FAMOUS DRIVER VISITS PARENTS

One of the finest harness horse drivers in the nation was the way the Los Angeles Times described Joe O'Brien in a sports article giving an account of Joe's recent stirring victories with Diamond Hall at Hollywood Park, Cal. Accompanied by his wife, Joe spent last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry O'Brien, Alberton, and is shown right) checking over Miss Cleo", one of a number of horses being trained by his father (left). Although just past his 83rd year, Mr. Harry O'Brien continues his life long interest in harness racing and dispite the fame achieved by his son, can, no doubt, still pass along some helpful advice. The O'Briens left Alberton on Saturday on return to their home in Shaften, Calif.

Child Of Former Kensington Couple Killed In Halifax

Elizabeth Claire Roberts, 3 1-2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brian Roberts, was killed instantly last Saturday in front of her Windsor Street home in Halifax.

The child apparently did not see an approaching truck and was crushed under the wheels while her parents looked on from the opposite side of the street.

The Roberts family, who had been living in Kensington, moved to Halifax in October, where Mr. Roberts enrolled as a student in Pine Hill Divinity Hall.

Mrs. Roberts is the former Ella Brookins of Kensington.

Besides her sorrowing parents, the child is survived by a 14-month-old sister, Joanne.

The funeral will be held from Kensington United Church on Tuesday afternoon.

UNEF May Be Tied By Russian Strength In U. N.

By LLOYD McDONALD
By Canadian Press Staff Writer

The future of the United Nations Emergency Force in the Middle East may be tied with Russia's position-of-strength policy which is evident in the UN General Assembly.

UNEF, set up last year following the Suez crisis, has become more of a financial problem than a political one. And if the Soviet Union, as a major power, does not follow through with monetary support it may have to be cut well below present strength if not abandoned.

The Russian delegation has used a political excuse in not paying its UNEF contribution and its satellite countries have followed suit. The excuse is that the creation of the force was illegal because the UN assembly and not the Security Council voted it into existence. The Security Council was bypassed at the time because a Soviet veto would have strangled it at birth.

The Soviet stand was reiterated Friday when Soviet delegate Arkady A. Sobolev told the General Assembly Russia will not pay any assessments voted by the UN to finance the force.

SLOW TO PAY

The Soviet Union claimed not to have direct involvement in the Suez crisis, but it was no secret that Egypt was depending for moral support — and probably more — from that quarter. Since the crisis eased, largely because of UNEF's intervention, Egypt has shown increasing signs of a generally pro-Moscow policy.

Now, with UNef's future depending on UN assembly approval of further financial support, the Soviet delegation has been stirring up opposition to any more commitments. The Western viewpoint is that UNEF now has become a real symbol of the general policy of the general policy of the world organization, and deserves backing for this reason alone.

Russia has been making some capital out of reluctance by any country to pay for a non-crisis operation, as UNEF has now become. And many members who voted last year to create the force have been something less than enthusiastic in helping foot the bill.

PAPER VICTORY

If the current UNEF debate in the assembly follows the pattern set since the vote on condemning Russia for her Hungarian intervention, there will once again be a Western paper victory yielding nothing but a moral gain. The Canadian - sponsored resolution calling for continued support of UNEF is assured of the required two-thirds majority for passage, but passage alone—as in the recent disarmament debate—means little without the co-operation of the Communist world.

On disarmament, the Russians and their supporters made a token opposition in the assembly before they were soundly voted down. But they had made it clear in advance that, in effect, if you don't give us the bat we won't play ball with you. The result will be empty chairs in the UN disarmament commission when it is reconstituted after the new year, unless a change of heart or a propaganda advantage induces the East to come back.

The UNEF debate is expected to follow the same script—token opposition in the East - bloc speeches and no co - operation later. And with Russia the second biggest percentage contributor in the UN after the United States, the absence of Moscow gold will leave an almost insurmountable gap on UNEF's balance sheet.

Despite the support of the big Western powers and most of the middle group including Canada, this deficit financing will undoubtedly raise doubts among a good part of the 82 member states as to whether it is worth going on with the force.

Such an attitude, projected to the UN as a whole, appears to be what Russia is aiming at now.

R. C. A. F. Blood Donor Clinic Held Today

F-Lt. (Rev) J.W. MacGillivray, R.C. Padre, and F-Lt. G.F.S. Scharf are the Co-ordinators for the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic to be held at the Drill Hall at the Station on Monday morning, December 2nd. Although their objective is 150 donors they, with their efficient Committee, are "out to beat previous records" established at the Station. Last June's Clinic produced 177 "Life Savers," so the Committee really has a record to maintain.

This Clinic at the R.C.A.F. Station will be the first in the series which are to take place on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week at North Rustico, Crapaud, St. Dunstan's University and Charlottetown with an overall objective of 1500 donors.

Residents in and near North Rustico and Crapaud will have their once-a-year opportunity of contributing their share towards the province's Blood Bank which is now very much in need of replenishing. Those living in and near Charlottetown, where Blood Donor Clinics are held twice a year, will have their second chance to play a part in maintaining this life-saving service.

Says Ad Industry Should Take Job Of Selling U.K.

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The Canadian advertising industry should take on the job of "selling" Canadians on the purchase of Canadian and British goods, says Carl A. Pollock, president of Dominion Electrohome Industries Ltd. of Kitchener, Ont.

Mr. Pollock, outlining his views in a recent address to the Women's Advertising Club of Toronto, said in part:

"Canadians must be convinced that it does matter where and from whom they do their buying.

ENSURES SURVIVAL

"They must realize that we need to buy more from Britain and less from the United States to ensure our own survival as the kind of nation we want to be, and not just to help Britain.

"It is in their own best interests to concentrate their buying on Canadian and British products."

In the Canadian field, Mr. Pollock said Canadian business must be more active in the "creative" field and thus lead to the processing at home of more Canadian raw materials.

Canada had been developing her raw materials but shipping too much of them out of the country.

IMPORTING IDEAS

At the same time she had been "importing many ideas and products which could be conceived, developed and manufactured here, using our own raw materials."

In so doing, she had built up a trading deficit with the United States which in 1956 amounted to $1,350,000,000. Much of this deficit money could be spent in Canada or invested in the development of Canadian business.

Mr. Pollock blamed the large exodus from Canada of trained men—3,000 engineers and 800 scientists from 1951 to 1956—on insufficient creative jobs in their own fields at home.

Selling these ideas to Canadian consumers and businessmen, Mr. Pollock stated, "is an adventure of really high level which could be carried out by Canadian advertisers."

CALL A GATHERING

He suggested that towards this end the government should "call a gathering of Canadians who are knowledgeable in creative advertising and public relations."

Mr. Pollock said Canadians will buy British goods only after they have tried one or more and are satisfied with their quality and after they have convinced themselves that to buy British is a goodpractice to follow."

Citing the experience of his own firm in exploring the British field, he said its purchases from the United Kingdom in 1953 totalled only $6,000. This year they would probably reach $500,000.

Dominion Electrohome manufactures radios, television sets and a wide variety of electrical goods and other products.

Doctor Senator Urges Halt In March To State Medicine

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Joseph A. Sullivan, a practising Toronto physician and surgeon recently named to the Senate, said Wednesday the medical profession "cries out 'halt' to Canada's march toward state medicine."

Doctors call state medicine "the assault on medicine," the Ontario Progressive Conservative said in his maiden Senate speech.

Dealing only in passing with with the projected national hospital insurance scheme, Senator Sullivan said he favors direct government aid "only in areas where the individual is not able to bear the burden—the indigent sick, the aged, the chronically-ill and those who suffer catastrophic medical expenses."

But his profession supported the hospital insurance scheme provided medical men operate it.

Doctors, however, did not want to be "equated" any more than any other profession did. Medical care was a problem solely for doctors, who probably needed legal help but not control. "We doctors are suspicious of those who would meddle with us."

Medical men who failed in their Hippocratic oath to give first consideration to the care and welfare of their patients were the exception.

WELFARE IS START

"In democracies the welfare state is the beginning and the totalitarian state the end. The two submerge into the third sooner or later."

History was running in cycles, "from national socialism to Socialist nationalism."

"Each move on the road of medical imperialism is greeted as a victory and paraded as such before labor," he said.

"Social security stands or falls by what it contributes to economic stability. And compulsory medical service does not contribute to economic stability."

In fact, he said, it was conducive to social maladjustment. People found it profitable to take medical benefits instead of working.

Medical men approved of the motivation behind promoters of state medicine, "to provide for people in low - income brackets who cannot provide for their own medical needs."

WOULD AID NEEDY

"The medical profession subscribes to that fully." But not to the thinking that produced "governmentalized medicine."

"Medical care always has been based on the excellence of the treatment, without regard to cost." Some of the finest medical attention was available in the public wards of the teaching hospitals.

He added that experience in England; where a national health scheme went into operation in 1948, was that inevitably the greater demand for doctors was producing a movement for shortened training.

Funeral Of P. L. Morris Is Held

Hike Rentals In Housing Corp.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Rentals of St. John's Housing Corporation apartments where 15 veterans' families live will be nearly doubled to $135 a month after Jan. 1.

The corporation, a privately-operated firm, boosted rentals to $110 a month from $70 Sunday. Effective Jan. 1, the rents will be jumped to $135.

The corporation said it is losing $30,000 a year and the increases are "a matter of economics."

The increased rentals will put them on a par with those charged by other real estate owners under the city's rental control system.

Scotsmen

Special guests at the banquet included His Excellency, Bishop M. A. MacEachern of Charlottetown; Rev. A. Frank MacLean and Mrs. MacLean and Miss Kerr who accompanied her father from Halifax.

Dr. Kerr in recalling the traditions of the race, noted that the love of freedom was the golden thread which ran through Scottish History and their emphasis on the dignity of man has done much to preserve democracy throughout the world.

The speaker said there was a common bond of fellowship existing among Scotsmen no matter how their lives may be separated in other ways. He recalled that Scotsmen as far back as the beginning of the 18th century moved to all parts of the world. He said he once met a man by the name of MacTavish whose parents had been born and lived in Poland.

Noting that some of the Scottish traditions are sometimes not carried on in Scotland to the same extent as they are in other parts of the world, Dr. Kerr recalled that while on a trip to Stornaway on the Isle of Lewis he had asked a hotel waitress for porridge only to be told they had nothing but corn flakes.

PRIDE OF RACE

The pride of a Scotsman in his race was shown by Dr. Kerr who recalled that a Scot would sooner be called a Scotsman than claim relationship to Royalty.

Speaking on St. Andrew, Dr. Kerr said the name Andrew in its Greek origin meant "manliness". He felt that this was the chief reason why he was chosen as the patron Saint of Scotland. He said St. Andrew was the first disciple called by Our Lord and although he did not enjoy the privilege of the inner circle of Peter and James and John, he never resented it. St."Andrew he said paid for his loyalty to his Lord by giving his life.

Dr. Kerr said the Scottish race has a profound desire for education and stated that in the Old Countries finances is no obstacle in the way of a young man of promise who wants to go to University.

He wondered whether Canadians are upholding this great and valuable tradition. He said it had been stated by a famous educator in this country that nowhere in the world is there a poorer chance of student without means to receive a higher education.

P. W. C. Defeats S'Side Hoop Team 44-40

Prince of Wales college basketball team edged the Summerside Spudniks at Civic Auditorium in Summerside Saturday evening by the score of 44-40. The score was deadlocked at 40-all at the end of regulation play, and Jim White of P.W.C. sank two baskets in the 5-minute overtime session giving the visitors the verdict. P. W. C. was leading 26-14 at half time but the Summerside boys came back with a flurry of baskets, particularly in the third quarter, and David Arnold swished it through the hoop for the tying counter with less than a minute to play.

Jim White led the P. W. C. team with 16 points, with Larry Flack collecting 9. Arnold, high man for the losers, also amassed 16 counters, and Ray Doucette was second with 9. Both teams were below par in sinking foul shots, P. W. C. getting only 2 out of 13 tries, and Summerside 2 out of 7. McLean of P. W. C. was particularly effective in intercepting passes and breaking up opponents' attacks.

Line-ups. P. W. C.—Flack 9, White 16, Storey 6, McLean 7, MacNutt, Rogers 4, Raddatz 2 Total 44.

Summerside-Dalton 4, Doucette 9, Scott 4, Robie 4, MacEachern 3, Boates, Arnold 16,. Total-40. Refree—Bill Ternan.
