
LADIES GET IN TRIM AT CHARLOTTETOWN YMCA

One of the more bizarre forms of a Cossack dance?, Or a 29-member effort to achieve a state of perfection through Yoga, perhaps? No. Merely a group of physical fitness-minded ladies with their instructor, performing a simple (to the onlooker) test of muscle stamina at the first session of a keep-fit class at the Charlottetown YMCA last evening. In the centre of the flower-like arrangement is instructor Jack Turner. Ladies' keep-fit classes, part of a province wide concentration on physical fitness, are held Tuesday and Thursday evenings, with afternoon classes Mondays and Wednesdays. Classes for men are held at the YMCA Monday and Wednesday evenings.

Province's Two Militia Regiments Basically Unchanged In Shakeup

Prince Edward Island's No. 2 Militia Group, remains basically intact following announcement Tuesday of the disbandment of 58 major units in the Canadian Army Militia reorganization, by Defence Minister Paul Hellyer.

It was reported Tuesday evening by Lt.-Col. K.M. Johnston Commanding Officer of No. 4 Militia Group, that the Island's two regiments are basically unaffected. The Prince Edward Island Regiment (armored), becomes a reconnaissance regiment; No. 5 Signal Regiment, and No. 5 Medical Company both remain intact, said Col. Johnston.

The Group Headquarters, established several years ago when the National Survival Program was introduced, will be disbanded by some time early in the new year, said Col. Johnston. The headquarters staff has an establishment of about 28 with 22 actives, and there is the possibility they will be absorbed by the other regiments, said Col. Johnston.

One other change is that the No. 2 Militia Group Food and Service and Transport platoons will be shifted to Halifax, he said.

The changeover will be effective by March, 31, 1965, it was reported.

Col. Johnston said he was most pleased to see the Island's two regiments and medical company remain, as they had good records. He said Charlottetown and the Island as a whole could be proud of military accomplishment in the past and retention of No. 2 Militia Group was appropriate in view of this.

York Point Hereford Is Fair's Best Carcass

By NEIL A MATHESON
Provincial - Farm Editor

HALIFAX — If Fulton Sanderson, York Point, is looking particularly pleased with himself today—and he is—there's a good reason. His champion Hereford steer has been declared the grand champion carcass of the Atlantic Winter Fair.

Fulton's steer won the championship for Herefords on the hoof but he was rated behind two Angus steers when the judge placed the grand champion and reserve.

But today he's the king with his Hereford right there on top in the refrigerated show window in the forum. It's unusual for Hereford steers to rate over Angus in carcass classes, but the Angus that was grand champion on the hoof went down to sixth place for over finish.

One question that arises immediately is how do the Dominion Stores fare out on the resultant publicity. They paid a record $2.00 per pound liveweight on sale night and now they have a sixth place carcass. It doesn't seem fair.

Mack Dixon's reserve grand rhampion steer— he was an Angus—stayed in second place in the carcass, the same as he was alive.

BEST IN SHOW

His dressing percentage of 60.8 was the best of the show. Other placings in the carcass competition are Dr. Alex George, Antigonish, third with an Angus; John Sanderson, York Point, fourth with a Hereford; S.C. Oland, fifth and Oland's sixth—the champion on the hoof. John Sanderson's other steer placed seventh in the carcass part of it.

Mack Dixon must have received something close to $2,000 for his steer. It weighed 970 pounds, sold for $1.90 per pound, with only one and one-half percent deduction for sale costs. There were additional prizes from the Angus breeders of the Maritimes and of Canada.

Mack is going to buy a few really good heifer calves with a part of his earnings. He has three pure-bred females now. The rest, I gathered from a talk with Mack and his father, Boyd Dixon, will go into a fund for his education. He is still a school boy.

High Winds Buffet Island

Despite high winds which reached a force of 65 miles per hour in gusts last night, Canadian National ferries at Borden maintained their regular schedules yesterday.

However, Northumberland Ferries Limited cancelled all crossings on the Wood Islands — Caribou route.

Eastern Provincial Airways flights remained on schedule.

Wind velocity for most of the day fluctuated between 35 and 40 miles per hour, and in the early part of the evening, winds were blowing at 48 miles per hour with gusts to 65.

By midnight the radio range reported winds had subsided to around 25 miles per hour, with gusts to 39.

GEORGETOWN — Two appeals were dealt with in Kings County Supreme Court here Tuesday, with Mr. Justice R.H Bell presiding.

An appeal as a result of a conviction on a charge of unlawfully selling liquor against Wilfred Edward McQuillan, George town, was adjourned to Charlottetown to Nov. 27. Mr. McQuillan was represented by G R Foster.

Both appeals resulted from convictions last May 20, by Stipendiary Magistrate James B. Johnston, QC.

A WEEK TO FORGET

Nfld. Market Prospects Said To Look Excellent

Market prospects in Newfoundland for Prince Edward Island produce, particularly vegetables and dairy products look excellent for this year, according to provincial marketing director Reid Sangster.

He returned to the province yesterday after a 10-day tour of the principle marketing areas in Newfoundland.

"There is a growing demand for new and already established products in Newfoundland," he said, "and in that province's fast - growing economy, the area is becoming more and more important to us as a source of markets.'

Mr. Sangster visited the major economic centres of the province as well as a large number of the outport areas.

"On the whole," he said, "a general good feeling exists about our products. All products have proven highly acceptable because of our quality standards.' Mr. Sangster cautioned that quality standards should not be slackened "in the interests of maintaining our continuing good market relationship."

Some of the main products of this province in which Newfoundland is interested are butter, cheese, milk, potatoes and turnips.

MUCH INTEREST

"Considerable interest was shown in carrots," said Mr. Sangster, "and in the light of our having a new carrot packing plant in O'Leary it is hoped that more sales will be made in Newfoundland.'

Mr. Sangster suggested there is a "great oneness" existing between the people of Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island. "Perhaps it is because both provinces are islands and have common problems," he said.

Discussions on inter-provincial trade were also held between Mr. Sangster and officials of the Newfoundland government. "I was particularly impressed," he said, "during talks with Arthur Johnson, a former president of the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council, who showed great interest in the economic problems of our provinces."
