Study Of Canadian Health To Be Job For Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — Twenty-one national church, labor, welfare, business, farm and student organizations will be asked to sponsor a permanent committee to study the health needs of Canadians.

At the end of a four-day working conference on health services, delegates agreed to consult their organizations about setting up the committee. Until the conference steering committee receives the reaction the duties of any committee will remain unclear.

But many delegates indicated it should study the whole field of health to determine future requirements for manpower, equipment and administrative structure. There would also be some means to communicate the information to the organizations and then to the memberships.

The main purpose of this conference was to study the Hall royal commission report on health services and to hear the views of doctors, public health experts and economists on the report. The committee studies would supplement the Hall commission's work.

DISSENTING VIEW
Most speakers talked as though Canada soon will have a publicly-administered medical care insurance program covering physicians services. But before the adjournment a spokesman for the health insurance companies offered a dissenting view.

C. G. White of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Ottawa said it might be wiser to leave the provision of medical insurance to private carriers so governments can concentrate their money on educating medical personnel and financing research.

He said private, voluntary plans preserve the citizen's right to choose whether he wants to buy medical insurance.

Private companies are bending every effort to provide a good service and more than 72 per cent of the population has some kind of coverage, he added.

W. Clarke Macdonald of the United Church of Canada in Toronto said province-wide and regional conferences modelled on the Ottawa meeting should be held by the same sponsoring organizations across the country.

Orbit Of Canada's Alouette Only Two Per Cent Off Path

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—The orbit of Canada's Alouette II satellite is less than two per cent off its planned path, the Defence Research Board said Thursday.

Since its Sunday night launching at Vandenberg air force base in southern California, Canada's second orbiting spacecraft has had a few shakedown problems. But none were due to the satellite itself.

"We had a few problems due to ground stations but they are essentially cleared up now," said Dave Boulding, satellite controller at the DRB's telecommunications station at nearby Shirley Bay.

Mr. Boulding said latest orbital figures show Alouette II's path around the world takes it to a maximum altitude of 1,850 miles, compared to planned figures of 1,866 and 308.
