

MR. AND MRS. ERNEST GRADY

Couple Exchange Vows At Holy Redeemer Ceremony

A pretty wedding was solemnized recently at Holy Redeemer Church when Theresa Sydella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hughes, St. Mary's Road, became the bride of Ernest Grady, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Grady, East Baltic. The ceremony was performed and the nuptial Mass celebrated by Rev. Thomas Traynor. Mrs. William Campbell supplied the wedding music and Miss Patsy Leightizer was soloist. The bride looked charming in a ballerina length gown of white satin. The fitted bodice featured a sabrina neckline and was trimmed with sequins and pearls. The long sleeves came to points over the hands. A coronet of pearls and sequins held her shoulder length veil of tulle illusion embroidered with gypure lace. She carried a bride's Prayer Book with a bouquet of deep pink sweetheart roses and satin streamers. Miss Margaret Hughes, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a dress of blue satin with white accessories. Mr. Louis Hughes, friend of the groom, was best man. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Queen Hotel. The bride's table was attractively decorated for the occasion and was centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. In the evening the bridal party motored to the home of the bride where a sumptuous supper was served. The couple left on a honeymoon trip to Toronto and United States. Prior to her marriage the bride was tendered a shower at the home of Mrs. Alden Birt by the staff of the Rendezvous Restaurant.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Wishbone Magic Lingers Despite The Passing Years

"Oh no, Ellen" James said at dinner "you don't catch me at that! Not this afternoon with winter coming and we wish so much straightening away yet to be done at the barns before everything's snug. Besides" he added with a chuckle "I'd rather be out in a blinding snowstorm than cut up chickens for canning. It's not in my line of work. I never am too fond of chicken or fowl anyway. I'd much rather eat herring." "I like chicken" Alex nodded smiling happily, he being our pleased dinner-guest. "This afternoon then the cooks at Alderlea went to their canning. "It's a great kitchen for the work" we commented to Jeanie, selecting the first bird from the number, prepared yesterday. "Yes" she smiled "the old-timers builded better than they ever suspected." She drained the sterilized tins in the sink and went then to set up the canner on a table close by. "They gave us no lack of space" she said. "Here are the knives" James offered, one foot on the threshold. "I've sharpened them. I'll help that much." "Come in, Granddaddy!" Alex invited. "No I haven't time to come in—nor the inclination" he added with a youngish grin. "You come out with me. Do you know what we're doing? We're building a stall in the stable." So pleasant the afternoon was for us with a door open to the merriness without. No more there of blossoms smile to us, or Autumn Bunt its bright hues. The trees, however, have caught a new glory. There is a grace now in the stark maples and birches, gold in the many branched willows and strength in the pretty-limbed oaks. How does one portion a chicken for canning? Legs or wings first—and always at Alderlea, we see that the wishbone set

Marriage Vows Exchanged In Fall Wedding Ceremony

A wedding of interest to many friends was solemnized on October 10th at the Presbyterian Manse Murray Harbour North, when Mary Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. MacLean of Iris, became the bride of Ivan, son of Mrs. Elmer Livingstone, and the late Clayton Buell, Hopefield. Rev. Carl Currie officiated. The bride was lovely in a ballerina length gown of pink nylon net and lace over taffeta. Her tiny rhinestone studded hat was pink. She wore pink nylon net gloves and her other accessories were navy, with a corsage of white carnations. Her only ornament was pearl ear-rings. Mrs. Ivan Buell, Hopefield, was her sister's only attendant. Her gown was ballerina-length blue taffeta with a rhinestone studded belt. She wore a small white hat, white gloves and other accessories in navy. Her corsage was white carnations. Mr. Harry Buell, brother of the groom was best man. For her daughters wedding Mrs. MacLean chose a fuchsia wool sheath dress. Mrs. Livingstone wore a blue bengaline dress. Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. A candlelight supper was served to 100 guests. For the occasion the dining room was tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers and wedding bells. The beautifully appointed supper table was centred with a three tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. A toast to the bride was proposed by the best man and responded to by the groom. During the supper hour wedding music was provided by Mrs. Holden MacLean at the organ. The guests spent the remainder of the evening by dancing for which music was provided by Cleve Hancock, Belle River, and Windsor Kennedy of Dartmouth. Amid a shower of confetti and good wishes bestowed on them by friends present the happy young couple departed on a honeymoon trip to points of interest in the Maritimes. For travelling the bride chose a red wool dress and many accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Buell will make their home in Hopefield.

Delicious Browned Pancakes That Any Child Can Make

A seven-year-old youngster we know delights in cooking pancakes. It's his specialty, his mother tells us, because it's the "one thing he cooks often enough to be really pretty good at."

BUILDING INTEREST Helping a child to develop a specialty is a fine way to build early interest in cooking. The youngster we know, whose specialty is pancakes, makes them nearly every Saturday morning. He started working at the range while standing on a sturdy box, with his mother right there with him. He now has his own electric pancake griddle situated on a low counter. All ingredients and equipment he needs are stored where he can reach them.

Here is his recipe. Measurements are level Pancakes: Beat 2 eggs; stir in 1 c. milk. Stir in 2-1/3 c. bisect mix and 2 tbs. dark corn syrup. Mix lightly until thoroughly dampened. Fold in 1/4 c. corn oil. Pour from pitcher onto medium hot griddle. When puffed up and bubbles begin to break, turn and cook other side. Makes 15 average-size pancakes. The pancakes brown evenly because corn syrup is beaten in. No butter is needed when eating, because corn oil is added to enliven pancakes.

THICK-POURING SYRUP The best kind of syrup to use on pancakes for children is a thick-pouring syrup such as light or dark corn syrup.
