50TH BIRTHDAY OF ARMY MEDICAL CORPS WILL BE OBSERVED JULY 2

OTTAWA (CP) — Army saw-bones and pill-pushers in Canada, Europe and the Far East will celebrate the 50th birthday of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps July 2.

Claxton Comments On Gen. Simonds' Training Views

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Claxton Wednesday elaborated on a report quoting Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds as stating that he feels that the majority of Canadian officers share his view that every youth in the country should receive two years' military training.

ASKED TO EXPRESS VIEWS

General Simonds was at a meeting of officers of the Canadian army in Saint John. After giving a talk he was asked to express his views on the subject of national service.

"He made a reply which I think you could expect almost any officer to make, namely that he would welcome every youth in the country receiving two years' military training. Then he went on to say: 'I believe the vast majority of experienced soldiers would agree with me. But such training was impossible unless it received the whole-hearted support of the people of this country and that was a matter for judgment and decision by political leaders, not soldiers. In any event, experience tended to show that a period of universal military service of less than two years increased rather than diminished the problem of meeting commitments overseas. Further a system of universal military service was not a substitution for voluntary service; it could only supplement and never replace the voluntary system.'"

Banting. The building is named after Lady Banting's husband, the late Sir Frederick Banting, co-discoverer of insulin and former RCAMC officer.

Medical services in the Canadian army did not become a corps until a general order of July 2, 1904, announced that the Canadian militia army medical services would become known as the army medical corps. But origin of the Canadian army medical services goes back to the time of the Northwest rebellion in 1885.

The permanent component of the corps was granted the title "royal" in 1919 and this distinction was granted the reserve component in 1936.

During the Boer war two Canadian military hospitals were sent to South Africa. Their staffs included 16 militia nursing sisters.

In the Second World War, 34,786 personnel served in the RCAMC and 430 were battle casualties, including 504 killed.

More Alcoholics In Good Districts Than In Slums

TORONTO (CP) — R. J. Gibbins, research associate with the Alcoholism Research Foundation of Ontario, said Thursday there are more alcoholics living in good districts than there are in slums.

In an address to the Canadian conference on social work, Mr. Gibbins said a 14-month survey in an Ontario county revealed 608 alcoholics, 60 per cent of whom were skilled or semi-skilled workers, white-collar workers, professional men and women, and business executives. Only about six per cent were transient or casual laborers.

Discussion on alcoholism brought criticism of social agencies for not paying more attention to the problem and criticism of unsympathetic wives of alcoholics.

Still Hopes To Save Indo-China From Communists

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. diplomatic officials were pictured Wednesday as still hopeful that most of Indo-China will escape Communist control.

Thirty Democratic and Republican congressional leaders were briefed at the White House by State Secretary Dulles and Under-Secretary Walter Bedell Smith with President Eisenhower also participating. After the session, a veteran senator, asking that his name not be used, told reporters:

"They still expect Laos, Cambodia and part of Viet Nam to resist communism."

He did not indicate the basis for that view or say what, if any, part the United States might be expected to take in making it come true.

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senate Democratic leader, said the meeting was "just a review" and no new policy decisions were set out. Republican leader William Knowland of California declined comment on that point.

One House leader described Smith's review as "pessimistic." Some others tended to agree with house Speaker Joseph Martin (Rep.-Mass.) that the leaders got a picture of "a serious situation, but there is a ray of hope."

Martin said he was encouraged by prospects of winning support for Dulles' proposed united action to draw a line against communism. He said some nations are becoming aroused over the situation—among them Britain, Australia, New Zealand and the Federated Malay States.

He said there also are indications that India is becoming more concerned, partly because it states regards Laos and Cambodia as states springing from an Indian culture.

Smith, just returned from Gen. Brooks clinic, said only 22 persons out of 576 referred to the clinic in 1953 came from social agencies.

She suggested that wives of alcoholics treat their husbands' problem as an illness and not blame them for an apparent lack of affection.

Delegates at the conference were told that there are 137,589 known alcoholics in Canada. Based on an adult population of 8,700,000, the rate is 23 alcoholics to every 1,000 adult persons.

Replies To Charges Too Much Cement

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., (CP)—William J. Lundrigan, president of a Corner Brook construction company under his name, has replied to Progressive Conservative charges that too much cement was used in a government-financed cement plant which the firm built.

Opposition Leader Hollett charged in the legislature recently that the government bought 160,000 bags of cement from the Lundrigan firm apart from the contract for 6,400 cubic yards of concrete.

Mr. Lundrigan, in a prepared statement, denied selling any cement to the government and he said complete construction of the cement plant at Humbermouth on the west coast took less than 60,000 bags of cement.

He said he received monthly progress payments from the government for the construction of the plant and "had Mr. Hollett examined the progress estimates and approved payments very thoroughly it could easily have been seen what I am now making clear and he would not have made such ridiculous statements."

"How a man in his position could make such statements without first assuring himself beyond doubt of the truth, or the facts, as he chooses to call it, is beyond me."

eva where Indo-Chinese and Korean peace talks have been under way for the last two months, spent an hour outlining the situation, and Dulles talked for another half-hour about the over-all international outlook.

AWAIT CHURCHILL

The briefing came in advance of the week-end visit here of British Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden, who arrive Friday for conferences aimed at bringing Britain and the United States more nearly toward a common view.

The two countries have differed on the U.S. suggestion for a Southeast Asia pact at this time to halt further Communist aggression in that area. Eden told the House of Commons Wednesday that such a pact "might be a future safeguard, but it is not a present panacea."

Knowland said he expects another similar briefing to take place after the week-end talks.

Both the council and the cabinet are to meet today for further preliminary talks.
