

Woman's Power.

From his cradle to his grave, man relies for his happiness upon the love of woman, say a Southern writer. His light, his joy, his very life, depends blindingly and trustfully upon the mother love that nurses his infant years, tends his childhood, trains his youth, and rejoices in his manhood. Infinitely holy, utterly self-sacrificing, pure, noble, beautiful is the "maternal instinct"—and knowing the heights of it, proving its strength, seeing its abnegation of self, men call it divine—and so realize the love of God unto all humanity. Yet even from this fount of exquisite tenderness they turn their steps to a love more alluring, more entrancing, more absorbing; they leave all and cling to their wives, possessing in them everything. Wonderful and peculiar is the great mingling of human hearts, of organisms irresistibly attracted, of souls that feel with and for each other, of two brains forming one mind, of two lives and loves from which spring other lives, and yet another love—parental affection. This is true marriage and in this state woman is most lovely. Standing on an equality with her husband, she is adviser and assistant—the sharer of his troubles, his helpmeet, his comfort, his joy. That there are marriages far different from this is true, most unhappily; but even here woman shows her power—for evil if she chooses to curse, or good, if she desires to bless, and enoble the life thus brought beneath her personal influence. A great poet says that As the husband is the wife is; thou art mated with a crown, And the greatness of his nature will have weight to drag thee down. This is entirely fallacious. It will always be the strongest that leads, whether their strength be of an intellectual or moral force, and a woman of mind, of refinement, of honorable nature of idealism, could not fail to modify and even correct the materiality that may exist in her husband's thoughts, feelings or action, as his very coarseness would serve to lessen his power. A wife need not sink to the level of the 'clown' to whom she is 'mated' She can raise him, perhaps slowly, but still surely to her own standard. Let her first touch his heart—through pity, through shame or even through his mere passions, but once possess power over that and it will not be difficult to influence the brain. If the soil can be made to respond to beautiful and refining agencies the battle is won. It may take a lifetime, but a woman can afford to spend even a lifetime in such ennobling endeavor. A man finds his warmest, his most tender, his most unselfish friend, in a woman. Possessing no interests that clash with his, she believes in him thoroughly and hopefully, and her great faith in his powers encourages him to be up to her standard of belief. She makes him feel that she truly likes him. Her affection is frank and free, and he appreciates her sympathetic interest, her cheerful looks, her many little womanly ways that make all her surroundings in harmony with herself. If weary, her sensible, quiet talk rests him; if discouraged, she finds a thousand ways to cheer him; if to elate, her sound common sense gives him the needed balance; the lamp of friendship burns clear and bright between man and woman—lit by an emotion springing from the best impulses of human nature.

Harvest Drinks.

"Stokos" is a most refreshing and strengthening drink. It is easily made and costs only 3d. per gallon. Put into a large pan 1 lb. of fine fresh oatmeal, 6 ozs. of white sugar, half a lemon cut into small pieces. Mix with a little warm water, then pour a gallon of boiling water into it; stir all together thoroughly, and use when cold. The lemon may be omitted; raspberry vinegar, citric acid, or any other flavoring, may be used instead. More oatmeal may be used, if preferred. "Cokos" is a good nourishing drink, made as follows:—Eight ounces of sugar 6 ounces of good fine oatmeal, four ounces of cocoa at 10d. per lb., mixed gradually and smoothly into a gallon of boiling water; take to the field in a stone jar. Cost, 6d. per gallon. A good harvest drink.—Boil 1/2 ounce hops, 1/2 ounce ginger, (bruised) in 1 1/2 gallons of water, 25 minutes; add 1 lb. of brown sugar, and boil 10 minutes more; then strain and bottle while hot. It will be ready for drinking when cold. It should be kept in a cool place. Dried horchound may be used instead of hops. Cost, 3d. per gallon. Ginger beer.—Four 2 gallons of boiling water over 1 lb. of lump sugar, 1 oz. of bruised ginger, two lemons sliced, let it stand till lukewarm, then add one tablespoonful of brewer's barm, or one small teaspoonful of baker's barm; let it stand twelve hours, then bottle it. It will be ready for use in 24 hours. Cost, 4d. per gallon. Boiling water poured on a few slices of lemon, with a little sugar, makes a refreshing drink. Butter milk should be more used as a drink. One ounce of coffee and half an ounce of sugar, in two quarts of water, is a very thirst quenching drink; so is cold tea, but neither of these is so supporting as the oatmeal drink. It is quite a mistake to suppose that beer or spirits give strength. They do give a spurt to a man, but that quickly goes off and spurts, in hard heavy work, too often made, certainly lessen the working powers.
