Delay On Suez Is Aid To Nasser's Weak Pocketbook

By J. M. Roberts
Associated Press News Analyst

Behind the scenes as Britain and France seek to put full steam behind their Suez policies is a matter of money as well as principles.

Every day that the discussions delay the final showdown puts Egypt's Nasser in better shape at a point where he is weakest—the pocketbook.

Before nationalization of the canal Egypt was getting about seven per cent of its take. Now it's about 40 per cent. The rest, paid by countries which refuse to let their ships pay Nasser, goes into the blocked accounts of the old Suez Company in Britain, France and now the United States.

The old company has no intention of paying Nasser anything out of these funds. Nasser has no intention of paying off the old company's shareholders until there is a settlement of the overall political question of the canal. Then he intends to claim the blocked funds and use them to pay off. Right now they amount to some £55,000,000 and are growing. About £64,000,000 is needed on the basis of the estimate of share values when nationalization was decreed. Thus Nasser, if he continues to operate the canal for a while, will by his own bookkeeping get the waterway for nothing.

BIG PROBLEM

The status of the blocked funds under international law, however, is a matter that may be long in solution.

But every day that he holds on between now and any settlement which recognizes Egypt's sovereignty over the canal puts Nasser in better shape to withstand the economic forces which the Allies are preparing to bring against him.

The decision of Britain and France to press the issue before the United Nations, getting the machinery started even while the users' association still is being organized, indicates the speed they consider necessary to parry Nasser's consolidation of his position.

There is no expectation that the Security Council will be able to adopt any resolution in the face of Russian support for Nasser.

Hi-Hi Fellowship Rally Held At YMCA Saturday

Youth numbering over one hundred strong gathered at the Charlottetown Y.M.C.A. Saturday night for their fall Hi-Y Fellowship rally. Members representing nine Hi-Y Chapters from Q.C.H.S. and Prince of Wales College came to-gether under the devotional theme of "Christ Our Pilot." Centered on the famous painting of Warner Sallman, the devotional period opened with the singing of the Hi-Y hymn "Create, Maintain, Estend." This was followed by Scripture read by Hughie MacLean and a prayer by Connie Davies. With a color slide of the famous painging projected in a candle-light atmosphere, an interpretation of Christ Our Pilot" was read by John Fielding. The singing of. "Jesus, Savior, Pilot Me." by six Hi-Y girls and the hymn "Guide Me Oh Thou Great Jehovah" closed the worship period.

During the program part of the rally the members heard reports from their three delegates to the seventh Canadian Hi-Y Assembly at Lake Couchiching, Ont. Wayne MacDonald, Gail Partridge and Ronald Storey, Miss MacDonald and Miss Partridge related events of the assembly and in particular the Fire of Friendship service and resolutions adopted that will guide Hi-Y policies in Canada for the next two years. Ron Storey spoke on Hi-Y as an international Christian movement and the place and responsibility individuals have in it. He left a stirring challenge with the members to live and uphold the purpose of Hi-Y.

The social part of the evening consisted of singing, dancing and refreshments. Club mentors present were Miss Ruth Boswell, Bruce Hodgins, Gordon Baker and Mr. and Mrs Charles Ballem.

Hi-Y is the official Y.M.C.A. program for Hi-Y school youth. Nine clubs meet weekly at the local Y.M.C.A. and they have as their purpose "to create, maintain and extent in the home, school and throughout the commmunity high standard of Christian Character." Its platform is clean sports, clean speech, clean scholarship and clean living.

Professor Thinks He Has Age Of Universe Fixed

HAMBURG (Reuters) — The first day of creation was about five billion years ago, a professor told a scientific congress here Monday.

Prof. Albrecht Unsoeld, a German astro-physicist, said scientists had been able to fix this date with a "comparatively small" margin of error — about 150,000,000 years each way.

He told the German Society of Biologists and Physicians that two things enabled scientists to work out the date:

1. The speed of the spiral nebulae (luminous gaseous or stellar matter) which are hurling away into outer space from a gigantic explosion which scientists believe produced the universe.

2. By working out when naturally radioactive elements were produced. This can be done with a fair amount of accuracy by checking how much of their radioactivity has been lost. Such elements lose radioactivity at a known rate.

Unsoeld said scientists believe that the explosion that started everything produced temperatures of 10,000,000 degrees centigrade.

Since the explosion the universe, according to Einstein's theory, has been constantly expanding.

Covehead Road Contract Awarded

George MacKay, Minister of Highways. Present for the opening were Hon. B. Earle MacDonald, Provincial Secretary - Treasurer, Mr. E. K. Kennedy, chief clerk for the Department of Highways and several of the interested contractors.

Nasser Makes Counter-Move In Note To U.N. On Suez Issue

By ARHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Egypt charged Monday that British and French actions in the Suez Canal dispute threaten world peace and asked for urgent United Nations curbs on them.

Egypt's President Nasser thus made his diplomatic countermove 48 hours before the Security Council meets in New York to hear the request Britain and France made Sunday for UN action on Suez.

Egypt's manoeuvre to avoid the role of defendant at Wednesday's UN meeting apparently caught the British government by surprise.

The French-British request for a Security Council meeting referred to Egypt's seizure of the canal July 26 as unilateral action in violation of the Suez Canal of 1888. That convention assured freedom of passage through the canal for all nations.

EGYPTIAN CHARGES

The Egyptian note to the Security Council asked it to consider "actions against Egypt by some powers, particularly France and the United Kingdom, which constitute a danger to international peace and security and are serious violations of the charter of the United Nations."

These actions were not spelled out. But Egypt has turned heavy criticism on the French and British military buildup in the Mediterranean, particularly on the British Isle of Cyprus, since the canal dispute arose.

Egypt also has attacked an original 18-power plan for international control of the canal as a declaration of war. That plan has been watered down to a Suez Canal Users Association. Egypt has not yet reacted officially to the milder users plan.

Meanwhile, there were undertones for mediation of the dispute with India largely cast in the role of middleman.

Arguing Britain's case in a television broadcast, Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd said Monday night presentation of the issue before the Security Council Wednesday would be a "test of the United Nations" in its ability to preserve justice and international law.

Rallying to Egypt's support, Syrian and Saudi Arabian chiefs of state declared their solidarity with Egypt at conclusion of a three-power Arab "summit" meeting.

To Purchase Flags For Scouts & Cubs

A decision to purchase flags for the Scouts and Cubs was reached at the first seasonal meeting of the Mothers Auxiliary of the Basilica Scouts and Cubs held recently with the president, Mrs. Roy McCabe, presiding. Mrs. M. MacDonald was named to investigate size and prices and Mr. Abe Zakem, Scout Leader, to purchase them.

Following reports of the secretary and treasurer Mr. Zakem then told the meeting of accommodations for Scout meetings and Mrs. G. Mitchell and Mrs. C. Hynes were appointed to interview Rev. P. F. MacDonald to arrange for a chaplain for the boys.

A fund raising project, the sale of Christmas cards, was discussed and it was found that the supply of cards purchased for the mothers to sell fell short of the number needed and more had been ordered.

Various committees were formed for the new season as follows: Ways and Means, Mrs. J. Lawlor, chairman, Mrs. N. MacNevin, Mrs H. McKenna, Mrs. J. Dorsey and Mrs. R. Wellings. Telephone, Mrs. A. MacKinnon, Mrs. J. Dorsey, Mrs. J. Howatt, Mrs. J. Pineau, Mrs. F. Saunders, Mrs. P. McIntyre, Mrs. McQuaid, Mrs. C. Hynes and Mrs. P. Hoy. Sewing: Mrs. Mullally, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. W. Murphy. Sick: Mrs. Arsenault and Mrs. McQuaid. Lunch committee for the October 16th meeting is Mrs. J. Lawlor, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Hynes and Mrs. Hoy.
