

Wives Of Visiting Members Entertained

Mrs. J. Gordon MacDonald and Mrs. F. W. Curtis, whose husbands have been prominently identified with the activities of the Maritime Board of Trade meetings here during the week, have quietly but most effectively kept the wives of many of the delegates pleasantly engaged.

On Tuesday afternoon a short motor trip to nearby points was followed by an enjoyable visit to the Experimental Farm, where Superintendent R. C. Parent personally conducted a tour of the plant. The visitors were particularly impressed with the beauty of the late flowers still in bloom and the variety of colours so richly blended in the trees and hedges in the experimental area.

They were also much interested in the history and growth of the various trees planted by members of the Royal Family, former Governor's Generals and others, on historical occasions. As a fitting finale to a memorable afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Parent were "at home" to the ladies for a brief hour when tea was served.

Yesterday afternoon another outing was enjoyed when several interesting places were visited, including the Confederation Chamber in the Provincial building. At Government House, Lieutenant Governor Prowse, assisted by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Dr. L. E. Prowse, received the visitors in the most amiable manner. Tea was served during social hour which followed.

Liberal Women Hold Monthly Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Women's Liberal Club was held in the Community Centre Tuesday afternoon with a large attendance. The president, Mrs. Gordon Avard, presided.

Correspondence was read by the corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. J. Trainor. Mrs. G. A. MacDonald, treasurer, gave her report.

Mrs. D. J. Riley was appointed as delegate to the national convention of the National Federation of Liberal Women of Canada, to be held in the Chateau Laurier, October 29-30.

Tea was served by the tea committee, Mrs. Arnold Rattenbury, Mrs. Lemuel Prowse and Mrs. W. W. Reid, at the close of the meeting.

Concerned Over Gambling Spread

MONTREAL, Oct. 8 (CP)—Concern over the extension of gambling under the guise of supporting worthy causes was expressed today before the Montreal and Ottawa Synod of the Presbyterian Church of Canada.

The report of the Committee on Evangelism and Social Action, read by Rev. J. A. Koffend of suburban St. Lambert, said the committee is worried about the increases in gambling and particularly over the recent endorsement of the Canadian Bar Association of the legalizing of lotteries.

It felt the permissive sanction which legislation gave to bingo is being abused. Much of the money raised went to prize winners and only a small percentage to charity.

MONTREAL SLAYING Remains Mystery
MONTREAL, Oct. 8 (CP)—Police said today the slaying of Theodore Werner, rooming house owner whose decomposed body was found in his home Sept. 26, still is a mystery.

Detectives said they are no nearer a solution aside from evidence showing the 53-year-old man was alive late in August and that he was "apparently a murder victim."

Werner, dead for some weeks, was found with his skull battered in. A bloodstained piece of wood was found in the room.

Details Lacking On Retirement Of Brig. Connelly

OTTAWA, Oct. 8 (CP)—Details of the retirement of Brig. Alan B. Connelly, 44, former head of the Canadian military mission in Tokyo, may not become public unless the matter becomes a subject of questions in parliament.

Brig. Connelly was located in Ottawa today and told a Canadian Press reporter that he would discuss the circumstances of his enforced retirement 11 years before the normal time when brigadiers return to civilian life.

"I am quite prepared to stand on my record," he said and added that he would not question the Defence Department's brief announcement yesterday that when officers "are retired" it is because there is no employment for them in the service.

He would not discuss reports that he had been removed because he had failed to advise his principals in Ottawa last spring when a company of Canadian soldiers in Korea had been sent to help United States troops quell riots among prisoners of war on Koje Island.

Political spokesmen here have expressed the opinion that unless there is a more complete explanation of Brig. Connelly's retirement the question will be put to the Government in the House of Commons which goes into session Nov. 20.

Defence headquarters would not officially comment on the incident beyond saying Brig. Connelly is on retirement leave and that when senior officers "are retired" it is because there is no place for them in the service. That statement came only after published reports the officer had been "fired" because of the Koje affair.

There was no official comment on the reports linking the retirement with the Koje incident which brought an official Canadian protest to United States authorities last May when it was discovered the Canadians had been sent to the war prisoner base without consultation with Ottawa. Officials refused to be quoted on these reports.

Defence Department authorities yesterday professed to have no knowledge of Brig. Connelly's whereabouts but today provided this information to the press.

He was reached by telephone at the home of friends with whom he has been staying here. Speaking carefully but cordially, Brig. Connelly indicated he doesn't want to quarrel with anyone and has hopes of establishing himself in civilian life. He is an engineer but his entire career has been in the armed forces.

Brig. Connelly appeared a little shaken by the events of the past few weeks which saw his return to Canada primarily to take a staff course, and later his notification that he was to be retired.

He had been in the Tokyo post only nine months in a capacity which required him to act as military adviser to the Canadian embassy and head the military mission in Japan—a liaison between Defence Headquarters and the military establishments in the Japan-Korean area.

In retirement Brig. Connelly will get a pension of between $3,000 and $4,000.

It appeared likely that questions will be asked in the Commons if for no other reason than that the Koje incident itself came up there at the last session and brought a government statement that the Canadian troops were on the way to Koje before Ottawa even knew they were to go.

Mayors' Match Holds Spotlight At Plowing Meet

(By Ken Kelly)
CARP, Ont., Oct. 8 (CP)—Allan Lampert, Toronto's jolly mayor-turned-plowman, earned his farming spurs today. To do it, he worked like the beaver that capped the gold trophy he won from eight other mayors at the International Plowing Matches here.

Nobody was more surprised than Mayor Lampert when the judge gave him the first prize for a workman-like job of plowing in the mayors' class that took him more than an hour of tough tractor driving.

But his victory didn't end the friendly feud he has carried on with Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa whose challenge to a plowing match grew into the mayors' class at the three-day international.

Mayor Whitton, who placed third behind Mayor Ed Sargent of Owen Sound, challenged him to repeat the performance next year. But this time Mayor Whitton had a new twist.

"Next year if we girls have to wear jeans and slacks, the men should have to wear kilts," she said at the prize-giving which followed the event. Her suggestion was met with enthusiastic cheers from several thousand spectators.

During the match, while Mayors Whitton and Lampert shouted good-natured jibes across the plow-field, the other contestants got in some serious plowing.

Mayor Sid Emery of Parkhill in Western Ontario finished up fourth.

Mayor Lampert, flanked by a cheering section led by his daughters, took advantage of the opportunity to get in some publicity for Toronto. Foot-high letters on his white sweater front clamored "Toronto" while the back blazed out "Lampert".

Maritime plowmen, including the Prince Edward Island champion, made their first appearance on the entry list. Glen Morrissey, the P.E.I. champion from Cherry Valley, entered late yesterday and another Islander joined him, Sterling Moore of Pownal.

United Nations, N. Y., Oct. 8 (CP)—Trygve Lie, United Nations secretary-general, said today there should be a "more equitable sharing of the burdens" of the Korean war.

Lie did not amplify on this call for unity among U. N. members in seeking Korean war objectives. But he was interpreted as urging military aid in Korea from more U. N. members and more forces from some already contributing. At present 17 of the 60 U. N. members have armed forces in Korea while a total of 45 participate in some way.

The Secretary-General's request came in a statement on the world situation and the U. N. The statement is an introduction to his previously released annual report to the U. N. Assembly which opens next Tuesday with L. B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister, expected to be elected assembly president.

Pearson told the U. N. Monday, in a letter answering a U. N. query on what steps have been taken to implement collective measures against aggressors, that Canada "does not at present contemplate the recruiting and organization of further units of its armed forces for service with the United Nations."

Pearson noted that Canada has three battalions constituting the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group, three destroyers and one air-transport squadron in the Korean war effort, as well as commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Lie said today that an armistice along the present battle line in Korea would be "the first great victory for the principle of world collective security under law in the whole history of the League of Nations and the United Nations put together."

He's now on extended leave—compounded of homecoming annual and retirement leaves—and said he has been in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, Calgary and Kingston, since returning to Canada Sept. 3.

It was 12 days later that he was informed by Lt.-Gen. G. G. Simonds, chief of the General Staff, and Defence Minister Claxton, in that order that he was being retired. Four months had passed since the troops went to Koje.

In that time he got a letter from Gen. Mark Clark, United Nations commander in the Far East, complimenting him on his work in Tokyo.

U. S. Citizens In Canada May Lose Citizenship

MONTREAL, Oct. 8 (CP)—Thousands of United States citizens living in Canada, even though they hold valid passports and other documents, may possibly lose their citizenship overnight Dec. 24 when denaturalization clauses of the McCarran Act come into effect, the United States consulate here said today.

The object of the new law, a consular official explained, is to tighten the security of the United States by stricter control over admission of aliens and by withdrawal of citizenship privileges from persons failing to meet its obligations.

The official said that although detailed instructions regarding application of the new law have not yet been received, the consulate is asking U. S. citizens to check with their consulates to determine how they stand.

There was no cut-and-dried rule applying and circumstances could affect any individual case.

Among those expected to be affected are Americans of military age living in Canada who have failed to register at U. S. consulate. There was no immediate estimate available of the number in Canada.

In Ottawa, a spokesman for the U. S. embassy recalled that early last summer the U. S. Government ordered its nationals of draft age in other countries to register at their consulates for selective service in July or as they reached the draft age in following months. Under the McCarran Act passed by Congress at its last session, failure to comply would raise the presumption of an attempt to evade military training or service. That would make the U. S. citizen liable to loss of citizenship.

Picture Exhibitors Hold Meeting

SAINT JOHN, N. B., Oct. 8 (CP)—About 40 delegates gathered here today for the annual meeting of Maritime Motion Picture Exhibitors.

Re-elected were president A. James Mason, M.L.A., Springfield, N. S.; Nova Scotia vice-president, Fred Gregor, New Waterford; N. S.

Directors are R. S. Rodrick, Halifax; W. J. Fenety, Fredericton; B. Yeo, Moncton; P. E. I.; Mitchell Franklin, Saint John, and A. A. Fielding, Bridgewater.

Urges More U.N. Members Join In Korean War

IN over 100 years there's been no radical change or advance in the making of pies . . . NOW there is something sensationally new! . . . The SUPREME ALUMINUM "SPACE SAVER" PIE PLATE has been introduced to the "pie makers" of the nation and has taken the country by storm! The China Departments of both the Charlottetown and the Summerside Stores have the New Oblong Pie Plate in stock, priced just 50 cents. Let me tell you some of the reasons why this new innovation is so much better than the old round type plate: It makes a flakier crust, you get fast even heat and improved flavor, you can bake three pies in the space formerly taken by two, you get six generous servings per pie, you roll your dough into an oblong — thus saving trimming and waste, you can store it economically — there's only one edge of a pie to dry out, and it's simplicity itself to clean. If you want to improve your Pie Making — you'll definitely want one of these "Space Saver" Pie Plates from the China Department of either Holman Store.
