Canadiens Still Sizzle

MONTREAL Canadiens are surely fired up and that recent victory over Leafs at Toronto was a clear indication that these Habs are dead serious about finishing first in this National Hockey League.

The odds favored the Leafs on Wednesday. They were long overdue to break out of a scoring slump and nobody would have been greatly surprised if the men of Toe Blake had been the victims of such a splurge. However, it just never materialized as the Montrealers not only beat the hometown Leafs but they increased the humiliation by blanking them.

Each day Toronto's chances of repeating as first place finishers grow dimmer. They are eight big points back of Montreal with only one game in hand. Before last night's Chicago-Detroit tussle, the Imlachmen men were eight behind the Hawks with two games in hand. Of course, this morning they have played three less than has Chicago.

Any way you look at it, the Leafs have a really difficult road to travel. If they have any notions at this time of overtaking Chicago and Montreal, they must start winning hockey games on the road as well as at home. Right now they find it hard to snare a victory before the friendly folks at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Well-Earned Victory

IT wasn't any luck that won for Canadiens on Wednesday night. They played better hockey than did the Leafs and deserved their triumph. It's true that Toronto did miss some excellent chances to beat Charlie Hodge but the Habs had their opportunities at the other end of the rink. Old Johnny Bower surely wasn't the goat in this contest.

You can't win games without scoring goals and the would-be-producers of goals in that Leafs' lineup are surely not embarrassing the opposing goaltenders to any great extent. Fellows like Mahovlich, Keon, Pulford, Nevin, Kelly are not getting too much of the spotlight. Without their goals, Leats can't get back in the thick of hings.

Montreal is playing like a team inspired. They somehow have the idea that they can beat anybody and they are making a pretty good job of doing just that. They haven't believed a word about how incompetent they should be. If they've read these stories, they apparently figured they were nothing more than misprints. They are fired up like the Montrealers of old and are confident they can take care of anybody in the loop.

It's not a foolish confidence but a confidence that comes from a club that has fine abilities and is showing those abilities to their opposition.

Big Day For Canada

THIS is the day of Canada's biggest test at the Olympics.

Father Bauer's youthful band of hockeyists take on the Czechs at Innsbruck tonight (that's 3.30 this afternoon local time) and a victory in this one would make tomorrow's struggle with the Soviets a tremendous one.

Since the Bauer-coached lads crossed the ocean, the Czechs have thumped them in exhibition tussles. However, here in Canada, the Canadians were able to get the better of the visiting Czechs and Swedes.

Against the weaker teams, the Canadians haven't looked too good. However, they did win all their five games and that's what matters. Today, however, they surely must give their greatest performance of the Olympics because these Czechs are hardy foes.

But folks here in Canada still have loads of confidence in these boys of ours who will play in Innsbruck today. They believe they will rise to the occasion and make the Czechs taste defeat this afternoon.

We certainly want to see them do just that but we will not lose any of our respect for them if they fail in their attempt. To date, they have been great representatives and have done an excellent job of selling Canada to these Europeans.

But don't go giving up on today's game with the Czechs or Saturday's with the Russians. The Canadians have a lot of fine hockey talent and they have more desire, we believe, than any other Olympic team Canada has ever sent over.

We figure they still can take all the marbles.

Bruins, Wings Are 4-0 Winners

BOSTON (AP)—Boston, a former Ranger patsy, toppled New York from fourth place in the National Hockey League in a 4-0 victory Thursday night.

Murray Oliver and Doug Mohns supplied the Boston punch while Eddie Johnston was outstanding in goal.

The victory was the second in 24 hours by the Bruins over the team which had lost only three of 15 decisions before Boston turned the tables 3-2 Wednesday night.

The twin Ranger setbacks let Detroit, which beat Chicago 4-0 Thursday night, move past the Rangers into fourth place.

Oliver knocked in a Tom Johnson shot at 18:06 of the first period. Mohns fired a 15-footer past Jacques Plante at 13:36 of the middle period.

Johnny Bucyk and Bobby Leiter added to the total in a fight-filled finale but by then the only question was the size of Boston's margin.

Johnston made 26 saves in fashioning his sixth shutout of the season. Five of them came in a critical shorthanded stretch early in the third period.

SUMMARY

First period: 1. Boston, Oliver 18 (Johnson, Dornhoefer) 18:06. Penalties—Neilson 4:42, Kurtenbach 7:22, Hebenton 14:50, Bathagate 15:37.

WINGS 4 CHICAGO 0

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings got three goals in the second period and went on to score a 4-0 National Hockey League victory over Chicago Black Hawks Thursday night.

The triumph, coupled with New York's loss to Boston by the same score, put the Red Wings in fourth place by a point over the Rangers.

It was Detroit's first win in its last six games.

After a scoreless first period, the Red Wings outshot the Black Hawks 18-4 in the middle session, with Larry Jeffrey, Floyd Smith and Parker MacDonald scoring the goals.

Bruce MacGregor got Detroit's final goal midway through the third period.

Detroit goalie Terry Sawchuk made 27 saves in recording his 96th career regular season shutout.

TWO MEN SHORT

MacDonald's goal came while Chicgo was two men short. Al MacNeil was chased at 16:52 and Red Fleming followed a little more than a minute later when he was charged with two minor penalties.

MacDonald beat Glenn Hall 41 seconds later from close in after the Chicago netminder had just stoppd him on a similar shot.

Chicago had a one-man advantage for almost four minutes early in the final period, but was unable to mount a serious rush against the Red Wings.

Chicago remains in a tie for the NHL lead with Montreal. But the Black Hawks have now played two more games than Montreal.

SUMMARY

First period — no scoring. Penalty—Smith 4:52.

Three Rinks Remaining In 'Silver D' Bonspiel

SUMMERSIDE — The Mary Nicholson rink of Montague remains undefeated, and are the pround owners of a 5 and 0 record after 4 days curling in the "Silver D" competition. Other rinks still remaining are Willa Somers of Summerside and Marion MacDonald of Charlottetown.

Drama rode high in the eight o'clock draw last night as two Summerside foursomes skipped by Shirley Dye and Willa Somers, carried down to the final end, deadlocked at 7-all. Willa had the last rock and each team had a stone roosting in the red circle close to merit a measurement, but with the Dye rink having the shot rock, according to the opinion of most of the onlookers. Willa Somers' final rock settled the controversy as it slid into the house, nudged the Somers stone, and rolled gently towards the button, a matter of inches nearer tha nthe Dye stone and it was one of those close, exciting finishes, wonderful to win but a heartbreaker to lose.

Marion MacDonald beat her Charlottetown fellow townsman, Iris MacLellan, in a game that was close in the early stages but broke wide open in the eighth end. Final score was 9-5.

In the afternoon the Montague rink, skipped by Mary Nicholson, hadn't too much difficulty disposing of the Charlottetown Marion MacDonald foursome 9-1.

In the morning Shirley Dye edged Flo MacLennan of RCAF 10-9 and Willa Somers and Ira MacLellan won over Anna Hayes and Vivian Sheen 8-6 and 9-5 respectively.

Today the Somers rink goes against the unbeaten Nicholson quartet and the winner takes on the Marion MacDoaold rink.

HUNTER'S CORNER

Disregard Of Regulations Is Disturbing Columnist

February, with its 29 days this year, is with us once again. January is now past history and on the whole was a typical winter month. December was a record breaker. The storm on the 19th, with wind gusts up to 110 miles per hour at times, was one to be remembered. If February weather is on a par with what January dished out we will have nothing to complain about. In my last column the question arose as to what useful purpose Closed Seasons achieved. Some biologists claim results are zero. This columnist is inclined to take this statement with a grain of salt but they are not altogether wrong. When are game birds introduced that are foreign to any country where they do not exist, or never have existed, unless strict protective measures are implemented and as strictly enforced, it's just a waste of time, energy and money.

In October 1929 when ten pairs of Hungarian partridge were liberated at the Old Stone Quarry on the Mount Edward penalties for game law infractions were just what the name implies... twenty-five dollars and costs plus the confiscation of the firearm involved. There were poachers who found out the hard way that it was far cheaper to buy a roast... in fact ten or fifteen roasts... than a ten or twelve ounce Hun got with a seven cent shotgun shell. At the moment game law observance no longer exists among an approximate 95 per cent of the gunning fraternity. There was a time a few years back when 10 per cent religiously obeyed game law regulations but an approximate one half of that percentage have fallen by the wayside. As one hunter informed me: "Two years ago I was hunting rabbits just before Christmas and passed within twenty yards of a big cock ruffed grouse in a tree. It was years since I tasted grouse but I held my fire. I hadn't travelled a hundred yards when another hunter trailing along behind shot it". He added: "It has reached the point where a hunter who religiously observes the game regulations is classed as 'a sucker'.

ARE PREPARED

Quite recently I learned of two hunters in their teens... they have been hunting now for three years... who set twelve dollars each aside to pay their fine and costs if caught in an infraction of game law regulations. They estimated that the odds against being caught were better than 100 to 1. They are still going strong. I know of instances where fines and costs for game law infractions have been returned. What inducement is there for a game officer to work his heart out when he gets 'slapped down' for performing an honest effort"?

There is a strong feeling manifest of late that some members of the Fish and Game Association, not all of course, but a sizable number, are more concerned with maintaining their hunting and angling privileges than they are with the future of our fish and game.

A month or more ago an announcement in the agenda of the Queens County Fish and Game Association Meeting stated that a reduction re: the daily bag limit on ducks would be discussed has aroused considerable comment and not too favourable at that. As one ardent duck and goose hunter commented: "The opening of the duck and goose season on September 30th was definitely for the birds. It should have been opened on October 15th... geese were not worth plucking before the fifteenth with the odd exception". The foregoing expression 'for the birds' is not to be taken too literally. Its a slang expression that is not complimentary and definitely 'off beat'. I was given to understand that Official Ottawa had no part in setting the Sepember 30th date but that it was the brain child of a few self styled game experts scattered from East Point to West Cape. Who dreamed up the closure of the season on Hungarian partridge last year? That is also a question that is asked of late.

If it had have been closed in 1961 it would have made sense but closing it in 1963, the year the coveys were making a marked comeback, has all the earmarks of a selfish motive and far removed from an honest conservation measure. Information gathered of late indicates it was brought into being in order to shut out U.S. hunters at the expense of a few local boys. If the season had have been open last year the legal kill would have been negligible... so microscopic an ordinary gunny sack would have held the lot. Hunting in season never bothered the Hungarian partridge even in the days when they were dumb as the proverbial oyster. The first year the season was opened on Huns it was a pot hunters field day. The coveys would sit up in the stubble like a flock of barnyard hens. All hunters had to do was to walk to within a range of twenty five or thirty yards and mow a swath through them. Some didn't even walk... they drove a car within a nice broadside range, turned down the windows and gave them the works.

By the time the next hunting season had come the majority of the coveys would squat tight down in the stubble, or grass in pasture land, and wait the shot out.

GOT SMARTER

They got smarter as the years rolled by and some wouldn't wait for the shot but took off at the high port and headed straight for the nearest swamp or woodlot. The first five or six years only the odd covey sought shelter in the woods but the trick soon caught on and from then on hunters earned all the Huns they bagged. It was in 1957, I was given to understand, that Diathane M-22 was first used as a potato top killer and from that year on they faded away like mist before the sun. The smart ones let the potato fields lie and took to the back country swamps and abandoned farms and last year (1963) coveys were observed worthwhile back country sections and abandoned farm areas in encouraging numbers. We had a top population of Huns in 1956. In 1957 they were an approximate fifty per cent below normal and were still on the toboggan until 1960. They appeared to hold their own in 1961 and in 1962, as noted in this column, our Huns showed definite signs of being on the comeback trail.

There was no doubt about it last year (1963)... the Huns were on the march once again and this was the signal for a closed season. Had the season tion would have met was a one been closed in 1958 the regulahundred per cent backing. Last year in southern Queens county alone this columnist has definite information of 37 coveys with an average of an approximate 15 to 16 members per covey... the smallest 11 and the peak 26. At the moment the sixty - five dollar question is: "Who dreams up those asinine game law regulations?"

City Youngsters Advance; Lose Exhibition Contest

Special to The Guardian

QUEBEC CITY — David met Goliath in Quebec's International Pee Wee hockey tournament here Thursday night and the giant was an easy victor.

Last year's grand champions from Ontario's Sault Ste Marie clashed with newcomers, Charlottetown Centennials, in an exhibition tussle and the Ontario lads emerged as 9-0 conquerors.

The Centennials, entered in 'B' competition in the tournament and winners of their only two section games, were outplayed but not outgamed by the classy Sault Ste Marie youngsters, all in their final year of Pee Wee competition.

Nearly 15,000 persons jammed the Coliseum which seats 12,000 and they gave the Charlottetownians a standing ovation before the referee dropped the puck for the first faceoff. The Centennials had richly earned the applause after a thrilling 6-5 overtime victory over Gatineau, Quebec, earlier in the day. That was the contest wnich found Centennials fighting from behind to tie the affair in the third and win the match on Colin Younker's tally at 2.10 of the sudden death overtime. Other scorers for the Prince Edward Islanders were Tommy Irwin, Barry MacKinnon, Bobby MacMillan, Dave Doiron and Billy Doherty. That thrilling triumph followed Tuesday's 6-0 decision over Orsainville, Quebec.

Officials with the Centennials were anything but downhearted. They were well pleased with the performance of their boys and are still confident they can clinch the 'B' championship. Right now Asbestos, P.Q. stands in the way. That semi-final clash comes this morning at 11.15 (Charlottetown time) and tne survivor of this match gets a berth in the 'B' finals.

Railbirds around the rink are giving the young Islanders a good chance to win their division. If they can conquer Asbestos, it's likely they'll face the tough squad from Toronto's Leaside.

The Centennials attended a Rotary luncheon yesterday and met such hockey notables as Roy 'Red' Storey and fromer, Gerry MacNeill. Following the luncheon Gerry conducted a tour of his hockey stick plant for the eager lads from the Prince Edward Island capital.

Coach Brian Lewis wasn't the least disgruntled after the 9-0 blanking. He was satisfied his boys played their best game of the week and he was looking forward to a triumph over today's opponents in the 'B' section.

Scott Allen 14; Youngest Winner

Congressman Seeks Ban On Studebakers

WASHINGTON (CP) — Congressman John Dent, Pennsylvania Democrat, has called for a U.S. ban against imports of Canadian-made Studebaker vehicles and parts but there appears to be little enthusiasm in Congress to support his demand.

Dent, who is well-known here as a protectionist, drafted a bill which would place an embargo against Studebaker products. This was sent to the House of Representatives ways and means committee last Dec. 10. There it has been gathering dust. Committee aides said Wednesday no action is in sight and no hearings are scheduled.

Dent said in an interview that he is not against trade with Canada. In fact, he believes that eventually the U.S. may have to join with Canada and other countries of the Western Hemisphere in a self - sufficiency trade bloc, restricting imports from Europe, Africa and Asia.

"If I were in the Canadian Parliament, I would fight just as hard against runaway Canadian industry that sets up operations in other countries."

Studebaker folded its automobile plant at South Bend, Ind., while expanding its operations at Hamilton, Ont., expecting to ship Canadian - made vehicles into the U.S. market.

Attempt To Incite Canadians Charged

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said Wednesday night that the Russian and Czechoslovakian hockey teams engaged in a deliberate program to incite the Canadian team and make its players angry while the Canadians were making their European tour prior to the Olympic Games.

But the Canadians did not take the bait, the minister told a press conference following a visit to the Olympic Games at Innsbruck, Austria.

"There was a deliberate program to incite the Canadians by the Czechs and Russians," said Miss LaMarsh. "Things were said in an attempt to make the Canadians mad."

The attempt to incite the Canadians was made because Canadian hockey players have a reputation for roughness, said Miss LaMarsh.
