The World's Reformers.

[From the poem, "Wendell Phillips,"]

"Fanatic!" the insects hissed, till he taught them to understand
That the highest crime may be written in the highest law of the land.
"Disturber!" and "Dreamer!" the Philistics cried when he reached an ideal creed,
Till they learned that the men who changed the world, with the world have disagreed.
That the remnant is right when the masses are led like sheep to the pen;
For the instinct of equity slumbers till roused by instinctive men.

It is not enough to win rights from a king and write them down in a book;
New men, new lights; and the code of the fathers the son may never brook.
What is liberty now were license then; their freedom our yoke would be,
And each new decade must have new men to determine its liberty.
Mankind is a marching army, with a broadening front the while;
Shall it crowd its bulk on the farm paths, or clear to the outward file?
Its pioneers are those dreamers who heed neither tongue nor pen
Of the human spiders whose silk is wove from the lives of toiling men.

—JOHN BOYLE O'RIELLY.

Signalling by Balloon.

A series of interesting experiments were conducted recently at Stanford Bridge Grounds, London, with balloon and apparatus invented and improved by Mr. Eric Bruce for use in military signalling at night over intervening woods and hills. Within the balloon are hung on a small swinging ladder six incandescent lamps, connected by insulated cable with a battery on the ground worked that night at 24 volts and giving 60 candle power of illumination. By ready manipulation of the buttons at the instrument the operator flashes on the translucent sides of the balloon the signals of the Morse or any code, and these can be easily read at a distance of six miles.

The balloon used was a small one of 18 feet diameter, containing 1,000 feet of gas, and was held by cable at a height of about 300 feet. The strong wind prevailing rendered the position of the balloon unsteady and uncertain, but the signals were nevertheless read by military experts, and were answered from a station on land. The experiments were witnessed by Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, by military attaches of the Chinese and other embassies and a number of scientific men. The experiments were varied by hanging the lamps outside below the neck of the balloon and flashing direct. The illuminated balloon, when a few feet above ground, gives a beautiful light, and can be utilized when required for executing work at night.

PRESENTATION TO REV. GEORGE STEEL.—At the regular weekly meeting of the Methodist ministers of the St. John district, Rev. Geo. Steel, who had recently returned from the States, where he had joined the ranks of the benedicts, was presented with the following address by his brother clergymen:

"On his occasion of your return to our midst, after your recent absence in the United States, I wish as chairman of the preachers' meeting to give expression to the high appreciation your brethren have formed of your many sterling qualities, of your loyal attachment to the interests of Methodism and the efficient services you have rendered in connection with this meeting. The members have charged me with the pleasant duty of conveying to you this explession of their esteem, and of asking your acceptance of this clock as a small material token of this esteem, which in these few words sought to express. The brethren wish all to convey their congratulations on your marriage and to express their best wishes for the long life and happiness of Mrs. Steel and yourself."

Accompanying the address was a very handsome clock, beautifully finished in ebonized wood. Mr. Steel, though taken completely by surprise, managed to express his thanks in a few well-chosen words.

ON the left of the south entrance to the exhibition building we have made a display of furs and mantles. ATTACKED BY A BEAR.—On Wednesday night, about 9 o'clock, Abram Matthews, a farmer on the Irishtown road, heard one of his cattle bellowing in a field near the house. Taking his gun and dog he hastened out. On approaching he saw a dark object loping off, and upon investigation found that a bear had attacked a heifer, the brute jumping on its back and inserting its teeth in the neck of the heifer. The heifer was so badly lacerated that it will likely die.—Moncton Times.
