Disarmament Primary Aim Adenauer Tells Khrushchev

BONN (Reuters) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in a letter to Soviet Premier Khrushchev published Sunday night, said controlled disarmament should be the "primary aim of every statesman."

The letter, delivered in Moscow Friday, was in reply to a personal letter from the Soviet leader Aug. 18.

Adenauer said that all-out arms production is not only slowing mankind's social and cultural advancement, but also "creating an atmosphere of tension, such as precedes the outbreak of a devastating storm in nature."

Political observers said the tone of Adenauer's letter was mild.

RECALLS 1955 Adenauer recalled that during their 1955 Moscow talks, he and Khrushchev had expressed hope for a period of increasing friendship between their two countries.

"To my great regret these hopes have not been fulfilled to the degree I would have wished," Adenauer said. "How this happened is hard to say. It would be even harder to establish who is to blame."

He added, however, that it was never too late to make a change for the better "and I believe it would be good for our countries and for everybody else to do this."

Khrushchev, in his letter to Adenauer, said mutual relations between the two nations were at a crucial stage and if they could not be improved, Russia would be compelled to sign a peace treaty with Communist East Germany.

NO REVANCHISTS Adenauer, in his reply, said several of Khrushchev's views appeared detrimental to an improvement of mutual relations.

Referring to a passage in Khrushchev's letter alleging that revenge-seeking persisted among the German people, he said: "No, Mr. Prime Minister, in this you are absolutely wrong. I am no revanchist... there are no revanchists in my government and I would never tolerate a minister who was a revanchist."

Adenauer said there were "very few" Germans who sought revenge for Nazi Germany's defeat in the Second World War.

Candidates Address YPC's

Speaking at a YPC Rally held in Parkdale, PC candidates Dave Stewart and Alban Farmer urged the young people present to cast their votes for a new, vigorous administration when they enter the polling booth on Tuesday.

Both emphasized that, if elected, they would do all in their power to see that the island's municipalities were granted a just share of the provincial revenues.

Mr. Farmer declared that the people of Parkdale should have had paved streets long ago had the Mtheson administration seen fit to assist them. It was only just in view of the large amount of gas and other taxes the people of the municipality paid in to the provincial treasury, he said.

Mr. Stewart emphasized the great benefit the Parkdale administrators would receive from the new Conservative policy that would pay all teachers' supplement in full.

He said that PC plans to develop the City waterfront, transportation services, and tourism would benefit the area directly.

Edwin MacRae, president of the Queen's YPC's was chairman. The entertainment consisted of music by Les Alexander and his Orchestra. Interpersed with specialty number by Kay and Elmer Gallant and by Gary Chipman.

Nikita Khrushchev's Greeting To Be Correct But Lukewarm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Courteous, correct—and lukewarm.

That's the attitude of Americans toward greeting Nikita S. Khrushchev on his visit to the United States next month.

A number of individuals and organizations are sharply opposed to welcoming the Soviet premier. They see his tour as a propaganda venture rather than a genuine effort to spur world peace.

But the people generally seem willing to take the visit in stride in hopes that some good, or at least no harm, will come of it.

President Eisenhower will set the protocol tone by going to the airport to meet Khrushchev on his arrival in Washington Sept. 15.

WILL BE WELCOMED An Associated Press survey of reaction in the places Khrushchev will visit shows that officials in each will extend formal welcomes.

Some have shown coolness toward Soviet representatives in the past. But they have announced intentions of co-operating with the state department in extending courtesy toward an official guest of the president.

Even individuals and groups opposed outright to the visit have been relatively mild in suggesting ways to show their disapproval.

The suggestions have ranged from a day of prayer to pulling down household shades or to wearing of black neckties by men and black stockings by women.

Members of the bitterly anti-Communist Hungarian Freedom Fighters have promised to pepper Khrushchev with nothing but questions, in contrast to the eggs hurled at Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan last January.

PAPERS URGE COURTESY Newspapers generally have urged the people to show courtesy toward Khrushchev.

Chinese Defend Communes, But Admit Trouble In Ranks

By RONALD FARQUHAR PEKING (Reuters) — Chinese Communists are hotly defending the 26,000 communes they set up a year ago—but they admit there is continuing opposition within their ranks to the experiment in communal living.

Observers have detected signs that the Communist party has shed some of its extreme aims for the rapid communization of the countryside—placing 500,000 peasants into work and life on military lines.

They think the Chinese have restored several features of the co-operative farms from which the communes sprang.

One view was that there has been serious differences within the party over communes and the general pace of Chinese economic development. Winners of the dispute seem to be a moderate middle-of-the-road group led by Premier Chou En-lai.

Chou and his group were believed to have advocated a less hectic pace than that launched in the economic "great leap forward" last year.

WON'T SCRAP PLAN Observers felt that Chou, having triumphed over those who favored maintaining an intense pace of development, now is turning his fire against the opposite extreme who apparently want to scrap the entire "great leap forward" policy.

No purge of rightists is anticipated by observers.

The birth of the communes last year was accompanied by propaganda fanfare about multiplying farm yields, free food and clothes for peasants, the elimination of the "last remnants of individual ownership of the means of production" in agriculture and the early dawn of true communism.

Now, instead of working solely for the commune, peasants are encouraged to grow food, keep pigs and hens in their spare time on individual plots and keep any income they make out of this.

ROAD TO CAPITALISM? Some Communist party officials apparently feared this concession might start some peasants back on the road to capitalism but it is felt officially there is no danger of this.

Small local markets have been set up in communes where a peasant can sell his own produce to the state.

A system of supplying peasants with food and clothing as part of their wages was introduced when the communes started. But now the peasants receive more of their income in cash and less in goods.

An incentive plan under which those who work harder earn more has also been brought in.

At first, mess halls for all peasants came with the communes. Recent official statements have stressed that peasants need not eat there if they do not wish to and they must be allowed to take their meals home or cook at home if they prefer.

Violence Flares At Sat. Carnival

VICTORIA (CP) — Two tents burned down by flames from a crude incendiary bomb, midway stands were looted and car tires slashed in a sudden outbreak of violence at a carnival here Saturday night.

Police said they believed the outbreak was the work of "teen-age punks." Revenge by a tear-gas game on a carnival game proprietor who argued with a youth the previous night was believed to be the motive.

No arrests had been made late Sunday.

The fire, started by a burning cigarette placed inside a book of matches, caused an estimated $1,500 damage. The carnival, run by Midwest Shows Ltd., of Kelowna, B.C., was brought here as a fund-raising project for the annual Victoria day program.

SET FIRES Jesse Campbell said a group of teen-agers clustered around his ring-toss game and threw in their match book bombs. One was stamped out in time but another set fire to the tent.

Firefighters were hampered in their efforts to control the blaze by hundreds of spectators.

Witness said some of the youths at the scene slashed car tires with switch-blade knives.
