

Princess, Lord Snowdon Enjoy Washington Sights

By FRANCES LEWINE
WASHINGTON (AP) — On a rainy sightseeing tour, Princess Margaret and the Earl of Snowdon rode to the top of the Washington Monument Tuesday for a view of the United States capital.

"Marvelous" was the princess' description of it afterward.

And her husband, with his photographer's eye-view, echoed a "wonderful view."

For almost three hours, the visiting royal couple had taken a tourist-type look at Washington, by limousine. It began with a wreath-laying ceremony at the grave of President John F. Kennedy and a tour through George Washington's Potomac riverfront home at Mount Vernon.

Then after that came many of the other things tourists to the city visit—the Capitol, the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial. Only at the monument and the Lincoln Memorial did the princess get out of the auto, but the entourage kept a slow pace, with police escort.

ENJOYED SIGHTS
Princess Margaret, wearing a grey suit and matching conical hat trimmed with grey beaver, seemed to enjoy the sights.

At Arlington Cemetery to begin her second day here, the princess stood solemnly at Kennedy's wind-swept grave and placed a wreath of red, white and blue chrysanthemums.

Then the entourage went the 12 miles downriver to Mount Vernon and the light rain began. The princess and her husband stood in front of Washington's tomb and placed a wreath of white carnations with red, white and blue ribbons.

The trip by elevator to the top of the 555-foot-high Washington Monument, the tallest structure in the capital, was unexpected. National Park service guards there said they knew the princess and her husband were coming to the monument but had not expected them to go to the top of the monument.

At the Lincoln Memorial, the princess, steadying herself on her husband's arm, climbed up the long flight of marble steps, marked by warnings that the going was slippery in the rain.

READ LINCOLN'S WORDS
Together, the princess and her husband paused to read the words of Lincoln's Gettysburg address carved on one wall of the memorial building.

The royal visitors attracted little crowd attention in the city streets. Clusters of tourists at various sights watched and waved. But at Mount Vernon and historic Alexandria on the way crowds stood in the rain for a glimpse of the princess.

Air Transport Bootlegging Sparks Blast

MONTREAL (CP) — The Air Transport Association of Canada ended a two-day convention in Montreal after an appeal for a crackdown on bootleg operators in their business.

ATAC members taking part in a legal symposium, asked representatives of the Air Transport Board and the department of transport to force unlicensed operators to conform with government regulations or get out of the business of offering transportation for hire.

ATAC spokesmen said these operators flagrantly disregard both ATB and DOT regulations. Some owners of privately-registered aircraft have been providing a commercial service under the guise of a leasing arrangement, the spokesmen said.

Licensed operators could not hope to meet competition from private aircraft whose owners were not required to live up to government regulations on maintenance, training of personnel, operating procedures and insurance.

The spokesmen said the prime ATAC complaint is that the ATB and the DOT do not enforce regulations which would shut down illegal or borderline operations.

Another aspect of air transport came up in an address by Walter McLeish, chief aeronautical engineer of the DOT, who spoke to a maintenance symposium about low-flying planes that engage in specialized operations which require relatively violent manoeuvres.

Mr. McLeish said studies show that aircraft used for crop-spraying, pipeline and power-line inspection and some low-level photography missions have their airworthy life reduced.

Johnson Plans Jury Move To Help Protect Negroes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said here he will ask Congress in January for legislation "to prevent injustice to Negroes at the hands of all-white juries."

"We intend to make the jury box, in both state and federal courts, the sacred domain of Justice under law," Johnson said.

He spoke to delegates here to plan for a White House civil-rights conference next spring. Johnson described the jury as "the cornerstone of our system of justice," adding: "If its composition is a sham, its judgment is a sham. And when that happens, justice itself is a fraud, casting off the blindfold and tipping the scales one way for whites and another way for Negroes."

Johnson also said that he will ask the civil rights commission today "to turn its careful attention to problems of race and education in all parts of the country."

"I am asking them to develop a firm foundation of facts on which local and state governments can build a school system that is color blind," he said.

PLAN NEW COURSE
Civil-rights leaders are meeting today with government leaders and Thursday to begin charting a new course for their future efforts.

Johnson noted that the government already has moved to join in three suits which, he said, challenge a biased system of jury selection. These suits include one in Lowndes County, Ala., and are based on the grounds Negroes have been deliberately excluded from jury service.

"But we must do more," Johnson said. "We will do more."

Then he said he has asked the attorney general "to prepare jury legislation that is clear in its purpose and specific in its aim."

Johnson said the work of the civil-rights conference "will affect the future of over 300,000,000 people."

"You will not be working in a vacuum. This administration has put powerful and just laws on the statute books. We have the determination and the resourcefulness to translate them into better lives for all Americans—this year and next year, and for as many years as it takes to get that job done."

MANY WITHOUT VOTE

While more than 300,000 Negroes have been registered to vote under the 1965 Voting Rights Act, Johnson said many hundreds of thousands have not.

"This is a challenge not only to government, but to Negro leadership. I urge you to work around the clock. Tell those who have been barred from the polls that a new day has come, that at last they may have a voice in shaping their own destinies. That voice will be heard from the sheriff's office to the halls of Congress—but only if it is used."

In this connection, Johnson said, the common goal of Negro and white parents alike is the best possible education for their children.

"It is a national shame that the vast majority of Negro children are schooled even worse than they are housed and fed," Johnson said.

In federal assistance programs, Johnson said, "we are seeking to make racial justice a positive purpose rather than a distant goal."

He said he will expect immediate results from a letter just

The bidding:
West North East South
1 ♠ 2NT Pass 2 ♠
Pass 2NT Pass 4 ♠
Pass 5 ♠ Pass 6 ♠

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Let's say you have the South hand and arrive at six spades on the bidding shown. West leads the king of diamonds and the question is how to play the hand.

Of course, in actual play, you would not see the East-West cards, and you might therefore find the hand that much harder to play. But even if you saw the adverse hands, you might have trouble making the slam, and, in fact, you are cordially invited to try to make six spades seeing all 32 cards.

The key to the hand is your first play. If you ruff the king of diamonds, you eventually go down one, but if you discard a club—as you should—you make the contract.

West is on lead at trick two and can do nothing to harm you. Let's say he shifts to the queen of hearts. You take it with the king, ruff a diamond, draw two rounds of trumps, cash the ace of hearts, and then ruff a heart.

When you now ruff the third round of diamonds and play two more rounds of trumps, this becomes the position:

West ♠ 10 ♠ A 7
♥ K 10 ♠ J 9 8

East ♠ 9 5 ♠ J 9 8
♥ 7 5 4 3 2 ♠ Q 5 2

You then lead the ten of spades, whereupon West finds himself in a squeeze. Whatever he discards, you make the rest of the tricks.

Note that at the very start of the hand you had eleven tricks, that is, all the tricks except two. By losing the first trick you created a situation typical of nearly all successful squeezes—that is, you now had all the remaining tricks except one. Ten tricks later this deliberate concession of a trick paid off.
