TEA AND COFFEE.

Coffee, the drink more highly regarded to-day by the entire civilized world than any other, is the berry from several species of the genus Coffea, of which C. Arabica is the chief.

The first use of this berry was in Abyssinia, where it was known as Kaffa. Thence it was brought to Arabia in the beginning of the fifteenth century.

There both its use and the cultivation of the plant spread with great rapidity, and for two centuries the country furnished the supply of the world.

In the middle of the sixteenth century coffee houses were established in Constantinople for the purpose of affording the common people greater facilities for obtaining the drink.

Some of the methods adopted by imitators are as follows: First-To imitate the size, color and shape of Dodd's Kidney Pills and sell them by con.

Second-To put them up to appear very nearly the same and to offer at the same price.

Third-To look on the word "kidney" in naming cathartic pills so as to increase sales.

Fourth-To give a name so near to Dodd's that unwary people may be deceived and think they are getting Dodd's.

Look out for such dodges. The name on the wrapper is the best. And ought not to be the subject for any trick.

Money No Object. The amount of money sufferers from catarrh will spend in attempting to cure that foul and disagreeable disease is almost incalculable. J. W. Jennings, of Gifford, Ont., says: "I spent between $200 and $300 consulting doctors; I tried all the 'treatments' without benefit. One box of Chase's Catarrh Cure did me more good than all the medicines. A 25c. box cured me. Don't waste money. Chase's Cure, with improved Bower, 25c. It cures."

BEWARE OF SNEAK THIEVES. "Who steals my purse steals trash - but he that filches from me MY GOOD NAME, that is a contemptible Sneak. That I have learned by the experience of all honest and fair minded people."

A worthless thing is never counterfeited, only that finds imitators which possesses extraordinary merit and whose name is so famous that it is imitated wherever it becomes known. This is pre-eminently the case in regard to the Grand German Prescription, DR. NIEMEYER'S WONDERFUL PRUSSIAN OIL.

A TRUE BENEFACTOR.

Thousands Bless the Memory of Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M.D., LL.D.

He Gave Humanity Paine's Celery Compound.

Medical Men Say It is the Only Perfect Cure for Bright's Disease and Diabetes.

Dr. Phelps' wonderful prescription, Paine's Celery Compound, is a boon to suffering humanity. This remarkable medicine has cured and saved more victims of kidney trouble than have all other combined agencies in the world. It has rescued thousands who were thought to be hopelessly lost-made them well after medical men had pronounced them incurable.

The case of Mr. C. F. Kevell, of Danford, Ont. is one of the strongest proofs ever put on record that Paine's Celery Compound cures kidney disease, and all the terrible evils that follow this dangerous malady.

"I wish to testify in favor of the wonderful curative powers of Paine's Celery Compound for two reasons: First, in justice to the proprietors; and secondly, for the benefit of other sufferers. He says: -

"For the past fifteen years I have been troubled with diseased kidneys. I am engaged in the manufacture of cheese, and am obliged to work more or less in a stooping posture. At times I found it almost impossible to work owing to severe pains across my kidneys. Often after working in a stooping position for a time, I would find it difficult to straighten up at once, and could only do so after repeated efforts."

"Of late years, while laboring under these severe attacks, I became very nervous, and continually had tired, worn-out feelings. My rest at night seemed to do me no good, and I always felt tired out in the morning."

"I had been taking various medicines and was getting worse all the time. At last I decided to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial. I procured a bottle and took it according to directions, and found its effect wonderful. Before I had used the first bottle I began to improve; after I had used the second bottle I felt as well as ever I did in my life. It had banished all aches and pains, my nervousness was all gone, and the tired and worn-out feelings were banished. I can go to bed now and sleep well, and rise in the morning rested and refreshed."

"I have recommended Paine's Celery Compound to my friends who were suffering from the same troubles as I had, and they have all greatly benefited. Knowing what it has done for me, I can cheerfully recommend it to any person suffering from kidney disease."

"The Fireman's Story." "The coolest man I ever saw," said a veteran fireman, "I met at a fire in a dwelling-house. We found him in an upstairs front room dressing to go out. The fire by this time was rushing up through the house at a great rate."

"Hullo, there?" we shouted to him when we looked in at the door, "the house is afire!"

"Would it disturb you if I should remain while you are putting it out?" he said, lifting the comb from his hair and looking around at us.

"He had on a low waistcoat and his dress-coat lay across a chair. "Seeing us staring at him, he pushed his comb into his hair again and went on with fixing his hair. He then put down the comb, put on his hat and coat, and picked up his overcoat."

"Now I'm ready, gentlemen," he said. "We started, but the stairway had now been closed up by fire. We turned to the windows. The men had got a ladder up on the front of the house."

"Now, then," we said to him, when we came to the window, "he said, standing back."

"And I assure you we had to go down the ladder first and let him come last."

Bible Arithmetic. Ezekiel's reed was nearly eleven feet; a cubit was nearly twenty-two inches; a hand's breadth is equal to three and five-eighths inches; a finger's breadth is equal to a little less than one inch; a shekel of silver was about two shillings and eightpence; a shekel was four pounds; a talent of silver was four hundred pounds; a talent of gold was nearly six thousand pounds; a piece of silver, or a penny, was eightpence halfpenny; a farthing was equal to a halfpenny; a mite was less than a farthing; a gerah was three halfpence; an ephah, or bath, contained four gallons and five pints; an omer was six pints; a cab was five pints.

Salvatorians in Australia. Gen. Booth's visit to the Australian colonies has been a triumphant success. In Brisbane he was received by a body of Salvationists over 1,000 strong, many of whom had travelled hundreds of miles to be in the demonstration of welcome to their leader. At Sydney he had almost a royal reception, the chief features of the procession including a mounted brass band, and a mounted contingent of "Hallelujah Ladies" from the country districts, the latter being splendid riders. There can be no question respecting the hold which the Salvation Army has obtained in the popular mind in Australia, and the thoroughness with which it seeks to accomplish its work. It has its agents of every prigion gate, in the hospitals and infirmaries, and among the wretched women who prowl the city streets after dusk.

The energy of the Salvationists is wonderful. They penetrate into the most remote parts of the bush, make their way on camels across the arid deserts of Western Australia, and fearlessly brave the spurs and darts of hostile aborigines. They are undoubtedly becoming a tremendous social force in Australia. The Gailegan Messenger.

THE RETIRED BURGlar.

A Brief Account of a Lively and Interesting Incident in His Career.

"A house that I went into one night in a town not very far out of New York" said the retired burglar, "didn't begin to pan out as well as I expected it would, and I couldn't help feeling a little disappointed. I'd been at the house and hadn't got much more'n enough to pay my car fare. But when I came down stairs again I saw standing in a corner of the hall by the front door something I hadn't noticed before. I went up and looked at it very much, and that was a tricycle; a girl's tricycle, with two high wheels and a small wheel in front, with galvanized wire spokes and a long handle to steer by, and a seat upholstered with red velvet, and all that sort of thing, you know. You've seen lots of 'em, no doubt."

"Well, now, my little girl had been asking me for some time for a tricycle, but business had been so overhauling that I really hadn't felt as though I could afford to buy her one, but here was a chance to get one for me very much, and it made me sure to look at it; a bright, new one it was, too. It was pretty near Christmas, and I thought I'd keep it and give it to her for a Christmas present."

"There wasn't any rubber tires on it, so I was sure to get it across the hall, but I picked it up and carried it to a door that opened into an entry that opened to the cellar stairs, the way I'd come in. I got it to the first door all right, and into that entry way or hall without hitting anything, but in getting through the door leading to the cellar stairs, going first myself and backing down with it, the long handle flopped over somehow and caught in the door when I was just a step down. I tried to free it, and it freed easier than I expected, and I lost my balance and my hold on the tricycle and fell down stairs."

"Noise? Well, now, I tell you, I was in a steamboat explosion once, and once in an explosion in a sawmill; but I never began to hear so much noise in my life when me and that tricycle rolled down the cellar stairs. The tricycle fell over me and I fell over the tricycle, and somewhere on the way down I believe I must have fallen through the tricycle, for when we got down to the bottom I was all scratched and cut and my clothes were tore, and the tricycle was a wreck. I stood there for a minute looking at it till I heard two men coming down the stairs to the hall above, and then I went away and left it lying there at the foot of the cellar stairs."

"So, you see, my little girl didn't get her tricycle that Christmas after all." -New York Sun.

A Mere Accident. She was having her picture taken, and her husband and the photographer were having a hard time. The photographer had patiently posed her a score of times, and the chum had told her that each one was better than the last and she looked perfectly lovely that way, until she was too weary to do more than smile in a perfunctory manner. And still the other fellow fussed and hesitated and wouldn't be taken. At last the chum noticed that she kept glancing toward her feet, and she had a bright idea, a perfect inspiration.

"Why don't you try a standing position?" he suggested, ignoring the fact that this had been done several times, and the other girl jumped at the idea. "I believe I will," she said, rising quickly, and the chum caught her dress in a seemingly accidental fashion so that she fell on her feet with its pointed toe, was disclosed. Then the other girl smiled in a satisfied manner and consented to be taken, and the chum looked as pleasant as though she didn't know what she had done. "Mamie pulled me down a little by accident," said the photographer, and the picture was so well that he would finish them that way." -Chicago Record.

"The Fireman's Story." "The coolest man I ever saw," said a veteran fireman, "I met at a fire in a dwelling-house. We found him in an upstairs front room dressing to go out. The fire by this time was rushing up through the house at a great rate."
