CONFIDENCES

Chapter 57

"I, I don't thing there's much to tell", Pan replied, trying desperately to understand it herself. "I was in love with him, I know that. Oh, I know because it hurts so awfully when"

"When Gladys came into it" prompted Gloria.

"Yes! If she had liked him as I did, I should not have minded, that is I shouldn't have minded so much. I suppose I would have selfishly wanted him to be in love"

Her thoughts came pouring out then. For once she could talk freely all the things that were pent up inside her.

"You see, no one ever liked me. Not even when I was a child. I was so frightfully ugly."

"Poor kid, you weren't," Gloria said softly.

"I was. I was thin and nervous and had a pale face and a big mouth with huge teeth that Aunt Maude called tombstones. And I looked so dreadful in the gingham pinafores Aunt Maude made us. You see when we were little, she dressed us both alike. That is, Gladys had new pinafores, and I wore them out next season, she was so much larger that they always fit me when she'd outgrown them. But her hair went into nice fat curls when Aunt Maude wet it and brushed it around her finger and mine was always plastered back flat and ended in a stringy pigtail. It was so awfully ugly!

"I always had to work so hard over my lessons, if I didn't study and study I'd fail. But Gladys never paid much attention and somehow she always managed to get through. So she wasn't stupid, as I know you think."

"There's a certain type of mind that cannot fall into the routine of school studies!" Gloria explained. "Docile children thrive under such a routine; children with too much individuality are always at war with the hard and fast rules of academic studies. I fancy you were that sort."

Pan went on:

"All the teachers liked Gladys. They never cared much for me, except an old lady who was my English teacher. The rest said I had no personality. Otherwise, I never made friends, and the teacher died while I was in high school.

"Gladys grew more and more popular, and somehow I felt as though I were being shoved into the background. But I knew that if I were the sort that could be shoved I deserved to be. And I was busy, the work at home never was very easy.

"And as I grew older I grew more"

"Sensitive,' prompted Gloria again.

"Yes. I couldn't dance well, nor play games well, I tired out on long walks, I couldn't swim or row well, when they talked about oh flirtations, and the sort of impudent give and take very young men and women like, well, I couldn't do it. The whole trouble was that Gladys and her friends were full of the joys of life and I had none of it."

"Poor child, how could you?" Gloria wondered.

"But you see, as life gave me nothing, I grew never to expect anything, that's the consolation of my type", Pan went on with a keen flash of self knowledge. "So I never was envious and I never looked forward, as Gladys and all the others did. They looked forward to being in love, and being married to having homes of their own. Some wanted a lot of money some of the girls and boys wanted to go to other cities to live, when I did think ahead, I felt that somehow unexpectedly, things would change for me and would be happier. Meantime you see I had no money, so I couldn't break away and no courage to go anyway, because I was so sure I was useless.

"But the unexpected came through you." She give Gloria one of her sweet, shy little smiles and resumed.

"But first of all, something else unexpected came. That was Morton who liked me. He was my first friend, my only friend, except my father, of course.

"And he did like me, in spite of all my faults and short-comings. It was, you can't imagine how wonderful to me, because everyone has always liked you".

"I can imagine though", Gloria said gently putting one hand over the girl's.

"I was so grateful. Then I began to think I could do him good too, by being good friends with him. I thought he was wonderful."

"That's because you wanted to think so, the idealism in you coming out," Gloria explained.

"Perhaps. But that was the only thing I wanted, to go on being in love with him. And then Gladys who had everything, wanted the one thing I wanted, and didn't deserve it because she never could appreciate all his good qualities, got it."

"And that's life," summed up Gloria. She wanted to say several things and wondered whether she dared.

Tomorrow—Gloria's Advice

Break up of Crerar Party Is Forecast

OTTAWA, June 3.— Something almost approaching open schism has developed in the Progressive ranks. It becomes known today that M. Hoey's failure to submit his promised amendment yesterday was due to orders from Mr. Crerar and that as a consequence the more militant section of the party is in rebellion and actually threatened Mr. Crerar's leadership. They charge that he is a Liberal in disguise, that his effort to join Mr. King's ministry as well as his repeated and poorly concealed attempts to save the Government's face in the House, prove their contention, and that, in addition his timidity in leadership has thus far resulted in the party arriving nowhere in achieving its political programme.

New Amendment

It is developed today that Mr. Crerar, in an effort to conciliate the insurgents, while at the same time refraining from injuring the Government, will move an amendment of his own, that is absolutely insipid in character. This amendment, the insurgent Progressives say, was drafted by Mr. A. B. Hudson, a sort of Liason officer between Mr. Crerar and Mr. King and who sits on the Liberal front benches, a desk mate of Mr. A.K. McLean. Mr. Hudson was elected in Winnipeg as an Independent Liberal. He was elected in such a way and upon such a platform as would enable him to get upon either the Liberal or the Progressive band waggon in the event of their coming off victorious and, although Sir Lomer Gouin succeeded in keeping both him and Mr Crerar out of the Liberal Cabinet Mr. Hudson sitting on the front benches, and occupying the unique position of being at the same time Mr. Crerar's chief counsellor and guide, has done yeoman service for Mr King. To draft an amendment for Mr. Crerar as, beyond question a labor of love, for Mr. Hudson particularly, as the aim was to be polite to, and easy upon the Government, but it is not being relished by Progressives who are not Grits.

Crerar in Badly

They recall that Mr. Crerar is an old member of the Liberal party that he endeavored to attend the Liberal Convention of 1919, that he struck a a fatal blow at the Progressive movement in Quebec in the middle of the last election, that he endeavored with the election over to enter the Liberal cabinet; that he appointed the chief Progressive whip, Mr. J.F. Johnston an erstwhile bitter Liberal partisan and that finally he has endeavored all through the session to co-operate with Mr King. What the outcome to these suspicions will be heightened and fanned as they are being by Mr. Crerar's unconcealed efforts to save the Liberals at the present time, it is difficult to say. There are those who predict that the result will be a break up of the Progressive party with its Liberal following going over to Mr. King and its Tory element swinging over to Mr. Meighen. There are others who believe that it will merely see Mr. Crerar dethroned and entering the Liberal party as a regular communicant.

"Spell it whatever way you plaze" said Mrs. Donohoe recklessly. "Since I lost me teeth, there's not a wurrd in the wurrld

QUEER FEELINGS AT MIDDLE AGE

Women Should Know how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps at This Trying Period

Sheboygan, Wisconsin. — "I was run down, tired and nervous. I could not even do my own housework, could not sleep at night and all kinds of queer thoughts would come to me. Finally I gave up going to the doctor and a friend told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After the first bottle I could sleep better and I have kept on improving ever since. I have taken seven bottles now and am so happy that I am all over these bad feelings." —Mrs. B. LANSER, 1639 N. 3rd St., Sheboygan, Wisconsin.

For the woman entering middle age Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can be of much benefit. During this time of life certain changes take place which sometimes develop into serious trouble.

Melancholia, nervousness, irritability, headache and dizziness are some of the symptoms. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a natural restorative, especially adapted to assist nature in carrying you safely past this time. Why not give it a fair trial?

Life Insurance for Your Plant —both Indoors and Out

Do you realize that destruction by decay and rust and disintegration must come from without and that in every case the surface must be the point of contact; that paint combats decay, the natural enemy of wood; that it wards off rust, the persistent enemy of metal?

Do you realize, as do efficiency experts who have studied the question, that the scientific use of paint and varnish increases the light in a room from 30% to 50%, thus cutting down electric light bills; that it makes for greater accuracy in workmanship, thus increasing production; that it gives greater contentment and better working conditions, thus making for industrial stability.

Do you realize that the use of paint and varnish is an economy; that paint and varnish make things last; that they protect exposed surfaces from snow, rain, hot sun, and driving wind; that they make for efficiency, cleanliness and order? Do you realize that paint and varnish constitute life insurance for your property?

TO-DAY it costs less to paint than it did. The cost of materials has led in the downward economic trend of manufactured products. But no matter what it costs, the fact remains that it always costs more not to paint than to paint. Rust and rot go on till you check them. The logical time to paint and varnish is NOW.
