Opening lead—four of spades. The finesse is one of the most valuable weapons in declarer's arsenal of plays. But that it can be abused and misused many a player discovers to his sorrow. Here is a case where a faulty use of the finesse cost declarer his contract. West led a spade and declarer played low from dummy, winning East's eight with the jack. South then led the queen of clubs, which lost to the king. Back came a spade into dummy's A-Q. Declarer cashed the A-J of clubs, but when the suit failed to break 3-3, he found himself with only eight tricks and went down one.

The first finesse—in spades—was certainly proper. Declarer had an opportunity to make either of three spade tricks or two, depending upon which opponent had the king of spades. By taking the spade finesse, he gave himself a chance to win three spade tricks, while if he had gone up with the ace, he would automatically have limited his spade winners to two.

But the next finesse—in clubs—was ill-advised. South should have played a low club to the ace and a club back towards his Q-J. If East did not take his king immediately, declarer could return to dummy for another club lead and thus obtain three club tricks. This method of play would have made the contract.

Declarer's view from the beginning, assuming West has the spade king, is that he has seven ready winners—three spades, three hearts, and a club. His best chance is to play for two additional club winners. They can surely be obtained by the line of play discussed if East has the king.

If West has the king, nothing can be gained by a finesse. The queen, in such a case, would be covered by the king and three club tricks would accrue only if the suit were divided 3-3. The same result, though, could be achieved by a low club lead.

Declarer therefore never gains by leading the queen, but will often gain by leading low.

Works Projects Are Planned

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—Three provinces have lined up projects for the winter works program so far, it was learned Monday. Federal officials expect an upsurge in applications in the next few weeks. The earlier announcement this year that the federal government would pay half the payroll costs of approved municipal works projects has brought relatively few applications. Only 16 projects involving a federal government contribution of $178,000 have been approved.

Officials said the approved projects in Ontario, Saskatchewan and British Columbia will keep an estimated 400 workers busy for an average of 70 days per man. The winter works program was initiated last year when Prime Minister Diefenbaker won provincial premiers Oct. 20 offering the federal help. At that time, there were some complaints, especially from opposition parties, that the program was announced too late to give municipalities a chance to take full advantage of it.

RENEWED AGAIN
The government announced renewal of the program for another year Sept. 2, giving municipalities and provinces almost two months extra in which to submit plans for municipal works to be carried out in the winter months.

The program this winter will run between Dec. 1 and April 30 and a 50-per-cent increase is expected in the amount the federal government will contribute. Federal contributions last year totalled about $10,000,000 and the figure this year likely will be in the neighborhood of $15,000,000.

Types of projects qualifying for federal aid include construction and major improvement of municipal roads, streets, sidewalks, bridges, underpasses and water and sewage facilities—except buildings—and development of municipal parks and playgrounds. The signs still point toward a lighter unemployment roll during the winter months this year than

He propped the picture up in his shop and a few days later a customer asked to buy it. The customer said it showed a street in Milan—a city Ted never has visited.

Later Ted, again in a trance, painted a picture showing a forest of sawn-off trees. A few days later a foreigner in the shop told Ted it looked like the burial ground of a South American Indian tribe.

Coal Committee Holds Meeting

HALIFAX (CP)—A fact-finding committee set up to study production and sales problems in the crippled Nova Scotia coal industry held its first meeting here Tuesday and was adjourned until early next month.

Members of the committee, headed by Mines Minister E. A. Manson, reviewed figures for the province's coal production from 1953 until the end of September of this year.

The committee decided to adjourn to await a meeting early in December here with the Dominion coal board. It is expected that projected sales figures for the 1960-61 figures will be available at that time.

Mr. Manson declined to comment on Tuesday's closed meeting.

The committee was set up following emergency meetings last month here and at Ottawa, sparked by Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation's announcement that it would be forced to close three Nova Scotia mines if new markets for coal could not be found.

Deso, the province's major operator, has nine mines, eight of them on Cape Breton Island. About 7,600 men work in the pits. If three mines were closed, about 2,500 miners would be out of work.

The Dominion coal board is scheduled to meet here, possibly during the first week of December.

The nine-man fact-finding committee will meet the day previous to the coal board session with W. E. Uren, chairman of the federal agency.
