Surveys By Land Valuation Board

Mr. J. F. Connolly, chairman of the Land Valuation Board, which is operated under the Department of Education, states that in the three years in which the Board has been in operation, 120 School Districts out of a total of 486, have requested that surveys be made by the valuers. Approximately 4,000 farms have been dealt with, and not a single appeal has been made against the decisions of the Board.

Took Course In Food Technology

A solid three-weeks course in food technology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has just been completed by Mr. Eugene Gorman of the Department of Industry and Natural Resources, who returned to his home town of Charlottetown. The lectures given were actually "boiled down" synopsis of a 13-week course and contained a great deal of information crowded into a short space of time. They were given by technologists of the Institute who have been working in specific fields such as ammonia, research and similar studies. Each of the lectures included some of the results of the work of the researchers.

To Start Work On New B.I.S. Building

Work on the construction of a new building for the Benevolent Irish Society is expected to start immediately on the site at 175 Grafton street where the former Whelan Hall was destroyed by fire last August. Space for two stores will be provided on the first floor, and office areas will be arranged on the second floor. The basement will be fitted up for modern club rooms. In addition there will be, as formerly, a large recreation hall for dances and other activities of the Society.

MEN DISARMED

Continued from page 1. Their paper cups containing a mouthful of water, one at a time, through an opening in the ripped screen. Earlier in the day the prisoners in the outdoor compounds were told to behave — or go without food or water. Prisoners Searched Eighty police officers and prison guards lined up the prisoners with their hands behind their necks and searched them, 20 at a time. Police and guards kept shotguns trained on the lined-up prisoners, who were told to raise their hands. "Anybody who makes one move toward a guard gets shot." While work was started elsewhere in the prison repairing damage done to kitchens and living quarters during about eight hours of wild rioting, Superintendent Wright told the men in the compounds: "Whether you get food or water depends on your behaviour. Any nonsense, any misbehaviour, and you're the losers. . . you can be here a long-long time. . . . The men destroyed much of their sports equipment. They riddled the band locker and ruined nearly all the instruments except a bugle on which a musical rioter kept playing snatches of "Come to the Cookhouse Door." In the kitchen they wrecked large stoves and refrigerators, tore radiators off the walls, shattered glass plates of eggs and smashed cans of food. They set fire to piles of bedding and blankets. They hurled chunks of brick and pieces of broken chairs at guards and police. They heaved out hymn books and Bibles.

SENATOR J. G. FOGO

Continued from page 1. G. Fogo, he spent much of his early life in Sydney, N.S. Quitting school there at 16, he got a job at the Dominion Steel Plant, but later went on to the Provincial Normal School, in the fall of 1914 he started teaching in a mining town of Stellarton, N.S. He served three years overseas with the 2nd Canadian Siege Battery during the First World War and later worked as a reporter and editor on the Sydney Post at Dalhousie University. Called to the Bar in 1924, he joined the Halifax law office of James Layton Ralston and Hon. Charles Burchell, later high commissioner to Newfoundland. When Mr. Ralston went to Ottawa in 1926 to become Defence Minister in the Liberal Government, Fogo was made a member of the firm. He was closely associated with the Liberal Party for many years and from 1939 to 1941 was president of the Nova Scotia Liberal Association. He went to Ottawa in 1942 as associate co-ordinator of controls for the wartime Munitions Department, and later became one of the government's ace trouble-shooters in the war production drive, his job being to iron out labor problems. In 1945 he was drafted to organize the Liberal campaign in the Federal election that year and went on to the presidency of the National Federation. He organized the Liberal convention in Ottawa in 1948. A year later he was made a Senator. Survivors include his widow, formerly Helen Louise Fisher of Denver, Colo., and two children, a daughter, Annette, and a son, James.

Thanks were extended to the donors and the congregation for the lovely tokens of appreciation. A delicious lunch brought a pleasant evening to a close. —BP.

Prisoners Tell Plans

Prisoners who talked to reporters said they planned to take over the prison to draw attention to their grievances over treatment by guards and lack of machinery for airing their complaints. Some guards said discipline broke down after Reforms Minister Foote insisted on enforcing a rule that no prisoner be strapped without the Minister's approval. Mr. Foote in an interview denied the rule was an attempt to "mollycoddle" prisoners, as some of the guards had claimed. Three prisoners had been strapped last week. He said the Saturday night riot could have been put down within an hour if a decision had been made for guards and police to move on the rioting prisoners "in force and with intention to shoot."

BUT TAFT SAYS

Continued from page 1. a record for fair play and sincerity. Eisenhower called the rules decision "heartening news to millions of Americans." He said the people would have confidence the Republicans would "lead the country to a rebirth of political honesty, courage and vision." Eisenhower's campaign manager, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Massachusetts, said the defeat handed to backers of Taft in the first test of strength in the convention means "victory on about the third ballot" in the presidential nominating sweepstakes. Taft forces disputed his claim. They said the ballot on the rules change by no means brought out the full strength of the Ohio Senator will show on the first ballot when the voting starts later in the week on the party nominee. "I feel sure," said Thomas E. Coleman, Taft force manager, "we will have more than 56 on the first ballot, which I think is about as high as anybody has had in recent history." Taft later said that although his forces lost the first test of strength the size of the vote they polled "practically guarantees my nomination." "The hard core of 548 delegates who voted with us," Taft said in a statement, ". . . is within 56 votes of a majority." "There are more than 56 delegates in Maryland, Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania and some other states who have assured me that they will vote for me for the nomination." A majority of 604 is needed to nominate. What are usually hum-drum formalities of opening turned into noisy fight of oratory, cheering and booing which, with the preliminaries, took nearly five hours. Delegates Swelter In spite of air conditioning, the throngs sweated in shirtsleeves in a temperature high in the 80s. There were tip-offs in today's showdown vote, and elsewhere, that large segments of key delegations may be on Eisenhower's team when the decision comes. Michigan, Pennsylvania and Maryland went heavily, and California solidly, with Eisenhower in the test vote. After the rules decision the convention adjourned for three hours, to meet again tonight and hear a keynote speech by Gen. Douglas MacArthur. In his lead-off speech, Guy Gabrielson, Republican national chairman, gave all the delegates an opportunity to set off an uproar at a reference to "the scandalous Democrat years." "I need not condemn from this rostrum the conduct of the party which has been in power for 20 years," he said. The Democratic Party "has condemned itself. It has condemned itself by preaching peace and waging war; by waste and squandering of the people's money; by winking and blinking at the menace of Communism; and by shameful corruption of the Federal Government."

MACARTHUR

Continued from page 1. orats, then assailed them for failing even to seek in Korea the traditional U. S. military goal of victory. People Need Plan "Our People," MacArthur said, "are desperate for a plan which will revive hope and restore faith as they feel the oppressive burden of the tax levy upon every source of revenue and upon every property transaction; as they see the astronomically rising public debt heavily mortgaging the industry; the well-being and the opportunity of our children and our children's children; as they observe the rising costs of the necessities of life impairing the effectiveness of pensions, insurance and other fixed incomes and reducing the aged and infirm to appalling circumstances." The American people, he said, ask for leadership and wise counsel but: "They witness instead only a ceaseless effort to spend and spend, to tax and tax, only a callous indifference to mounting disclosures of graft and corruption and waste in the public administration." MacArthur used possibly his sharpest language in condemning the administration's handling of
