SOME 240 male and female members of No. 20 Queen Charlotte High School Cadet Corps took part yesterday in the Corps' annual inspection at Memorial Field in Charlottetown. Heading the official inspecting party was Col. K. M. Johnston, ED. Yesterday's program included cadet demonstrations in bren gun handling, first aid, map reading and signalling. Highlight of the afternoon was the presenation of proficiency awards to the cadets.

Q. Charlotte HS Cadets Said 'Credit To School'

"A credit to yourselves and to your school," was how Col. K.M. Johnston, ED., summed up yesterday's demonstrations put on by No. 20 Queen Charlotte High School Cadet Corps at Memorial Field. Col. Johnston was inspecting officer at the corps' annual inspection.

"You were very impressive," the inspecting officer said. "Your steadiness, marching, drilling and demonstrations left little to be desired. In years gone by this corps has had a tremendous record and I am pleased that you have carried it on.

"The training you have received as cadets will never do you any harm and it could do you much good. Once again, it was a great pleasure to inspect you and I congratulate you on a fine showing."

Making up the inspection party which reviewed some 240 male and female cadets were Col. Johnston; Major J.G. Turnbull, cadet officer of Eastern Command; Capt. H.J. DeCoste, cadet training officer; Capt. Eric Temple; Lt.-Col. E. A. MacCarey, 5 Signals Regiment, Capt. Norman MacLeod, QCHS cadet training officer, and Capt. J.E. Ready.

One of the highlights of the afternoon was the presentation of proficiency and marksmanship awards to the corps and some of its individual members.

The Strathcona shield, donated by Strathcona Trust to the provincial cadet corps that showed the greatest proficiency in cadet activities during 1961, was received on behalf of the QCHS Corps by Major Douglas Kitson from Co. Johnston.

Major Kitson also accepted on behalf of the corps the Strathcona shield for the cadet corps that scored highest in national marksmanship competitions in 1961 from the inspecting officer.

Individual marksmanship awards were presented to cadets Donald Carr, Douglas Kitson, Rodney Jones, Wayne MacKinnon, Gail Storey, Connie Colpitts and Susan Farquharson.

Five cadets were presented certificates for completion of a six weeks' summer course at Camp Aldershot, N.B. They were Douglas Kitson, Hessell MacLean, Wayne Schelyer, Charles Crockett and Gary Gencheff.

Winding up a big day for the cadets, the corps' annual dance was held last night at QCHS auditorium. During the evening, more presentations of proficiency awards were made.

Narcotics Problem's Details Are Outlined To Rotary Club

Commissioner L.H. Nicholson, MBE, LL.D., (RCMP retired), guest speaker at the weekly luncheon of Rotary at the Charlottetown Hotel yesterday gave a highly informative talk on his experience as a member of the United Nations narcotics survey mission which he headed in the Middle East.

"Two countries investigated are the principal victims and others suffer to a lesser degree," Commissioner Nicholson said. "Egypt estimates it has 1,000,000 narcotic users or addicts, 100,000 using opium, 900,000 hashish. Until 1955 opium smoking was so common in Iran that the country was threatend with a moral and physical breakdown. This in a country with a population about the size of ours. In Tehran alone it is said that there were over 2,000 public smoking places," he said.

"In 1955, Iran took courageous and aggressive steps to stop the traffic and certainly it has made remarkable progress. It is a fine example of what may be done by determined and persistent measures," the speaker said.

In other Middle East countries, there is some illicit use of narcotics but it is not extensive and not a special problem, he added.

"The stuff comes almost entirely from within the region itself and much is exported to the North American market," the speaker said. "Indeed I would say that most of the heroin used in Canada today comes from the Middle East. Lebanon is the main source of hashish the finished product flows by land and sea routes to the big market in Egypt by motor vehicle through Syria and Jordan, by camel train over the Negev desert, by devious and difficult means over the Suez, thence by camel or vehicle again to the Nile valley".

Opium for the legal world market is grown and produced in Turkey (186 tons in 1959) and while much effort is spent on controls, there have been significant leakages. The traffickers offer many times the price the government monopoly is able to pay. The final stage of refining and converting to morphine and heroin is sometimes carried out in France and Italy, thence the product comes to North America, the speaker asserted.

In the report of the survey mission reference was made to the many clever ways in which detection is avoided by the smugglers. Some groups do not hesitate to resist by armed force if threatened with apprehension, he stated.

The commission was composed of five members, truly an international set-up, consisting Commissioner Nicholson, a senior customs officer from Lebanon, an international lawyer and former deputy director of police from Holland, a senior official of the department of justice from Turkey, a famous Anglo-Egyptian police official, now head of the antol-narcotics bureau, League of Arab States.

The speaker was introduced by chairman, Norman Lowther and thanked by co-chairman, Reuel LePage.

Boy Scout officials, guests of Rotary included F.A. Large, Orin Simons and W.R. Burnett, R.E. Jenkins, president P.E.I. Rifle Association and J.J. Rabow of Montreal were also guests.

New City School Is Named 'St. Jean'

The name of the new school being built on Upper Queen Street as a replacement for Queen Square School will be St. Jean, it was announced last night following a meeting of the Charlottetown School Board.

Dr. J.H. Maloney, a member of the board, explained the name was chosen because of its historical significance, St. Jean having been the original French name of Prince Edward Island.

As a result of the school board decision, two of the three new schools will reflect Island history in their names. The new West Kent School being built in the Brighton area was named after Edward Duke of Kent for whom the Island was also named.

Dr. Maloney also announced the cornerstone of the new Prince Street School will be laid the first week in September by Col. L.T. Lowther, for many years a principal of PSS and Queen Charlotte High School and now retired.

The cornerstone of St. Jean School will be laid in September at a ceremony at which former QSS principal and present principal of Birchwood High School, Lt.-Col. Leo F. MacDonald, will preside.

It is expected that West Kent School will be open by October.

Defence Counsellor Terms Prosecution 'Unconscionable'

"The most unconscionable prosecution I have ever sat in on," defence counsellor John P. Nicholson said as he lashed out at fisheries officers during the case of Francis James MacNally Ten Mile House, held in Queens Couunty magistrate's court last night before Magistrate James B. Johnston, QC.

Following the hearing of evidence, Magistrate Johnston convicted the accused of fishing smelts with a bag net without a license. He was fined $15 and costs or five days. Gerald Foster appeared for the fisheries department.

Fisheries officer Leigh N. Darrach testified that on Jan. 22 he and fisheries officer, Elmore MacKay, were on patrol in the East River area and arrived at MacNally's Wharf. He said that a few days before they had seen two sets of poles in the ice with a bag net attached to each pole.

He stated that when they arrived at the wharf they saw two people out on ice, Mr. MacNally and his nephew, Francis MacNally and they were emptying smelts from a bag net. The accused, the witness stated, admitted he owned the net and that he did not have a license. He was told that he might be charged.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Nicholson, the witness agreed with Mr. Nicholson that it was the usual practise for fishermen to wait to see if the ice would hold them before they got a license.

CARRY LICENSES

When asked by Mr. Nicholson if they sold licenses to fishermen while they were on patrol, the witnesss stated that he could not recall doing so but they did carry licenses with them.

Mr. Darrach was asked if he remembered selling a license to a man at Cranberry Wharf to which he replied that he did and that he thought his name was Doyle.

It was revealed that nets were set at Cranberry Wharf and Mr. Doyle admitted that he owned one of the nets that was set. The witness stated that Mr. Doyle asked to buy a license and was sold one.

Mr. Nicholson told the witness that he and Mr. MacKay knew Mr. Doyle's nets were set but they did not prosecute him "because you didn't want to prosecute him." The officer replied that Mr. Doyle was not seen fishing.

Mr. MacKay corroborated the evidence of Mr. Darrach and stated that Mr. MacNally never asked to buy a license and said that he was going in to town to get one that day.

The witness stated that they went to Cranberry Wharf a number of times to see who was operating the set nets but there was never anyone around.

HELPED NEPHEW

Taking the stand on his own behalf, the accused said he helped his nephew put out the nets a week before and had arranged with him that the nephew would fish the nets and keep what he got as the price was very low, and it was not worthwhile for two to fish.

He said he offered to buy a license but one of the officers told him he had no receipt book. He said he went to town and got a license in the name of his nephew as he wasn't going to do any fishing.

The second defence witness was the nephew, James Francis MacNally, who stated fisheries officers did not ask him for a license. He said his uncle asked to buy one and the officer said he had no receipt book and turned around and walked away.

The witness further stated that it was the custom in the past to buy a license whenever they had the opportunity to get to town or when a fisheries officer came out in their area. He said in the past he had bought licenses from fisheries officers on the last day of the season.

Mr. Nicholson stated that he could not understand the conduct of the fisheries officers and that it was "manifestly unfair to single out one man."

Following the summation by Mr. Nicholson and Mr. Foster, another charge that of fishing oysters from a public bed during a closed season, was taken under consideration by the magistrate until Monday, June 11.

Francis James MacNally was also charged with fishing for oysters in a closed season to which he entered a not guilty plea. The case was adjourned until June 11.

One Injured In Collision

A two-car collision on the Southport side of the Hillsboro Bridge about 9.15 last night reportedly sent one man to hospital.

It is understood that one car plowed into the rear of the other and both cars suffered heavy damage. It is believed there were three people in one vehicle and two in the other.

RCMP are investigating the accident and the names of the injured man and drivers were not available.

It is understood the injured man comes from a rural area and efforts were being made late last night to contact relatives before the name could be released.

Hay Crop Said Poor

P.E.I. farmers may be facing one of the poorest hay crops in many years, L.W. Roper reported yesterday after driving more than 300 miles which took him over a large portion of the province last week.

"I didn't see one field with a sign of clover in the more than 300 miles I travelled" he emphasized.

Speaking as Livestock Director, he wants to urge cattlemen to sow plenty of such crops as oats, peas and vetches to provide the extra feed the short hay crop will make necessary.

Even the normal grass crop looks poor at this date, with stubble still making the fields look white in most of the areas through which he travelled, Mr. Roper stated.
