

The Largest, The Ablest, The Best Religious and Literary Weekly. The Most Influential Religious Organ in the States.—The Spectator, London, Eng.

THE INDEPENDENT is one of the best papers in the world. Its good points are many and striking. They have only to be stated to be appreciated and for proof of our claims appeal may be taken to any of the fifty-two issues of the year. Any number of THE INDEPENDENT will show that its contents are marked by ABILITY, VALUE AND INTEREST.—The great thinkers, the great story-writers, the great poets, men of the highest reputation in all departments of human knowledge, make up its list of contributors. Religion, philosophy, science, literature, art, travel, discoveries, stories, and all conceivable topics are embraced in the contents, and every body old or young, learned and unlearned, without regard to sex, employment or condition, will find something of special interest in every issue.

COMPREHENSIVENESS.—It is a religious, literary, an educational, a story, an art, a scientific, an agricultural, a financial and a political paper combined.

THE INDEPENDENT is tied to no denomination; it is the organ of no clique or party in state or church. It is free, therefore, to discuss all questions, and to speak its mind candidly. It is not swayed by fear or favor. It is a vigorous defender of the Evangelical faith, it preaches practical righteousness, and earnestly supports all moral reforms. All its columns—the sobering as well as the cheering—are free from everything of doubtful or objectionable character. No matter what a person's religious, political, or professional opinions may be, if he desires to keep up with the times and know what the brightest minds are thinking of the latest news, or what the world at large is doing—he should read THE INDEPENDENT.

The Welcome Back. Sweet is the hour that brings us home, Where all will spring to meet us. Where hands are striving as we come To be the first to greet us. When the world has spent its frown and wrath And care been sorely pressing, 'Tis sweet to turn from our roaming path And find a fireside blessing. Ah, joyfully dear is the homeward track, If we are but sure of a welcome back!

What do we seek on a dreary way, Though lonely and benighted, If we know there are lips to chide our stay And eyes that will beam love-lighted? What is the worth of your diamond ray To the glance that flashes pleasure— When the words that welcome back betray We form a heart's chief treasure? Oh, joyfully dear is our homeward track, If we are but sure of a welcome back!

The Oldest House in America.

The Old Craddock mansion, a brick building standing less than four miles from the business centre of Boston, is the oldest house in the United States, and although more than 250 years old is still in a good state of preservation. Craddock's people came into a wilderness inhabited by wild beasts and Indians. It is likely that they classed these together, and thought them all wild beasts. But they deemed the Indians the more dangerous, and they built their house accordingly. It was of bricks made on the spot, roughly but well. These bricks are only a little larger than those made to-day in the yards close by, and one finds it hard to believe that they have laid there 251 years. The walls have that streaked look which all our very old brick houses have, just as if some Titian had thrown half a dozen hogheads of whitewash at the house for the fun of it. But the most interesting thing about the walls is their thickness, eighteen inches solid! This of course was for protection against the wily savage. In either end were high chimneys, but one of these has made way for a modern chimney. In the other the fireplaces are just as they were made, big enough to hold high logs. The brick oven close by, still bakes well, or did the last time it was used. The crane on which were hung the pots and kettles is still in its place. Underneath part of the house is a small cellar, with heavy arches here and there. The beams show in all the rooms. The largest of them are held to the walls by iron braces. The garret is unfinished and is lighted only by a small skylight and two windows in one end. The timbers seem sound enough, but one end of the house decayed so that it had to be rebuilt a while ago and one storey additions at that end destroy somewhat the antique effect. The oval porticoes have been stopped up. The windows are small and there are half a dozen panes in each sash. As they have been enlarged somewhat you can imagine how dark the house must have been when it was built. The roof has swerved a little, and a dormer window is gone. But all these changes have not affected the exterior to any great extent, and it looks to-day much as it did when Matthew Craddock's plantation was flourishing.

NOTES. Not the promissory, but facts about WELCOME SOAP, an article that does not contain one particle of the adulterations used to reduce the cost of "Pure Goods," but does possess the value of legitimate Washing Qualities, the demand for which proves the advantage gained by the use of the genuine over Soaps of doubtful character. None should be deceived even by Red and Yellow Wrappers, or any of the imitations of the WELCOME, as a pair of clasped hands is stamped on every bar. Made by CURTIS, DAVIS & CO.
