

Toll On Sport Fishing Has Varied Reaction

OTTAWA (CP)—A gathering of biologists and economists Tuesday discussed the merits of imposing a toll on sport fishing areas in Canada.

Professor A. D. Scott, a University of British Columbia economist, suggested the toll at the opening of a three-day symposium on the economic aspects of sport fishing.

His paper on the topic drew mixed reaction, both from his fellow panelists and from the 150 scientists attending the meeting, sponsored by the federal fisheries department.

Prof. Scott said a toll seemed one of the best methods of gathering statistical data on the use and "market value" of such recreational areas.

The chief reason such charges were now used was that free hunting and fishing has been regarded as a right for centuries. The toll would give economists a variety of figures so he could calculate value by local residents, foreign visitors and the area's recreational worth in comparison with other uses.

SHOULDN'T LEVY TOLLS
Prof. Scott Gordon, Carleton University economist, Ottawa, said tolls "shouldn't be levied just to find out what happens."

He felt much of the value of natural resource was "just its availability, even if you never use it."

William M. White of the U.S. bureau of sports fisheries and wildlife, said a variety of fees now are being levied in his country in multiple purpose water resources projects.

Fishing fees ranged from 50 cents to $6 a day. The quality and quantity of the fish, competition and scenery were factors in the charge.

Prof. Gordon favored a high toll on inaccessible spots "maybe $2,000 a week" but little or none on easily-reached streams. "Only the rich would use the expensive areas... redistribution of wealth, like taxes."

Prof. Scott said economists "have never been really turned loose on this problem." None had ever had a careful look at figures in national parks and others have compiled for years. He thought maybe the answers could be obtained this way.

Earlier Dr. A. W. H. Needer, federal deputy fisheries minister, said the government was "well aware of the problem of reconciling the regulation of fisheries for commercial purposes with those of recreation."

Survey Hints Mineral Find In Swamps Near James Bay

OTTAWA (CP)—An aeromagnetic survey has revealed existence of a vast geological feature under the swamps of the James Bay lowlands which could possibly contain a rich supply of minerals.

Details of the survey were described here in an interview by Dr. L. W. Morley, chief of the geophysics division of the Geological Survey of Canada, and Dr. A. S. MacLaren of the division's magnetic interpretation section.

The maps were produced as part of a 12-year $18,000,000 aeromagnetic survey of the Canadian shield which was started four years ago under a cost-sharing arrangement with the provinces.

Dr. Morley and Dr. MacLaren said the maps "reveal a major magnetic feature which will be of interest to geologists, prospectors and developers."

The feature may be a crack in the earth's crust, an occurrence which could permit material from the mantle containing mineral to escape to the surface. It is a 160-mile long magnetic belt extending south from James Bay almost parallel to the Moose and Athabasi rivers.

"There is a possibility that the area contains minerals," Dr. Morley said. "However, this will not be known until the area can be surveyed by geologists next summer."

jointly by the geological survey, a branch of the federal mines and technical surveys department, and the Ontario department of mines.

Boiler Blast Kills One Man, Injures Eight

MONTREAL (CP)—One person was killed and eight others were badly injured in a boiler room explosion Wednesday at a concrete manufacturing firm in suburban Jacques Cartier.

The number of dead and injured was given by Director Leo Daignault of the Jacques Cartier fire department. He said the eight suffered second- and third-degree burns.

The injured were taken to hospital in St. Lambert, another Montreal suburb which lies on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River opposite Montreal.

Hospital officials were unable to comment on the condition of the injured, except to say some were in the operating room.

Director Daignault said some of the victims were inside the boiler room and others were outside at the time of the explosion.
