

The Highland Seer.

Ye dark rolling clouds, round the brow of Ben Borrow, O weep your dark tears to the green vales below; Ye winds of the hill, wake your wailings of sorrow, No beams of the morning can gladness bestow; Arise, ye gray mists, from the loud falling Cerris, And shroud from our children the sad sight of wail; The warriors that left them high bounding for glory Shall never return to the land of the Gael.

Our maidens have twined the wild mountain-flowers, To crown their young love's they wait their return; Alas, for their fondness! they know not of hours, When tidings of sorrow shall bid them to mourn. I heard the dread howl of the wolf from the mountain, I saw the dark death-bird flit over the plain, I saw a red stream, and a blood-curdled fountain, And the war-horse dash over the breasts of the slain.

The Saxon has swept o'er the plains of Culloden, Our heroes have fallen or wandered afar, 'Mong dark mountain caves, where the blue mist is shrouding— No minstrel awaits their returning from war, By yon gloomy pine, on the gray brow of Morra, A young prince is wandering dejected and lone. From his deep-troubled breast come the sad sighs of sorrow For chieftains departed, and young virgins gone.

He turns his sad eyes to the land of his fathers, Where the banners of welcome once waved on her towers; Those honors departed are given to others, The tears of regret wander down for those hours. I see a white sail through a dim mist of ocean It comes like a beam on the dawning of day; Albyn—awake thee to mournful devotion, It bears him an exile for ever away.

An Extraordinary Wedding Day Incident.

An American recently solved a mystery which had confused and amazed a wedding party in Rome. The bride was the daughter of one of the most noble marquises of old or modern Rome, and the groom was the scion of another noble house. When the wedding contract had been signed the groom took the hand of his young wife in his own and kissed its fingers. She smiled at this, and allowed her hand to rest where he had placed it. But in a moment, to the dismay of the company, a voice was heard, as from her lips, saying: "Impertinent! how dare you touch my hand? Be off, fool!" Still she smiled as before, and her lover gazed upon her face in dismay. Suddenly she seemed to laugh, and it was a dry ironical laugh that startled the people more than the words they had heard before. "Has the girl gone mad?" some one asked. She faintly, and her friends gathered closely round the sofa on which she had fallen. At this moment a young American, described as of great learning, but generally very taciturn and almost timid in manner, offered to examine into the cause of the strange occurrences, and approached the sofa. Casting his eyes on and around the sofa and then around the room, he proceeded to crawl along on his hands and knees until he came to a large ottoman. Behind this he found a young servant who had been dismissed from the house that morning and had gone away declaring that she would be revenged. By some means she had found her way into the parlor and concealed herself behind the ottoman. Being a ventriloquist, she was able to speak in a tone of voice which was naturally attributed to the bride.

The Greatest Medical Discovery since the Creation of Man, or since the Commencement of the Christian Era.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been caused by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

Dr. MELVIN'S CAPSICUM POROUS PLASTERS are acknowledged by all who have used them, to act quicker than any other plaster they ever before tried, and that one of these plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different, the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.
