7,000 Gallons Of Gasoline Lost In Summerside

—Upwards of 7,000 gallons of gasoline ran wild at Summerside yesterday morning after a three-ton truck struck and broke off a swing joint on one of four large storage tanks at the British American Oil Company plant on Harvard Street. The resulting loss of this hugh quantity of gasoline created a highly explosive atmosphere, that, if ignited could have caused great disaster.

The accident occurred when the large refrigerator van struck the swing joint at the base of one of these large overhead tanks, each of which has a capacity of 12,000 gallons. The joint snapped off where it was attached to the tank and nothing could be done to stop the heavy flow of gasoline.

About 588 gallons were saved by setting a pumping motor in action to pump gasoline back into a railway tank car, but over 6,000 gallons spilled over the ground and was a total loss.

Sensing the existing danger the manager summoned the police who stood guard to prevent traffic in the area while town employees set up water hoses and washed most of the gasoline into the nearby brook.

The truck that was in contact with the tank was not moved until the extreme danger seemed past, and great care was taken by the men who worked to eliminate the danger.

Heavy gas fumes, while steadily lessening in strength, hung over the area for several hours.

The hole in the big tank was later plugged and the tank filled with water to force out gas fumes. It was then drained and steamed for four hours.

Air Cadet Inspection At Summerside Yesterday

—The annual inspection of the Number 53 Air Cadet Squadron of Prince Edward Island took place at the Summerside Airport last evening. Wing Commander L. C. Dilworth was the inspecting officer and in his address to the cadets he said he was very pleased to be invited to inspect the squadron because "I feel that the air cadet movement is really worth while and offers many privileges and rewards to the cadets. Apart from the training you get in drill, aero engineering and so forth you are also given the opportunity of really worth while outings, your camp, trips to the United Kingdom, to the United States and these are things that are really worth while working for."

W/C Dilworth went on to say that a lot of busy and important people are devoting a lot of time to the air cadet movement and all for one purpose only, that the air cadet movement will achieve its ends. "When you think of it in these terms," he said," you must realize your responsibilities to the movement. "This," he continued," is military training, but more important, it is training in citizenship. You are learning the meaning of integrity and I am pleased to see that you are applying yourselves so well to your duties and I wish you continued success."

At last night's inspection the results shown will determine the winner of the Group Captain Lewis Trophy which has been won for the past two years by this squadron, in competition with the Charlottetown Squadron.

There was a good attendance last evening of parents and friends of the air cadets and the manner in which the young cadets went through their military drill was most impressive, especially was this evident in the precision drill which was performed without spoken commands.

The Number 53 Squadron is under the sponsorship of the local Wing of the R. C. A. F. Association and commanded by S/L Murray Shanks. Present last evening at the inspection were Mr. G. M. Mulholland provincial president, John Mungall, president of the local Wing and Mr. Roy Johnstone, immediate past president of the Summerside Wing.—S.

Two-Year Sentence In S'side Stolen Goods Case

—A 12-man petit jury yesterday found Alfred (Toad) Cahill, 28, of Summerside, guilty of possession of stolen goods and he was sentenced to two years in Dorchester Penitentiary by Mr. Justice George J. Tweedy.

Cahill had been arrested on the night following a break at the War Assets Store in Summerside, which occurred on the night of December 25. When arrested he was wearing a sheepskin vest which later was identified as one of the artcles of clothing stolen in the break at the War Assets Store.

After deliberating for an hour and ten minutes, the jury returned to request further instruction from Mr. Justice Tweedy on what constitutes a "reasonable doubt". Following lunch, the jury returned after another forty minutes in the jury room, and rendered a verdict —"Guilty, with a strong recommendation for leniency".

Before sentence was passed, Mr. Lowell Allen, counsel for the defence, said that the accused, having been convicted as charged, was liable to a maximum of 14 years, and requested His Lordship, Mr. Justice Tweedy to consider the jury's recommendation for leniency, and also to take into consideration the relatively small value of the articles his client had been convicted of having had in his possession.

Mr. D. O. Stewart, Q.C., Crown prosecutor, said that he did not wish to appear vindictive, and while he did not ask for anything like the maximum sentence, he did feel that the public had a right to expect adequate punishment to be meted out, especially in view of the fact the accused had been before the courts 28 times in the last 12 years, which appeared to indicate he was of an incorrigible nature.

Mr. Justice Tweedy before passing, said he felt that in the case of the accused the family, home, church, or society had failed. Because of his age and his possibilities for good instead of evil, and in view of defence counsel's plea and the recommendation of leniency by the jury, Mr. Justice Tweedy said he was making the sentence as light as possible, according to law.,

Both Mr. Justice Tweedy and Mr. D. O. Stewart, Q.C., congratulated Mr. Lowell Allen, counsel for the defence, on his first address before a petit jury, and for the excellent presentation of his case.

The Judge in explaining the law told the jury there were three essential ingredients in the case:—

1. That the property had been stolen.
2. That this property was in possession of the accused.
3. That the accused when he received it knew it had been stolen, or in other words had "guilty knowledge".

He explained the doctrine of recent possession by saying that if a party is in possession of goods which have recently been stolen, it lies with him to account for this possession.

He said that in the light of the explanation given it would be for the jury to say whether the prisoner is guilty or not guilty.

He pointed out that this did not remove from the crown the burden of proof which is always on the prosecution.

After the court had resumed following the noontime recess, on recommendation of Sheriff J. Hubert Hall, a motion was placed before the court by Mr. D. O. Stewart, that Police Constable Elmer Matheson be appointed a constable for Prince County, and this appointment was ordered accordingly by Mr. Justice Tweedy.

The Supreme Court now stands adjourned until 11:00 a.m. on Friday, June 12th.

Pictured above are members of Summerside Squadron Air Cadets Number 53, who were recently taken for a plane trip over the Western section of the Province. The air cadets of this squadron were inspected at the R. C. A. F. Station, Summerside last evening by W/C L. C. Dilworth and on the basis of the results of the inspection will depend the winner of the Wing Commander Lewis Trophy which has been won for the past two years by this squadron in competition with the Charlottetown Squadron.—S.

Let's Talk It Over

by "d"

There seems to be a mistaken idea in and around Summerside that pupils who take Grade XII in Summerside High School do not get any credit for their work in Maritime universities. A rumor to this effect has reached our ears more than once, and in all fairness to the institution, and to parents who are considering the advisability of sending their offspring to Grade XII in Summerside, we think it should be made clear that Grade XII students are receiving credits for work done at our high school every year. If a boy or girl intends to take an Arts course in one of the Maritime universities, he can get five credits, which constitutes a full year's work. If he plans to take a Science course, he can get four credits, four-fifths of a year's work. Considering the fact that a year at one of the universities will cost a minimum of eight hundred dollars, it would seem to be the wise thing to do, both from the financial angle, and from the fact that many parents like to have their boys and girls at home with them as long as possible.

However, it must be admitted that there may be special circumstances which make it desirable that certain students take their university work away from home, and it may even be a good idea in some special cases to have the pupil take part of the high school work in an institution containing dormitories, where supervision is possible, not only during school hours, but also during study hours in the evening. It's seems pretty well established that some students who have been wasting their time in the regular high school, have done better in schools where they were required to be in residence. In such cases, parents are occasionally heard to make disparaging remarks about the home school instruction, and cite the fact of their children's better showing abroad as proof to bolster up these remarks.

These parents are forgetting one important factor; that the students, being in residence, are better controlled during their hours of home study In other words, it is often the parents who has fallen down on the job at home, and his offspring has done better work away from home because the home phase of "operation school" has been vastly improved. In general, parents show consideration for the efforts put forward to instruct their children, and the difficulties involved, but occasionally you will find one who, looking into junior's big, beautiful, blue eyes, realizes at once that the rest of the world, including teachers, is sadly out of step. It's an understandable weakness, and should, perhaps, be looked upon with forbearance.
