year, and Canada is now known as one of the brightest gems in the British crown. He was proud of the progress that had been made in Ontario. In that province they were doing more for agriculture than in any similar spot elsewhere. Organization is the watchword there. Every branch of agriculture should be organized. He did not believe in allowing fairs at exhibitions. Neither would he have horse races in connection with exhibitions. Have the show free from these. Let it be educational in its character; let it be of the greatest benefit to the people. Have the judges at exhibitions always been fair to the exhibitors? Have they explained to the people at the ringside why they gave a prize to this or that animal? Why are not the people made acquainted with the reasons for selecting certain animals for prize-winners? Organization, he pointed out, was a good thing. But it must not be dead. Keep the organization before the people? Let them know through the press what you are doing. The dairymen were organized, and instructors or inspectors were paid to see after the different factories. The result was a uniform product of good quality. He had started a dairy school at Guelph, which was very successful. His travelling dairy had also been attended with a large measure of success. All these things mean the expenditure of money and much work. Such an expenditure, however, was a profitable and patriotic one. It was for the education of our farmers; to enable them to produce superior products. In regard to cheese, butter, bacon and other products Canada wanted no second place. The markets had changed. Different classes of products were necessary now. It should be the aim to give the people the best products that can be obtained,—to get ahead of every other country. The only way to do this is by co-operating, by uniting. Every province should have its organization, and all should work together for the common good. In union there is strength.

Mr. F. W. Hodson emphasised the importance of looking after the details of organization. If he details are not carefully looked after and as carefully executed, a scheme, no matter how promising, will end in failure and loss to all concerned. Take hold of the thing and keep at it. With reference to the complaints regarding the market for pork, the people must unite before an improvement is effected. Public interest should be first aroused, and when this has been done lay your grievances before the Premier through an influential deputation. But do not ask for something that is wanted only by yourself. Getting back to the work of organization, Mr. Hodson pointed out that each provincial association should have its objects, work and powers mapped out in detail in a constitution, by-laws, etc. Each should hold an annual meeting when the directors should be elected for the following year, these not to take office until the close of the then present meeting. After the routine has been attended to, a thoroughly good and instructive programme should be arranged. This programme should be prepared and published at least three months before the meeting is held. First it should be published in the agricultural and weekly press, and from week to week the secretary should supply the press with reading notices. Every effort should be made to interest the various publishers in the meetings, and every courtesy should be extended to them. They should also be dealt with as liberally as the funds of the association will allow. No difference should be made on account of politics. Bear in mind that the public can only be reached and largely benefited by using the press. On the other hand it is the duty of the press to do all it can afford to spread the information given at these gatherings and to treat these gatherings as non-political. The man or the paper who is forever looking for personal or political aggrandizement is useless timber, not only to himself and his party, but worse than useless to his country. About three weeks before the annual meeting is held the final draft of the programme should be published. Copies of this should be sent to every farmer living within fifty miles of the place of meeting, to every newspaper, to every public man, and to such other prominent persons as do or should take an interest in agriculture. An especial effort should be made to interest the ladies, and the young men and women who live in the country surrounding the place of meeting. These annual meetings should not always be held in the same place. Only practical men should be chosen as speakers. A full day—morning, afternoon and evening—should be devoted to hearing addresses and discussion thereon. Too many addresses should not be given; only as many as can be well digested. The retiring officers and directors should remain in office until the close of the annual meeting. As soon as the meeting is over the new directors should meet and elect from among themselves a president, vice-president, etc. The secretary should as far as possible be a permanent officer. He should be elected and retained during good conduct; not elected annually. If instructors are employed they should be re-engaged at this meeting, and the programme for the forthcoming year carefully mapped out. The secretary should be elected by the directors, but should in all cases be acceptable to the Government of the day. He should be strictly non-partisan. He and the directors, irrespective of politics, should be in close touch with the Provincial Department of Agriculture, and be ready at all times to give advice and vigorous co-operation, to the end that the dairy or fruit interests of the province may be advanced. Thus the minister of the day and practical men would be brought into close touch, which would be a great benefit to all concerned. Besides the fruit and dairy associations, which should be purely provincial, a Maritime Stock Breeders' Association should be maintained. It should represent the three provinces, and should look after the horses, cattle, sheep, swine and poultry interests in each province. This association should hold an annual meeting in each province each year, to continue two days. At each meeting the directors for the province where held should be elected. Each branch should be represented by one or more directors. A good instructive program should be carried out in each province, and no interest should be neglected. The cost of holding three meetings should be but little more than for one. The same foreign speakers could be employed, the cost for printing and advertising would be the same, and the interest aroused and benefit derived would be much greater. At the close of the last meeting the newly elected directors should meet and proceed as already outlined. In this way one secretary would act for the three provinces, and as he represents various interests he should be fairly paid for his services. This officer should be very carefully selected, as on the secretary depends the success of any association. He should be wise, unselfish, capable of making public opinion, a far-seeing man, and above all things he must be honest, fearless, yet very patient and kindly. In each province there should be local Farmers' Institutes. Each institute should have a well defined territory; a board of directors, one or more representing each division of the Institute territory. The president and vice president should be elected from among the directors at a meeting to be held at the close of the annual meeting. Each of these local associations should be compelled to hold, in order to obtain a grant, four meetings each year,—an annual meeting, and three at least at which agricultural subjects shall be discussed. They may hold these meetings at any time, but the annual meeting should be fixed by an Act or an Order-in-Council. All institutes in a province should hold their annual meetings on a certain day. Immediately after the annual meeting their returns should be made to the Government. Rules and regulations controlling every branch of this Institute work should be enacted. The act may be very simple, and the regulations should deal with every detail of the work. This arrangement brings about uniformity and more satisfactory conditions. If the three provinces could agree on a man, one Superintendent of Institutes would do. The territory is not large, the conditions are quite similar, the expense would be less, the work would be more uniform, and the results better. The whole of one man's time could be employed, which is much better than having a little of three men's time. It is easier to get one suitable man than three. Mr. Hodson, in concluding, pointed out the work done in Ontario in regard to meetings, and showed how such were arranged and conducted. Notes of thanks were then tendered to Mr. Elderkin and the visiting members of the Maritime Breeders' Association, Hon. John Dryden, Mr. Hodson, Mr. Raynor and the other gentlemen from abroad participating in the meeting; to the press for reports of the meetings; to the railway authorities for special rates; to Judge Warburton, Mr. F. L. Haszard and Mr. C. R. Smith for special favors and kindnesses, all of which were acknowledged.

The proceedings closed with the National Anthem.

Local and Other Items

—Empire Lodge, No 19, K of P., meets tonight at 8 o'clock. Every member requested to attend. Nomination of officers and other important business.

There is a great scarcity of coal in all the section around New London Harbor. Schooners that were expected with loads have failed to get here.

Shipments of potatoes and oats have been exceedingly small from New London ports this fall, only three small cargoes have went forward yet and the season is about closed.

—Bay View Mills are doing a rushing business in grinding the fine crop of wheat in that section. The proprietor runs a second mill further up the stream, which is kept busy crushing cattle and pig feed.

Stanley Bridge Dairying Company have let the contract for a 40 foot extension to their factory to Geo. McKay for the sum of $390.00. This Company has put in a butter plant and are turning out about 1110 lbs of butter per week.

The New Presbyterian Church at Cavendish is well under way. It is boarded in and the roof shingled. The contractor, Mr. Johnston of Margate intends to prepare all the inside this winter and have the building completed early in the summer.

—On Tuesday next, Dec. 4th, at 8 p. m., in St. Peter's Schoolroom Lieut Mellish will give the lecture which owing to the storm of Tuesday last was postponed. Mr. F. De. C. Brecken has kindly consented to take the chair. Admission 15cts. School children 10cts. 4i.

—The local election in the First District of Queen's is not very exciting. The terrible state of the roads seems to cool off the political ardour of most of the electors. Still the candidates keep on the tramp, each determined to win if work will do it. The political meetings at the north end of the district this week are largely a failure on account of the weather.

The healthy old man wears his gray hairs like a silver crown. What if he be threescore and ten if there is still fire in his eye, firmness in his step, command in his voice and wisdom in his counsel? He commands love and reverence. Yet how few wear the mantle of age with dignity; dim eyed, querulous of speech, halting in step, childish in mind, dragging out the fog end of life in a simple existence. The secret of a healthy old age is a healthy middle age. The man who takes care of his stomach, who keeps his body properly nourished, will find that the body will not fail him in old age. The great value of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery lies in the preservation of the working power of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. From this centre is distributed the nourishment of the whole body, the salt for the blood, the lime for the bones, phosphates for the brain and nerves. A sound stomach means a sound man. A man who keeps his stomach sound by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" will wear the crown of gray hairs as befits a monarch, with dignity and ease.

—An Old and Well Tried Remedy: Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays the pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. It is pleasant to the taste. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

A CHANCE OF A ...LIFETIME

To secure one of the finest properties in P. E. I.

This farm contains 130 acres of excellent land, 80 acres cleared and in prime condition. There is a fine belt of hard and soft wood (which is very valuable, now that coal is so high) oyster mud within a few rods of the shore, abundance of marsh land, well watered, two mills near the house, good buildings, basement stable, 6 miles from town, one mile from Pownal village, school next the farm, three churches within a radius of 1 1/2 miles, cheese and butter factory in rear of farm, a large and heavy bearing orchard of best varieties of apples and plum trees, raspberries, strawberries, etc. For location and beauty of scenery this property is unsurpassed by any on the Island. It is a happy place, but there is not a daisy on it. Only reason for selling—going into business in the Northwest with my sons. Sold with or without crop, stock, and implements. Terms an application to my solicitor, A. A. Moore, Esq., Barrister, Charlottetown, or to the owner.
