BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess)

AN UNDERSTANDING AUNT

On earth below, in Heaven above, The one most precious thing is love. —Old Mother Nature.

Aunt Sally's woodhouse, opening from her kitchen, is small, and as neat as the kitchen itself. Should you see it in the day time you wouldn't even suspect that at night it became a popular night club. You never would suspect that for years furry folk had been coming there from far and wide, night after night. But so it was.

From early evening often to a late hour Aunt Sally played the part of hostess. Seated in a low chair with boxes placed to make steps to one side so that folks with short legs, like the Skunks, could easily get into her lap, she invited them to do this by holding a pan of milk or of other food. And they did so. They did it without hesitation. Sometimes perfect strangers among these furry visitors came in and were in her lap within a few minutes. You see, the first time they poked their noses inside the entrance they smelled love. You didn't know that love could be smelled? Well, it can be. So can fear. So can hate. Anyway, that is the way it seems for it is by their noses that the folks in fur know these things. For so long there had been so much love in that little woodhouse that the Coon folk and the Skunk folk, even the Rat and the Mouse folk, know it the moment they enter it. They know it by means of their noses. Their eyes might fool them. They couldn't always trust their ears, but their noses never fooled them.

Contract Bridge

HARD TO DECIDE

The problem West had in the following deal is a tricky one and baffling one.

West dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

- | | | | |
|---------|--------------|---------------|----------|
| ♠ K 5 | ♥ A 10 9 6 3 | ♦ A K Q 9 7 2 | ♣ 10 6 4 |
| ♠ A Q 9 | ♥ K Q J 8 | ♦ 7 4 | ♣ 10 6 4 |
| ♠ K 5 | ♥ A 10 9 6 3 | ♦ A K Q 9 7 2 | ♣ 10 6 4 |
| ♠ A Q 9 | ♥ K Q J 8 | ♦ 7 4 | ♣ 10 6 4 |

The bidding:
West 1♥ North 2♦ East 2♣ South 2♦

South fulfilled the six-diamond contract with ease, simply by finding the spade ace where it figured to be, in West's hand, because of his opening bid and rebid.

In the postmortem West said that he had seriously considered "saying" at seven clubs, but had decided against it because he hoped to defeat six diamonds.

Obviously, this hope of West's was not without foundation. The dilemma he was in recurs with great frequency, and there cannot be an entirely satisfactory solution. In this case, how could West be sure that if he sacrificed at the seven-level he would not simply be giving the opponents points instead of collecting points? (As West later explained privately to his partner, North was the aggressive sort of bidder who goes to a slam without fair assurance of success.)

But although there is no assured procedure for a player in West's position, there is such a thing as a policy which, in the long run, pays dividends. That policy is to outbid the opponents' slam when two conditions exist: when no penalty double of the slam is logical; and when the sacrifice will obviously not run to many tricks. Of course, vulnerability, along with an appraisal of the opponents' soundness, also plays a part, but simply as a matter of policy, it is often wise to "pay insurance" against the mere chance that the opponents can make their slam.

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
