Day Training School Opens In St. Eleanors

ST. ELEANORS — Guest speaker Dr. M. N. Beck of Charlottetown, director of mental health for the province, outlined the work being done in day training classes and sheltered workshops for retarded children Saturday afternoon at the official opening of a new classroom for retarded children in the school here.

Dr. Beck stated that, as in regular schools, the children must be treated as individuals to find their capabilities as children and be guided towards their adult life.

Speaking on behalf of these classrooms, Dr. Beck said they are only used as training centres in the early years to help the children express themselves and this also helps tremendously towards their adult education.

He added that there are other areas in the province in need of these classrooms but the number of children in any one area was not sufficient to warrant them.
