Sport Echoes From Prince County

A few days ago a story hit the news lanes to the effect that the Saint John-Kinmen Juniors had protested the C. and B. Junior Maritime championship on two grounds: that some of our boys were over age, and that a number of our players had played in an intermediate league. The charge that some of our boys were over age could have been nothing but a pure surmise on the part of the Saint John management, a trumped-up charge which, if not followed by something definite in the way of proof, puts the Saint John management in a very bad light. As far as we know every member of the Curran and Briggs junior ball team is under the required age limit. We have been assured of this by the team manager, and we are waiting now to hear some effort on the part of the Saint John heads to substantiate their claim. In no other way can they lift out of the muck of poor sportsmanship their reaction to the surprising defeat handed them by the Curran and Briggs crew.

The second charge, that the club had players who played in an intermediate league, is true. But we haven't been able to find out what is wrong with this practice. In the first place, they did not break any Prince Edward Island rule by so doing, as it was agreed by all our baseball authorities that this should be permitted. Secondly, we think juniors should be allowed to play in intermediate leagues if no junior league is organized in their vicinity. If they do not, they will not be able to play organized baseball at all, and their ability to play will suffer as a consequence of their inactivity during the summer. It is all very well for a large city like Saint John to have, and to support such a rule, but small towns cannot muster enough junior players to form a league.

We should think that, as long as the boys are under the required age, a series between two teams would be perfectly fair, regardless of whether they had played in junior or intermediate circles during the summer. Quite recently we have heard the argument that it is not fair to pit juniors who have been up against intermediate pitching against juniors who have not. This, we think, is splitting hairs with a vengeance. You may as well say it is not fair to have juniors who are under a competent coach, play against juniors who haven't had this advantage. Or to have juniors who play on a first-rate ball field, pitted against juniors who have been playing on poor diamonds. You can't have absolute equality of opportunity, you know, no matter how hard you try.

As a matter of fact, it is very doubtful if intermediate ball is superior to junior ball in any case. Last year the C. and B. intermediates, tops in the Maritimes, played four games with Dieppe juniors, tops in their bracket, and C. and B. were defeated three times out of four! This year, we have heard that the Saint John juniors had defeated the Minto, New Brunswick Intermediate champs when these two teams met. Do you think the best intermediate hockey team in Canada last year would have beaten the Montreal Canadiens, Canadian junior champions? We don't think so.

We were talking to some of the Dieppe junior ball players in the Moncton Forum last week, and were told that the Saint John Kinmen had taken the first game of their series by default, because the Dieppe boys were fifteen minutes late getting to the field! Comment is scarcely necessary on that action. The last experience we had with a Saint John protest was two or three years ago in Summerside when a Saint John team played our juvenile hockey team for the two-province crown. Summerside won, but Saint John protested on the grounds that the red line was not red at all, but brown! We hadn't noticed that the night of the game, but went down to the rink after hearing of the protest, and sure enough, the red line did have a brownish cast to it. Somebody must have kidded the Saint John management out of that one, for the protest was quickly withdrawn. Saint John protest! Phooey!

The world champion New York Yankees gave full shares of $5,737.95 to 32 players, coaches and others. Thirteen others received partial shares.

Philadelphia Phils. National League champs and losers to the Yanks in four straight games of the World Series, allotted full shares of $4,081.34 to 32 members of their roster. Nine others came in for partial shares.

Walter Mulbry, secretary of baseball, who made the announcement of the split, said the shares were "a little on the low side" but he explained it was due to the fact players of both clubs were generous in deciding who should share in the money and for how much.

The split did not include any part of the $375,000 derived from the sale of television and radio rights. Mulbry said a final decision on that would not be made "for some little time."

rugged band of hard-hitting hockey players. If this is true, the rural hockey fans will be coming all the way from East Point to Nail Pond demanding admission to the Charlottetown Forum. For Island outport fans like their hockey rough. That is the way they play it, minus, of course, a lot of the speed and polish that the Islanders will display. There's a story going that two rural Island teams were playing in an open-air rink when in the midst of a scuffle in a corner the puck bounced over the boards and disappeared from view. The two teams kept right on playing for a full minute before anyone noticed that the puck was missing! This story is no doubt a bit exaggerated, but it has the germ of truth.

While on the subject of stamina and courage among Island sports participants, we'd like to commend young Paul Schurman for playing at third base all through the C. and B. Saint John series with a broken finger. The finger was "frozen" twice during the series to keep down the pain. If Paul was a bit weaker with the hockey in this series than is his wont, this injury explains it.

Ald. George Hainsworth, 54, of Kitchener, Ont., former Toronto Maple Leaf hockey team goalkeeper was instantly killed in a head-on collision between his car and a light panel truck south of Gravenhurst. Four others were injured. Hainsworth, who was pronounced dead at the scene from several broken ribs which punctured his heart, was a member of two Stanley Cup teams and a three-time winner of the Vezina Trophy. During the 1928-29 season, he hung up a record for shut-outs which still stands. He whitewashed the opposition 22 times in 44 games and only 43 pucks flashed past him in the season. He hung up his skates in 1936.

Irvin Says Canadiens Can Win Stanley Cup

By W. R. Wheatley MONTREAL, Oct. 16 (CP)—Coach Dick Irvin came out flat-footed and announced Montreal Canadiens not only will be in the Stanley Cup series but can win it if one player comes through 100 per cent.

All that is needed, said Irvin, is for this player to shed a tendency to hot-and-cold play and to produce consistently a fighting spirit and a will-to-win enthusiasm. Then he named his player: open-ly: Defenceman Doug Harvey. Irvin added: "I think he can do it. He has more incentive now. He has an extra mouth to feed and has just built himself a house."

Irvin's surprising statement was made before Montreal newspaper and radio men. The occasion was a pre-season luncheon gathering attended by the playing squad and there was a lot of taking-down of hair before the affair ended. Coach Irvin also went so far as to deliver his usual pre-game dressing-room talk right in front of everybody, and with considerable rhetorical effort.
