Farmers Union Plans Are Laid

By NEIL A. MATHEWSON. (Vacation comes up next week which means that this column will not appear again until Friday July 20.)

AN ORGANIZED effort is being planned now to develop a strong branch in this province of the Farmers Union. The idea was developed at a meeting called here in May...

Federation officers and supporters will probably resent the idea, but they have no reason to laugh it off. Opposition to the federation exists in many parts of the province...

Some of the most ardent Union promoters here contend that it will be one organization in a short time. One day the federation will disappear within 12 months...

The Farmers Union was developed originally to get "grass roots" farmers represented. The Canadian Federation of Agriculture was argued to represent large and with farmers in various parts of the province...

The federation here takes credit for any advancements in rural farm life. Union backers say they are not doing, or at least not very much. There are other charges and counter claims. But that's a future reference.

Can Identify Signature Of 1895

HAROLD PALMER, Charlottetown, gave me an interesting item this week which concerned my friend W. MacDonell. It is a return of the name appeared several times previously in this column.

Mr. Palmer, retired Judge of the Probate Court who has returned to the practice of law, was looking for someone who could identify or attempt to identify the signature of Duncan Crawford who witnessed the will of John MacDonell, late of Antigonish, N.S., in 1895...

"Short Lobsters" And One Monster

A RECENT news story emphasized the poaching and the "short lobster" fishing that is done in the Western Prince area. One estimate said that 50 out of 100 boats were taking short lobsters. Another figure says that 100 out of 100 boats were taking short lobsters.

I THINK I should say first of all that these people are not well off. The man I talked to said that he had been fishing for 30 years before he retired, and he had poached every one of those years. He's one of our most law abiding citizens, except for the poaching laws, which he is convinced are completely unnecessary.

My friend can see little reason in throwing the small lobsters back. "Not more than you can eat," he said. "The bottom," he told me, "is getting better all the time." The man I talked to said that he had been fishing for 30 years before he retired, and he had poached every one of those years.
