panel Bed $27.00. Single Dresser and Mirror $45.00. 4 Drawer Chest $37.50. Regular $109.50. Suite, Special $89.95

Admiral, 4 tube mantle RADIO. Regular $27.95. Special $19.95

Bathroom SCALES 0-300 lbs. All Reduced. 20% $13.95

HAIR DRYERS Reg. $24.95. Special $13.95

All Plastic Ware - Basins, Clothes Hampers, Baby Baths, Kitchen Utensils. 25% Disc. $9.95

Ironing Boards and Pad. Reg. $11.95. Special $9.95

Presto Steam IRONS. Reg. $22.95. Special $16.95

Use Westinghouse Automatic WASHER

Special $99.00

Use Beatty WASHER, 6 Months Old. Reg. $229.00. Special $125.00

Use CHESTERFIELD, 2 and 3 piece Suites. Special $25.00 to $99.00

Use 17" and 21" Table Model TV's Special $75.00

Use PHILCO, 10 cu. ft. Full Automatic REFRIGERATOR. Special $150.00

STRONG SUPPORT

The names, including that of Dr. Found, were Mrs. Adele Townshend, Rollo Bay West; Dr. M.N. Beck, Charlottetown; R.L. Cotton, Charlottetown; Miss Jean Gill, Charlottetown; Mrs. Evelyn Cudmore, Charlottetown and Lincoln Dewar, New Perth.

Others, too, were given strong support in well reasoned, logical letters of nomination. They included, among others, Sister Mary Henry, La-Croix D.A. (Col. Dan) MacKinnon, Hartwell Daley, Alfred Groom, taxi driver Elmer Larzer, Premier Walter R. Shaw, Dr. Gordon Lea, Dr. A.A. (Gus) MacDonald, R.E. Selzer, Brig. W.W. Reid, Mrs. Keith Boswell, Victoria Smallman, Melvin McQuaid, the former attorney general and provincial treasurer, and one man who defeated him in the Dec. 10 general election, Daniel J. MacDonald; Mrs. Fred Osborne, Mona Wilson, Ernest Lord, Dr. George Dewar, Dan Sanderson, Cardigan, Douglas McGowan, M.A. Jean Reid, Wendall Cudmore, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Larzer, and George Dixon, author of 'Ellen's Diary.'

While it would be an impossibility to review all the reasons given by readers for their 31 nominations a brief rundown on some of the reasons some of the candidates were nominated is in order.

The letters, from people in every walk of life from the four corners of Prince Edward Island, show clearly one thing at least: the high esteem in which many Islanders are held by their fellow Islanders.

One letter typical of the many that named J. Lincoln Dewar secretary of the Federation of Agriculture, as a candidate for the honor listed many of the activities he is associated with in and outside the field of agriculture and said: "J. Lincoln Dewar has been making an outstanding contribution to the province over a long period of years. Every year he seems to be connected with special projects designed for the welfare of our people."

Another letter said: "... he has brought our province honor and respect that has won a place of the highest councils in the land."

And another: "I know of no man more deserving of the honor."

Psychiatrist Dr. M. N. Beck also received a number of nominations. All listed his fine work among retarded children; the help he has been to parents of such children and his efforts in getting Sherwood hospital established. "But a reader adds, 'not only in the field of retardation does Dr. Beck do a great work. He is a noted psychiatrist, an outstanding citizen in his church and community and through his devoted efforts has brought help and happiness to many of our Island people.'"

A letter from a fellow worker

of Dr. Beck's dedication to the task of bettering the lot of his fellow man is an inspiration to those of us who work with him this year. Mrs. Adele Townshend of Rollo Bay West, a farm wife, high school teacher, and mother of five children, won strong support for the honor she brought to Prince Edward Island last year as a playwright PLAY IS WINNER

Her one-act play 'For the Love of a Horse' won second prize in the nation - wide competition sponsored by the I.O.G.T. Little Theatre Guild. In 1961 her play 'The Ladies Slip-Knot' topped the Canada wide competition sponsored by the Women's Institutes.

In applying the formula for Islander of the Year, "one reader said, 'Mrs. Townshend does not just bring us a singular honor to our province; she has provided initiative for friends and culture; has shown that P. E. I. is a tourist mecca steeped in tradition and has proven without a doubt that we haven't yet exported all our talents to other provinces.'"

Another letter said Mrs. Townshend was unique in Canada in that she is likely the only woman who has won national awards for the only two plays she has written.

Mr. Townshend's sister, Mrs. Jean Reid of Stanhope also received a nomination as designer of Prince Edward Island's tartan. The reader also included a string of tartan for the judges' perusal.

The many and varied activities of Mrs. Evelyn Cudmore this year won her several nominations as they have since the award was established in 1959. "A typical thought expressed in letters was: 'She has never had any thought of spring herself and has never been known to turn down a request for her services. If the felt it would be in the interest of Prince Edward Island and citizenship, she will do a work which would make a prime minister, this great lady still finds time to take an active part in her church, Girl Guides and the YMCA."

Retired librarian Jean Gilling nomination not only as Islander of the Year but as "Island of the Year" for her "Accomplishments and contributions to her province" over an uninterupted span of 44 years.

R.L. Cotton, another prominent Islander who has been nominated in each of the four years the award has been presented, said: "Received a nomination. His efforts towards making Prince Edward Island a thing of beauty and joy forever" were cited several times as were his many philanthropic work with retarded children won nominations for three Charlottetown men, R.E. Smallman, Ernest Lord and Wendall Cudmore. Mr. Smallman, a letter said "is one of our finest citizens, always quietly helping some person or organization in need. He has done more for the mentally retarded children of Prince Edward Island while Mr. Cudmore was cited as a person doing great work 'above and beyond the call of duty.'"

The province's director of research in the resources development program Hartwell Daley came in for support. "This program," a letter said, "as conceived and initiated by Hartwell Daley is undoubtedly the greatest single hope of the economic and cultural growth of the province has ever known."

A letter from a fellow worker

Many Worthy Persons Made Judging Difficult

Reidom in the four-year history of the "Islander of the Year" award has the panel of three judges been faced with such a difficult task as this year.

Thirty-one names were submitted through more than 60 letters of nomination and nearly two and one-half hours of deliberation were needed before the panel decided on Dr. Eric M. Found, medical superintendent of the Provincial Sanatorium.

The judges Richard T. Henthorn, Summerside; Dr. K. A. Parker, Charlottetown and Keir C. Clark, Montserrat, gradually narrowed the field down to seven names in arriving at the final choice.

The names, including that of Dr. Found, were Mrs. Adele Townshend, Rollo Bay West; Dr. M.N. Beck, Charlottetown; R.L. Cotton, Charlottetown; Miss Jean Gill, Charlottetown; Mrs. Evelyn Cudmore, Charlottetown and Lincoln Dewar, New Perth.

Others, too, were given strong support in well reasoned, logical letters of nomination. They included, among others, Sister Mary Henry, La-Croix D.A. (Col. Dan) MacKinnon, Hartwell Daley, Alfred Groom, taxi driver Elmer Larzer, Premier Walter R. Shaw, Dr. Gordon Lea, Dr. A.A. (Gus) MacDonald, R.E. Selzer, Brig. W.W. Reid, Mrs. Keith Boswell, Victoria Smallman, Melvin McQuaid, the former attorney general and provincial treasurer, and one man who defeated him in the Dec. 10 general election, Daniel J. MacDonald; Mrs. Fred Osborne, Mona Wilson, Ernest Lord, Dr. George Dewar, Dan Sanderson, Cardigan, Douglas McGowan, M.A. Jean Reid, Wendall Cudmore, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Larzer, and George Dixon, author of 'Ellen's Diary.'

While it would be an impossibility to review all the reasons given by readers for their 31 nominations a brief rundown on some of the reasons some of the candidates were nominated is in order.

The letters, from people in every walk of life from the four corners of Prince Edward Island, show clearly one thing at least: the high esteem in which many Islanders are held by their fellow Islanders.

One letter typical of the many that named J. Lincoln Dewar secretary of the Federation of Agriculture, as a candidate for the honor listed many of the activities he is associated with in and outside the field of agriculture and said: "J. Lincoln Dewar has been making an outstanding contribution to the province over a long period of years. Every year he seems to be connected with special projects designed for the welfare of our people."

Another letter said: "... he has brought our province honor and respect that has won a place of the highest councils in the land."

And another: "I know of no man more deserving of the honor."

Psychiatrist Dr. M. N. Beck also received a number of nominations. All listed his fine work among retarded children; the help he has been to parents of such children and his efforts in getting Sherwood hospital established. "But a reader adds, 'not only in the field of retardation does Dr. Beck do a great work. He is a noted psychiatrist, an outstanding citizen in his church and community and through his devoted efforts has brought help and happiness to many of our Island people.'"

A letter from a fellow worker

of Dr. Beck's dedication to the task of bettering the lot of his fellow man is an inspiration to those of us who work with him this year. Mrs. Adele Townshend of Rollo Bay West, a farm wife, high school teacher, and mother of five children, won strong support for the honor she brought to Prince Edward Island last year as a playwright PLAY IS WINNER

Her one-act play 'For the Love of a Horse' won second prize in the nation - wide competition sponsored by the I.O.G.T. Little Theatre Guild. In 1961 her play 'The Ladies Slip-Knot' topped the Canada wide competition sponsored by the Women's Institutes.

In applying the formula for Islander of the Year, "one reader said, 'Mrs. Townshend does not just bring us a singular honor to our province; she has provided initiative for friends and culture; has shown that P. E. I. is a tourist mecca steeped in tradition and has proven without a doubt that we haven't yet exported all our talents to other provinces.'"

Another letter said Mrs. Townshend was unique in Canada in that she is likely the only woman who has won national awards for the only two plays she has written.

Mr. Townshend's sister, Mrs. Jean Reid of Stanhope also received a nomination as designer of Prince Edward Island's tartan. The reader also included a string of tartan for the judges' perusal.

The many and varied activities of Mrs. Evelyn Cudmore this year won her several nominations as they have since the award was established in 1959. "A typical thought expressed in letters was: 'She has never had any thought of spring herself and has never been known to turn down a request for her services. If the felt it would be in the interest of Prince Edward Island and citizenship, she will do a work which would make a prime minister, this great lady still finds time to take an active part in her church, Girl Guides and the YMCA."

Retired librarian Jean Gilling nomination not only as Islander of the Year but as "Island of the Year" for her "Accomplishments and contributions to her province" over an uninterupted span of 44 years.

R.L. Cotton, another prominent Islander who has been nominated in each of the four years the award has been presented, said: "Received a nomination. His efforts towards making Prince Edward Island a thing of beauty and joy forever" were cited several times as were his many philanthropic work with retarded children won nominations for three Charlottetown men, R.E. Smallman, Ernest Lord and Wendall Cudmore. Mr. Smallman, a letter said "is one of our finest citizens, always quietly helping some person or organization in need. He has done more for the mentally retarded children of Prince Edward Island while Mr. Cudmore was cited as a person doing great work 'above and beyond the call of duty.'"

The province's director of research in the resources development program Hartwell Daley came in for support. "This program," a letter said, "as conceived and initiated by Hartwell Daley is undoubtedly the greatest single hope of the economic and cultural growth of the province has ever known."

A letter from a fellow worker

of Dr. Beck's dedication to the task of bettering the lot of his fellow man is an inspiration to those of us who work with him this year. Mrs. Adele Townshend of Rollo Bay West, a farm wife, high school teacher, and mother of five children, won strong support for the honor she brought to Prince Edward Island last year as a playwright PLAY IS WINNER

Her one-act play 'For the Love of a Horse' won second prize in the nation - wide competition sponsored by the I.O.G.T. Little Theatre Guild. In 1961 her play 'The Ladies Slip-Knot' topped the Canada wide competition sponsored by the Women's Institutes.

In applying the formula for Islander of the Year, "one reader said, 'Mrs. Townshend does not just bring us a singular honor to our province; she has provided initiative for friends and culture; has shown that P. E. I. is a tourist mecca steeped in tradition and has proven without a doubt that we haven't yet exported all our talents to other provinces.'"

Another letter said Mrs. Townshend was unique in Canada in that she is likely the only woman who has won national awards for the only two plays she has written.

Mr. Townshend's sister, Mrs. Jean Reid of Stanhope also received a nomination as designer of Prince Edward Island's tartan. The reader also included a string of tartan for the judges' perusal.

The many and varied activities of Mrs. Evelyn Cudmore this year won her several nominations as they have since the award was established in 1959. "A typical thought expressed in letters was: 'She has never had any thought of spring herself and has never been known to turn down a request for her services. If the felt it would be in the interest of Prince Edward Island and citizenship, she will do a work which would make a prime minister, this great lady still finds time to take an active part in her church, Girl Guides and the YMCA."

Retired librarian Jean Gilling nomination not only as Islander of the Year but as "Island of the Year" for her "Accomplishments and contributions to her province" over an uninterupted span of 44 years.

R.L. Cotton, another prominent Islander who has been nominated in each of the four years the award has been presented, said: "Received a nomination. His efforts towards making Prince Edward Island a thing of beauty and joy forever" were cited several times as were his many philanthropic work with retarded children won nominations for three Charlottetown men, R.E. Smallman, Ernest Lord and Wendall Cudmore. Mr. Smallman, a letter said "is one of our finest citizens, always quietly helping some person or organization in need. He has done more for the mentally retarded children of Prince Edward Island while Mr. Cudmore was cited as a person doing great work 'above and beyond the call of duty.'"

The province's director of research in the resources development program Hartwell Daley came in for support. "This program," a letter said, "as conceived and initiated by Hartwell Daley is undoubtedly the greatest single hope of the economic and cultural growth of the province has ever known."

A letter from a fellow worker

of Dr. Beck's dedication to the task of bettering the lot of his fellow man is an inspiration to those of us who work with him this year. Mrs. Adele Townshend of Rollo Bay West, a farm wife, high school teacher, and mother of five children, won strong support for the honor she brought to Prince Edward Island last year as a playwright PLAY IS WINNER

Her one-act play 'For the Love of a Horse' won second prize in the nation - wide competition sponsored by the I.O.G.T. Little Theatre Guild. In 1961 her play 'The Ladies Slip-Knot' topped the Canada wide competition sponsored by the Women's Institutes.

Charlottetown school board chairman Dr. Gordon Lea was given a nomination for the leadership he provided during the city's school building boom climaxed this month when the new West Kent School was opened.

Taxi driver Elmer Larzer was described as a man "whose kind deeds have made him a friend to many. A man who does so much good for so many each day, not because of a pocket full of money but because of a heart full of love and understanding. Is truly an Islander of the Year."

Dr. A.A. (Gus) MacDonald of St. John's was a practicing physician, has done much for suffering humanity, a reader would be selective in considering his calling as a blessing rather than a duty and never did, and even now at his advanced age, never does he fail to respond day or night to the call of suffering Islanders to compete in drama and culture; has shown that P. E. I. is a tourist mecca steeped in tradition and has proven without a doubt that we haven't yet exported all our talents to other provinces."

Another letter said Mrs. Townshend was unique in Canada in that she is likely the only woman who has won national awards for the only two plays she has written.

Mr. Townshend's sister, Mrs. Jean Reid of Stanhope also received a nomination as designer of Prince Edward Island's tartan. The reader also included a string of tartan for the judges' perusal.

The many and varied activities of Mrs. Evelyn Cudmore this year won her several nominations as they have since the award was established in 1959. "A typical thought expressed in letters was: 'She has never had any thought of spring herself and has never been known to turn down a request for her services. If the felt it would be in the interest of Prince Edward Island and citizenship, she will do a work which would make a prime minister, this great lady still finds time to take an active part in her church, Girl Guides and the YMCA."

Retired librarian Jean Gilling nomination not only as Islander of the Year but as "Island of the Year" for her "Accomplishments and contributions to her province" over an uninterupted span of 44 years.

R.L. Cotton, another prominent Islander who has been nominated in each of the four years the award has been presented, said: "Received a nomination. His efforts towards making Prince Edward Island a thing of beauty and joy forever" were cited several times as were his many philanthropic work with retarded children won nominations for three Charlottetown men, R.E. Smallman, Ernest Lord and Wendall Cudmore. Mr. Smallman, a letter said "is one of our finest citizens, always quietly helping some person or organization in need. He has done more for the mentally retarded children of Prince Edward Island while Mr. Cudmore was cited as a person doing great work 'above and beyond the call of duty.'"

The province's director of research in the resources development program Hartwell Daley came in for support. "This program," a letter said, "as conceived and initiated by Hartwell Daley is undoubtedly the greatest single hope of the economic and cultural growth of the province has ever known."

A letter from a fellow worker

of Dr. Beck's dedication to the task of bettering the lot of his fellow man is an inspiration to those of us who work with him this year. Mrs. Adele Townshend of Rollo Bay West, a farm wife, high school teacher, and mother of five children, won strong support for the honor she brought to Prince Edward Island last year as a playwright PLAY IS WINNER

Her one-act play 'For the Love of a Horse' won second prize in the nation - wide competition sponsored by the I.O.G.T. Little Theatre Guild. In 1961 her play 'The Ladies Slip-Knot' topped the Canada wide competition sponsored by the Women's Institutes.

In applying the formula for Islander of the Year, "one reader said, 'Mrs. Townshend does not just bring us a singular honor to our province; she has provided initiative for friends and culture; has shown that P. E. I. is a tourist mecca steeped in tradition and has proven without a doubt that we haven't yet exported all our talents to other provinces.'"

Another letter said Mrs. Townshend was unique in Canada in that she is likely the only woman who has won national awards for the only two plays she has written.

Mr. Townshend's sister, Mrs. Jean Reid of Stanhope also received a nomination as designer of Prince Edward Island's tartan. The reader also included a string of tartan for the judges' perusal.

The many and varied activities of Mrs. Evelyn Cudmore this year won her several nominations as they have since the award was established in 1959. "A typical thought expressed in letters was: 'She has never had any thought of spring herself and has never been known to turn down a request for her services. If the felt it would be in the interest of Prince Edward Island and citizenship, she will do a work which would make a prime minister, this great lady still finds time to take an active part in her church, Girl Guides and the YMCA."

Retired librarian Jean Gilling nomination not only as Islander of the Year but as "Island of the Year" for her "Accomplishments and contributions to her province" over an uninterupted span of 44 years.

R.L. Cotton, another prominent Islander who has been nominated in each of the four years the award has been presented, said: "Received a nomination. His efforts towards making Prince Edward Island a thing of beauty and joy forever" were cited several times as were his many philanthropic work with retarded children won nominations for three Charlottetown men, R.E. Smallman, Ernest Lord and Wendall Cudmore. Mr. Smallman, a letter said "is one of our finest citizens, always quietly helping some person or organization in need. He has done more for the mentally retarded children of Prince Edward Island while Mr. Cudmore was cited as a person doing great work 'above and beyond the call of duty.'"

The province's director of research in the resources development program Hartwell Daley came in for support. "This program," a letter said, "as conceived and initiated by Hartwell Daley is undoubtedly the greatest single hope of the economic and cultural growth of the province has ever known."

A letter from a fellow worker

of Dr. Beck's dedication to the task of bettering the lot of his fellow man is an inspiration to those of us who work with him this year. Mrs. Adele Townshend of Rollo Bay West, a farm wife, high school teacher, and mother of five children, won strong support for the honor she brought to Prince Edward Island last year as a playwright PLAY IS WINNER

Her one-act play 'For the Love of a Horse' won second prize in the nation - wide competition sponsored by the I.O.G.T. Little Theatre Guild. In 1961 her play 'The Ladies Slip-Knot' topped the Canada wide competition sponsored by the Women's Institutes.

In applying the formula for Islander of the Year, "one reader said, 'Mrs. Townshend does not just bring us a singular honor to our province; she has provided initiative for friends and culture; has shown that P. E. I. is a tourist mecca steeped in tradition and has proven without a doubt that we haven't yet exported all our talents to other provinces.'"

Another letter said Mrs. Townshend was unique in Canada in that she is likely the only woman who has won national awards for the only two plays she has written.

Mr. Townshend's sister, Mrs. Jean Reid of Stanhope also received a nomination as designer of Prince Edward Island's tartan. The reader also included a string of tartan for the judges' perusal.

The many and varied activities of Mrs. Evelyn Cudmore this year won her several nominations as they have since the award was established in 1959. "A typical thought expressed in letters was: 'She