

July Sitting Of Supreme Court At Georgetown

Mr. Justice George J. Tweedy was presented with white gloves, a traditional sign of the absence of any indictable cases on the docket, at the regular July sitting of the Kings County assizes at Georgetown yesterday morning. The presentation of the gloves was made by the sheriff of the county, J. B. Edwin Reid.

The grand jury was called and sworn in after which they were instructed by Judge Tweedy in their duties. He spoke of the important function of the grand jury in a democratic system such as we live in, and of their duty as citizens of the country to discharge the important functions for which they were called. Judge Tweedy stressed the importance of rules and regulations by which we must guide ourselves, and emphasized that the administration of the rules was a most important factor in our way of life. He went on to instruct the jury in their particular duties regarding the gaol and prisoners, court house, etc. He paid tribute to the police force, magistrates, courts, and crown prosecutors in their administration of justice. Judge Tweedy also extended a most cordial welcome to several American bar members who were present for the opening ceremonies.

The members of the grand jury include Alex Hamilton, foreman, New Perth; Douglas MacLaren, Montague; Henry Peters, Souris; George Laird, Souris; Fulton Campbell, Montague; George Jackson, Souris; Roy MacLean, St. Peter's; Wendell Coffin, St. Peter's; Arthur MacDonald, St. Peter's; John F. McIsaac, St. Peter's; two members of the grand jury were out of the province.

The prothonotary Gordon Holmes read the gaoler's report showing the following classification and number of prisoners admitted to the Kings County Gaol at Georgetown. Possession of liquor not purchased at a vendor, 17; intoxicated in a public place, 87; operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, 45; theft, 3; assault, 4; obstructing a peace officer, 4; causing a disturbance, 3. Total 163.

JURY'S REPORT
The following is the report of the grand jury:
We, the grand jurors of King's County, July sitting, 1955, humbly beg to report to your Lordship: As instructed we have inspected King's County Gaol and court house. We found the institution was inhabited by five inmates, and upon questioning, the prisoners were satisfied as to the food served. The food is prepared on a stove in the cell kitchen and this stove smokes badly due to poor draft caused by an inadequate chimney, and we recommend that this chimney be restored to its original length which we understand was approximately eight feet higher. We stress the urgency of this as it has been recommended by previous grand juries, and always neglected to the detriment of the health of the inmates. The beds and bedding of the jail are definitely worn out, and we recommend purchase of steel cots and replacement of blankets. The walls and ceilings of the cells should be cleaned and painted, and we suggest that the materials be supplied and the inmates do the work. We recommend that a new toilet be installed in the jail. We commend the Department of Public Works for new floors in the corridors, and recommend that the floors in the jail be replaced or repaired.

Mr. Batchelder was co-operative in showing us through the building, and we commend him in keeping the premises clean as possible under existing conditions. We also find that the gutters on the court house are badly in need of repair, and considerable pointing is required on the stone work of both jail and court house, particularly the south east corner of the cell block.

We commend the government for making a sincere effort to curb speeding on the highways, but we deplore the fact that there has been the necessity for so many convictions for drunkenness and drunken driving.

Annual Regatta At Lower Montague Today

The Lower Montague regatta takes place today and will feature lobster boat races, speed boat races, swim meet, amusements of all kinds, a delicious supper and a big dance in the evening. It promises to be a gala day for all who attend. Last year the large crowd was thrilled by the close finishes of the fast lobster boats and of the speed boats. Sailing craft were also in the races and provided a great deal of entertainment for the spectators.

On a perfect beach there is bathing for the children and lots of things to keep them occupied for the whole afternoon. The ladies have prepared a delicious supper for everyone who cares to fill out the day with friends in pleasant surroundings, and for the oldest as well as the youngest there will be a big dance in the evening with good music being supplied.

It has been learned that a special lovely trophy for the winner of the free-for-all lobster boat races has been donated by Mr. John W. MacIntyre of Attleboro, Mass., a summer resident of Lower Montague. His mother is the former Marion Condon of Panmure Island. Dan Condon of Montague is a first cousin.
Mr. MacIntyre has always taken an active interest in the Lower Montague regatta, and this year has climaxed his interest by donating the very handsome trophy which will be sharply competed for by the entrants in the free-for-all.

Two Maritimers who have made names for themselves in the separate fields of Canadian radio and journalism collaborate to present the Maritimes' most outstanding contribution to Canadian radio drama on CBC Wednesday Night July 13th at 9 p.m. The two Maritimers are Charles Bruce (left), poet and author, and J. Frank Willis, CBC Producer. The play which will be produced in Halifax and feature Maritime actors, is an adaptation of a portion of Bruce's novel "The Channel Shore".
"The Channel Shore" is the story of a family in a small fishing village in Nova Scotia, similar to Port Shoreham on Chedabucto Bay, the author's birthplace and his home during his early years. As the plot develops, Bruce shows how characters are molded and acquire strengths and weaknesses amid the rugged life of the seaside village.
The play, titled "Marshall and Son", grew from the central theme of the book: the father-and-son relationship between a man and a boy who are unrelated by blood.
Music for the play has been especially composed and arranged by Gordon MacPherson, who will conduct the orchestra. Themes from well-known Nova Scotia folk songs and ballads are employed. Bruce attended a country school and later went to Mount Allison University, graduating in 1927 with a B.A. Twenty-five years later his alma mater honored him with a doctorate of literature. A newspaper reporter and war correspondent of wide experience, he is general superintendent of The Canadian Press. He has published four volumes of verse; the latest, "The Mulgrave Road," won the Governor General's Award for Poetry.
