RHYME OF RHYMFS

Wild on the mountain peak the wind
Repeats its old refrain,
Like ghosts of mortals who have sinned
And fain would sin again.
For "wind" I do not rhyme to "mind."
Like many mortal men.
"Again" (when one reflects) 'twere kind
To rhyme as if "agen."
I never met a single soul
Who spoke of "wind" as "wined,"
And yet we use it, on the whole,
To rhyme to "find" and "blind."
We say, "Now don't do that agen,"
When people give us pain.
In poetry, nine times in ten,
It rhymes to "Spain" or "Dane."
Oh, which is wrong or which is right?
Oh, which is right or wrong?
The sound in prose familiar quite
Or those we meet in song?
To hold that "love" can rhyme to "prove"
Requires some force of will.
Yet in the ancient lyric groove
We meet them rhyming still.
This was our learned fathers' wont
We follow it, or if we don't
We oft run short of rhymes.
—Andrew Lang in Longman's Magazine.

DICK'S GOOD TIME.

A Very Human Boy Enjoying His Well Earned Reward.
A portly gentleman sat on the porch and smiled while a small boy, also smiling, painted the front fence.
"Look at that boy," the portly man remarked to a visitor. "He thinks he is having a good time. A small boy is surely the drollest creature on earth. When I was a youngster, I remember that there were certain kinds of work I considered play, and one of them was painting. I was always crazy to paint. Many times I have taken a bucket of muddy water and an old paint brush and have spent a whole half day putting a thick coat on the side of my father's barn.
"So with my boy Dick, the little chap painting the fence. He has always been crazy to paint. He is enjoying himself now—you can see he is, and he will paint that whole fence, too, just as well as he knows how. I don't care if it is a trifle smeared. He's getting joy, solid joy, thicker than the paint on his hands and clothes.
"There's a mean side to it too. He wanted to paint the fence, and I wanted the weeds pulled out of the yard. So, like an underhanded rascal, I bargained with him. I told him that if he would pull all the weeds out I would let him paint the fence. He went through the other job like a soldier—he hates to pull weeds; all boys do—and now he thinks he is getting his reward. It is a downright shame to fool him that way. don't you think so?"
The portly gentleman chuckled again, and the small boy, wild with joy, went on plastering paint on the fence.—Detroit Free Press.

Crossing the Threshold.

Crossing the threshold was and is the most critical period of the wedding day with all races, not even excepting the Anglo-Saxon.
The superstitious fears of the many, always particularly alert on the occasion of a marriage, culminate in this final act of the drama. The lifting of the bride over the threshold or her stepping across it is the signal in Persia, Arabia and among the Copts of Egypt for the sacrifice of a goat or a sheep. Among the Aenezes, according to Burckhardt, the bridegroom simply kills a lamb in front of his father-in-law's tent, and the ceremony, but for the running of the bride from one tent to another, is complete. Perhaps the purest symbolical act is that of the Transylvanian Saxon bridal pair, who step over the threshold with their hands tied together. Some of these Transylvanian customs are remarkable and must be survivals from a very ancient period. The bridegroom never wears the shirt made for him by the bride except on his wedding day and at his burial, just as the veil of the Japanese bride becomes one day her shroud.—London Spectator.

FUNNY TOOTHACHE CURES

Before the days of dentists, and when people generally believed in the value of charms, there were ever so many mysterious ways of preventing toothache.
One of these was to dress the right side of the body first—right stocking, right shoe, right sleeve, right glove. A favorite plan in Scotland was to draw a tooth, salt it well and burn it in full view on glowing coals. In Cornwall many save their teeth by biting the first young fern that appear.
The custom of catching a common ground mole, cutting off the paws while the little creature still lives, and wearing them, is traced to Staffordshire, England. Some people who are fond of exercise believe that walking 12 miles—no more, no less—to get a splinter of the toothache tree that grows particularly well in Canada and Virginia will drive away the worst ache and pain that ever tortured a poor tooth.
The belief that toothache is caused by a worm at the roots is prevalent in many parts of the world; hence this cure: Reduce several different kinds of herbs—the greater variety the better—to a powder. Put a glowing cinder into this powder and inhale the incense. Afterward breathe into a cup of water and the worm will be gone forever.

Extraordinary Drinks.

Of the many extraordinary drinks regularly consumed the blood of live horses may perhaps be considered the most so. Marco Polo and Carpini were the first to tell the world of the practice of the Tartars and Mongols opening the vein in their horses' necks, taking a drink and closing the wound again. As far as can be seen this has been the practice from time immemorial.
There is a wine habitually consumed in China which is made from the flesh of lumps reduced to paste with milk or bruised into pulp with rice and then fermented. It is exceptionally strong and nutritious and powerfully stimulating to the physical organism.
The Laplanders drink a great deal of smoked snow water, and one of the national drinks of the Tongues is arack flavored with chickens' blood. The list would scarcely be complete without mention of absinthe, which may be called the national spirituous drink of France. It is a horrible compound of alcohol, anise, coriander, fennel, wormwood, indigo and sulphate of copper. It is strong, nasty and a moral and physical poison.

Warding Off Jealousy.

Old Gotrocks (savagely)—What's that! You mean to tell me that you really love my daughter for herself alone?
Young Hardup (tremulously)—Y-yes, sir, but I think I could learn to love you, t-too, sir, in t-t-time, sir.—Vanity Fair.

Fat is absolutely necessary as an article of diet. If it is not of the right kind it may not be digested. Then the body will not get enough of it. In this event there is fat-starvation.

Scott's Emulsion supplies this needed fat, of the right kind, in the right quantity, and in the form already partly digested.
As a result all the organs and tissues take on activity.
