STOCK BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION.

Interesting Meetings Held Yesterday.

PRES. ELDERKIN'S ADDRESS.

Other Business Transacted—
Meeting Place Changed.

The fifth annual session of the Maritime Stock Breeders' Association began in Charlottetown on Wednesday morning in Kindergarten Hall. There was a fair attendance of members of the Association.

President Elderkin, in the course of his opening remarks, regretted the unavoidable detention by the storm of several members of the Association who were expected to be present. He spoke of the progress of the Association and what had been done during the past year, which had been one of much prosperity to the Association. He regretted, however, that the interests of stock breeders of the Maritime Provinces had been neglected for many years. This was not as it should be. We had many resources that should have been utilized. Many of these resources had, however, passed away. The same results could not now be obtained from the soil, and more attention must be given to stock-raising and kindred industries. It was pleasing to know that here in P. E. Island the farmers were becoming alive to the necessity of doing something to meet the exigencies of the case. It was the aim of the association to promote the interests of the people in this regard, to help along the live stock industry and to provide the best available markets. Exhibitions, as an educative force, are almost inestimable. It is amazing the progress that has been made in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, largely through these exhibitions. He could not say so much for this province, in which exhibitions had not been held for some time,—until this year. Last spring a delegation representing the three provinces waited upon the Minister of Railways regarding cheaper transportation rates for stock, and obtained free transportation to all the exhibitions. This advantage, he was pleased to state, had been brought about largely through the assistance rendered the committee at Ottawa by Sir Louis Davies. The obtaining of this advantage was a great boon. The people of the Maritime Provinces should work together instead of standing separate. A common interest and a common sympathy should be acknowledged. Another matter the Association brought up was its recognition by the Government of P. E. Island. This was the main reason for holding this meeting here. The Government and the people of this province must be made acquainted with the object and views of the Association and the work it is doing. The Government of Nova Scotia had given the Association a grant. The appointment of Mr. F. W. Hodson was a great benefit to the country. Mr.

A Sluggish, Torpid Liver

When the liver gets slow and sluggish in action bile is left in the blood to poison the whole system and give rise to serious bodily derangements. When there are biliousness, headache, constipation and indigestion Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills make you well in a surprisingly short time.
Mrs. H. A. Smith, 132 Manning avenue, Toronto, states:—"My daughter has had a wretched time of it for quite a while with liver complaint, causing, among other troubles, weakness of the stomach, very sallow complexion, and a most miserable state of feeling generally. My husband had occasion to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and spoke so highly of their merit that I concluded to have her try them, and since beginning their use she has markedly improved in every way. I can with confidence therefore recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."
One pill a dose; 25 cents a box.

Hodson and Hon. John Dryden had done much for Ontario in the development of agricultural matters. Mr. Hodson has now been sent down to these provinces to see what can be done here. Mr. Grisdale has also been sent down to assist in the good work. Meetings had already been held in the other provinces which cannot fail to be helpful. Mr. Hodson also visited this province during the summer and addressed several meetings, receiving assistance and encouragement from Premier Farquharson and others. He (Mr. Elderkin) felt that the information gained by Mr. Hodson during this tour would be for the betterment of the people. He thought the Exhibition held here this year was a very good one, and should be repeated every year. Don't let it go by for a single year; if you do you will be making a great mistake. An exhibition is a milestone in the history of a province or a country. Men should be elected to parliament who would do all in their power for the betterment of the country. Mr. Raynor and Mr. Grisdale, who had been sent to these Provinces, were doing a good work. With regard to the meetings to be held here he had the assurance of Hon. Mr. Farquharson that something would be done in the matter of defraying the expenses. Mr. Elderkin here spoke of the war in South Africa and of the good work that had been done by the boys from the farms and kindred avocations. The conditions of Canada had been greatly changed by the war, and we were all proud to be Canadians. The farmers were the backbone of the country. It is the country boys that are to make the future of Canada. Great care should be taken in the matter of the development of our resources. There is, he thought, a great future before these Maritime Provinces. All our resources should be developed, and markets and transportation facilities provided for our products. The revenue of our farms should be increased; the business of the farm should be enlarged. The boys and girls should be kept at home instead of going to the United States. This is the idea that the Maritime Stock Breeders' Association is attempting to develop, and he asked the assistance of all.

Mr. C. A. Archibald, of Truro, then read an interesting paper dealing with the registration of live stock. He urged the importance of having all pure bred animals registered in recognized herd books.

Hon. Mr. Dryden, in reply to a question by Mr. Rogers, said there was a herd-book for the registration of Ayrshires and Shorthorns.

Mr. C. C. Gardiner, at the request of the chairman, then gave some interesting information regarding early importations of stock to this Province and the establishment of a herd-book by himself after investigating the pedigrees of animals that had been imported by Hon. J. C. Pope and others.

Hon. Mr. Dryden spoke next, discussing the systems of registration in England and Canada, and speaking of the class of cattle eligible for registration.

Mr. Joseph Wise pointed out some errors that had been made in Mr. Wade's herd-book with regard to some cattle registered by him.

Mr. Callbeck said he thought that the mistakes complained of were printers' errors and would be corrected upon attention being called to them.

Mr. C. C. Gardiner, in reply to Mr. Rogers, said all the Shorthorn stock on the Stock Farm was eligible for registration in the Dominion Herd Book.

Mr. Hodson said there were sets of records for swine at Toronto, also records for sheep. All Canada west of Toronto has accepted these records. Should our records be international or not was the question.

Mr. J. A. Macdonald, Hermanville, said all his pigs were entered in the United States records as his trade was all with that country. He thought the Dominion Herd Books should be recognized by the United States.

Mr. Dryden thought the live stock people of the United States were quite willing to accept Canadian registration and hoped arrangements along this line would soon be perfected. There were penalties for people who made false entries of sheep and hogs.

The Kindergarten Hall having been found unsuitable it was decided that the afternoon meeting and subsequent meetings of the Association be held in the old Board of Trade Room, Masonic Temple.

Meeting then adjourned.

SURPRISING RESULTS.

A Simple Internal Remedy Makes Remarkable Cures of Catarrh.

People who have used sprays, inhalers, salves and washes for catarrh and have found how useless and inconvenient they are, will be agreeably surprised at results following the use of a pleasant, internal remedy in tablet form; druggists everywhere admit that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, which they sell at 50 cents for full sized treatment, is the safest, most effective and popular of all catarrh remedies.

Nearly all cheap cough mixtures and throat lozenges contain opiates; these cheap medicines give a temporary relief, especially with little children, by destroying nerve sensation; the irritation in throat which causes coughing is temporarily removed, not by removing the cause but by deadening the nerves of feeling the irritation is not felt although it is still there and will promptly return. Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is the best remedy to remove catarrhal secretion, whether in the nose, throat or stomach because they are composed of wholesome antiseptics like Eucalyptol, Gaiacol, Sanguinaria and Hydrastin; when you use these tablets you know what you are putting into your system and not taking chances with cocaine, opiates and similar poisons found in so many catarrh cures and cough medicines.

Dr. Ramsdell in commenting on catarrh cures says: "I can heartily recommend Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, because they contain no cocaine nor other dangerous drug found in so many advertised catarrh cures. I have known of many cases of long standing catarrh of the head and throat completely cured by the daily use of these tablets for several weeks. One case in particular, which I could not reach with an inhaler or spray, and where the catarrh caused daily headaches and a noticeable loss of hearing was entirely cured by this harmless but effective remedy."

Dr. Wainwright says: "I never hesitate to prescribe Stuart's Catarrh Tablets for catarrhal headaches and catarrhal deafness because I know them to be perfectly safe for child or adult and have seen many remarkable cures resulting from their regular daily use; because they are advertised and sold in drug stores is no reason why any good physician should not use them, because we should seize upon the means of cure wherever found."

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are especially valuable for catarrhal colds in children because they are pleasant to the taste and may be used freely to break up severe colds and croup at the very beginning.

All druggists sell the remedy at fifty cents for full sized package.

KRUGERISM AND LIBERTY.

Those who have read Mr. Churchill's story of his escape from Pretoria of the no less exciting narrative of Captain Haldane, will be strangers to the name of Rev. the Rev. Adrian Hofmeyr. The name of Hofmeyr is well known in Cape Colony. Indeed, it is not unknown in Canada, for did not the Hon. J. A. Hofmeyr help to represent South Africa at an unforgotten Ottawa conference? Afrikaner was the public man; Afrikaner was the cleric. In one sense they are not so still. Mr. Hofmeyr begins the story of his captivity with the avowal; but he calls himself Afrikaner just as some years ago a Canadian might have called himself a Canada First man. Like Schreiner and Kruger, Hofmeyr is a German name. When men hearing such names fell into the hands of the Boers they ran more than ordinary risks. Mr. Hofmeyr was known in the republics not only as a member of a noteworthy family, but as one who had counselled concessions on the part of the Kruger Government. His surprise when the first tidings of war overtook him and the evident preparedness of the Boers may be taken as an example of conditions then largely prevailing. He happened to be a Lobatsi, in British Bechuanaland on the 11th of October. When the news reached him that war was actually being waged, he knew the meaning of the movements that he had witnessed with so little suspicion. He had been on his way to Lake N'Gami, and was travelling by bullock wagon, accompanied by his young friend, Harry Neethling, and four Kaffir servants. He had delayed at Lobatsi till the drought should break up before venturing across the Kalahar desert. The place 50 miles from Mafeking on the line to Bulawayo. He sent his young friend to the nearest commando for definite intelligence. A Kaffir brought him a reply, apparently dictated by the Boer commander which tended to remove his apprehensions. He so discovered how grossly he and his young friend had been deceived. Asured that Lobatsi would not be attacked the British officer there marched his little force to where he thought it would be more useful. They entered the Boers and took possession and Mr. Hofmeyr found himself a prisoner. Some unsent telegrams were made a pretext for a charge of treason and he narrowly escaped death. He describes his imprisonment in Zeerus till the 26th of November, when he was removed to Pretoria. There he shared for a longer or shorter time the ordeals of Mr. Churchill and Captain Haldane. All through, Mr. Hofmeyr takes pains to discriminate between the "honest Transvaal burgher" and the "Hollander adventurer class," which constitutes the central clique of Kruger's supporters. "Poor Hollander-ridden Government!" he comments. These and other foreigners formed a body guard around the President, and Mr. Hofmeyr gives several instances of the feelings entertained both for him and them. Once in conversing with a Boer, he said that he was a loyal Cape Colonist and would deserve the contempt of his fellowmen if he refused to serve his Queen, just as his Transvaal acquaintance would be condemned if he refused allegiance to Mr. Kruger. When the comparison reached this point the Boer cursed His Honor with great decision and no little bitterness. No, he said, if they would gain nothing by fighting, but the continuance of the Kruger regime, very few of them would be commadeered. The late General Joubert was among the most determined opponents of Krugerism.

The hatred of the British and the conviction that if they triumphed, a dreadful fate awaited them were, with the majority of their rank and file, the motives of their obstinate resistance. Accustomed to be domineered over by despotic and often ignorant officials and looking to unrestricted plunder as their reward, they hoped for neither justice nor mercy from the enemy. Some of the notions that have been instilled into them regarding the British would be incredible if one had not such good evidence of their reality. The native papers rivalled the worst specimens of yellow journalism in open disdain of truth. Before his imprisonment Mr. Hofmeyr thought he knew the bad as well as good points of Transvaal character pretty thoroughly, but the war brought out phases of it which he had never imagined to exist. The mixture of religious pretence with open evil-doing sometimes disgusted him. Where the old people insisted on observing at least the form of godliness, the younger burghers, whether through bravado or because to them the semblance of piety had come to be suggestive of hypocrisy, indulged in swaggering, swearing, gambling and jeering at their elders. But he does not ignore the good Boers.

During the captivity at Pretoria, in order to be usefully employed, the officers formed classes for languages, history, etc. Mr. Hofmeyr undertook to teach Dutch and one of his text-books was a work on the Great Trek written by his brother-in-law. This led to considerable discussion. In his boyhood, Mr. Hofmeyr used to admire those old Pioneers (Voortrekkers), and had been won to look only upon their side of the question. Like a recent correspondent of this paper, he had regarded their cause as the cause of liberty, and their flight from the old colony as justified. But when he compared the real liberty, civil and religious, enjoyed by their kinsmen who had remained behind, enduring and waiting till the course of events had brought about the desired changes, with the mockery of freedom which Mr. Kruger's rule meant for the Transvaal, he could no longer be in doubt as to which was the better policy.

Those (especially Frenchmen), who have read the history of South Africa and know the occasion of the first secession, the relations of the seceders to the native races before and after the "Great Trek," their disagreements among themselves and up-break into three sections, their appeal to England for help and their treachery and ingratitude after England's help had, at tremendous cost, freed them from a dreadful danger, the revolt of the triumvirate, the establishment of the Kruger alien despotism, and refusal to recognize the claims of those who had enriched them—such as these are not at all likely to accept Paul Kruger as the heroic champion of liberty. The utter astonishment of the wretched Boer prisoners at Zeerus, who had once been Mr. Hofmeyr's jailer and guards, when, on his release, he lost no time in using his influence to procure their liberation, suggests a contrast of methods that is full of significance. For the sake of those who had been kind to himself when he was "sick and in prison," his heart warmed to them all. The mass of the people would never have gone to war, he believes, had they not been beguiled by lying stories of a general rising in the Cape and Natal, and of European intervention. He, therefore, bespeaks for them the generosity of the conqueror and he looks with hope to a future when the horrors of war shall be forgotten and lasting peace shall smile on a united and prosperous South Africa.—Montreal Gazette.
