ELEGY

ON THE DEATH OF HENRY WRIGHT, WHICH TOOK PLACE AT CHERRY VALLEY, LOT 49, ON JUNE 22, 1882.

Hark listeners to the murmuring wind, a knell is in the air,
Another soul has burst its bonds from this abode of care;
From busy scenes of future life, a soul has fled away;
What once was bright and beautiful is now a form of clay.
Whoever feels the hand of death, though he be great or small,
Must quit the troubles of this life, and answer to his call;
Though we part a much loved friend, we lose a cherished one,
The call of death must be obeyed: "God's holy will be done."

Henry Wright, of tender youth, of vigor, and of bloom,
Has by the hand of destiny been consigned to the tomb;
While in the midst of earthly hope his soul has fled away,
And what was once so full of hope is cold and souless clay.
Oh! where's the light of tender age that lit this manly brow?
And where the beauty that was his; Oh! where have they flown now?
Gone from those earthly troubles, no more with us sojourn,
Gone from the friendship of this world, leaving his friends to mourn.

A modest youth, of promise great, a model life begun;
A mother's love, a father's hope, a dutcous first-born son,
A brother's strength, a sister's pride, to every want attend;
To many an acquaintance, to every one a friend;
Descended not from kings or thrones, nor of a high estate,
But adorned with better graces—"the good alone are great,"
By the loss his death has caused, and by his early call,
Caused many a friend to sorrow, and many a tear to fall.

'Midst many a rending sob, and many a scalding tear,
They bade a last farewell, and laid him on his bier;
And through those sloping valleys, and by those murmuring rills,
Where in life he loved to wander and view those fertile hills.
They bore him to his resting place to lay him in the tomb,
Where man has found a resting place and earth has lost its gloom;
Beneath the lofty tower shades a grave is given him,
Near by the grand cathedral of great Saint Joachim.

And here upon this solemn scene is made a solemn plight,
The choir chants forth its funeral lay, the Church performs its rite;
'Tis this! the last! no more to plod;
'Tis here he rests beneath the sod—
Among the tombs where many sleep,
Where sorrowing friends oft pray and weep;
And this our prayer: with peace be blest,
His soul live with its God, and his body be at rest.

To those sorrowing parents, and to those friends so dear,
We turn with thoughts of pity and shed a silent tear;
To relieve those stricken hearts a fervent wish will be,
We join our hearts in sorrow and lend our sympathy;
And that those still remaining ones for, many future years,
Will be as stars of solace and dry those scalding tears;
Till friends shall meet their friends again, and all may see their own,
Where trouble is unheard of and sorrow is unknown.

EDWARD C. GRANT.

Useful Hints for Measuring Land.

Almost every farmer has some way of measuring land, and the most common is to step off five paces for a rod and call sixty by sixty-five paces an acre. For ordinary purposes this mode will answer, but when the exact measurement of a piece of land is desired it cannot be depended upon as being accurate.

A light pole just sixteen and a half feet long is a cheop and convenient measure, but a four rod tape line is much better.

An exact acre can be found by the following table of distances:—

A plot of ground, eighty yards wide by sixty-nine and one-half yards long contains one acre.

A plot of ground seventy yards wide by sixty-nine and one-seventh yards long, contains one acre.

A plot of ground five yards wide by 958 yards wide contains one acre.

A plot of ground 40 yards wide by 121 yards contains one acre.

A plot of ground 220 feet long by 193 feet wide contains one acre.

A plot of ground 440 feet long by 99 feet wide contains one acre.

A plot of ground 240 feet long by 181½ feet wide contains one acre. One acre contains 160 square rods or 43,560 square feet.

One rod contains 2,025 square yards, 57,225 square feet.

The Globe estimates the revenue of the Dominion for the fiscal year which has just closed at $32,000,000, and proceeds to contrast it with the revenue of $22,375,000 collected in 1878, the last year of the Mackenzie Government, drawing the inference that the taxation has been augmented by more than $9,000,000. In order to ascertain the increase in the whole taxation the deficit of 1878 ought properly to be added to the revenue of that year, since it practically involved a burden upon the people through the necessary addition to the public debt thus occasioned. But for the purposes of comparison of the relative taxation at different periods, it would be quite as reasonable to contrast the revenue collected in 1867 with that obtained last year. The real measure of the burden imposed by the Government is not the gross revenue, but the taxation per head of the population. To adopt the reasoning of the Globe is to assume that the country has neither increased in population, wealth or the individual prosperity of the people since 1878, a pretention which is palpably absurd. The actual taxation to-day is no greater than it was in 1876, 1877 and 1878, if the deficit of these years on the one hand, and the surplus of the last year on the other are deducted.

ANALYTICAL SANITARY INSTITUTION
54, Holborn-viaduct, E.C., London, Aug. 8, '79;

REPORT on the LORNE HIGHLAND WHISKEY:

"We have visited the bottling stores of Greenlees Brothers, and have selected from the vats, samples of their Lorne Highland Whisky, and have subjected them to careful examination and analysis. The samples were very fragrant, mellow, and of pleasant flavor, and possessed all the characteristics of pure and well-matured Scotch Whisky of the first quality."
