HAPPENINGS

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Montgomery have returned from a week's trip to Saint John and Massachusetts.

Mr. D. R. Hardy, Edmonton, Alberta, who has been on a business trip to Toronto, arrived by plane on a short visit to his sister, Mrs. J. C. Montgomery and Mr. Montgomery.

Mrs. Mildred Royce Crowell, Women's Editor, Yarmouth Herald, who has a host of friends on Prince Edward Island, will be sorry to hear that she is very ill. A prominently displayed item on the front page of the Herald states that Mrs. Crowell has entered the Yarmouth Hospital for major surgery. Mrs. Crowell has come through the operation but Mrs. W. H. V. Dunbar in a long distance telephone call to Yarmouth learned from Mrs. Crowell's housekeeper that Mrs. Crowell's condition is serious.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen MacLeod, City, left recently for Miami, Florida, where they will meet with their son-in-law and daughter, Lt. James R. Bouyard, who have recently returned from France.

Truro's Postmaster Has P.E. Island Relatives

Impending retirement of Truro's postmaster and the appointment of a new Postmaster were announced recently. Postmaster J. Harry Bryson, who retires on July 26, will be succeeded by Assistant Truro postmaster, L. L. Dearmond.

Mr. Dearmond, a native of Belmont, joined the Truro postal staff as a clerk on January 3, 1938. He was promoted to night supervisor on October 1, 1948, and to assistant postmaster March 1, 1957.

Academic Responsibility Emphasized By Wellesley

"As We Saw Wellesley" could have been the theme of those attending the reunion of Wellesley College recently. Mrs. John Myrick of Tignish was among the alumnae present. Some of the people, places and events recalled were the following: The advanced courses in political science; the foreign courses learned through individual laboratory work; the famous Browning collection in the library; studying the heavens through the twelve-inch telescope in the observatory.

good in one's experience but having gone over the road it is well to be able to look back with magic in the eyes of the beholder as apparently do these seniors and other guests of Wellesley.

National Water Safety Wk. Red Cross Rules Are Help

"Double fatality takes the life of father and son." Monday's newspapers, after each summer weekend, too often carry these grim headlines of drownings at resorts and beaches where holiday-makers have crowded to "get away from it all."

ELLEN'S DIARY

Now Where Is That Goat Blest If I can Find Him

And then a new day—a new week, was come.

"Just think of it" a housewife offered today with obvious surprise "only a few days now and the Spring will be gone! It's not" she said "that I don't like the summer, but I'm sorry to see the year passing so quickly away."

"It's not the best spring—as to the finances of farming" we overheard one of the family comment to a visiting farmer today. "The rise in potato prices helped brighten it some but"

"Not the best" the visitor agreed. "But can you remember back to the hungry thirties? Those were the hard days on farms! I remember—I'll I'd rather not recall them unless it is to be grateful for these times we have. Man, if we lived now as we had to then! Money! What a scarcity of it there was, I mind taking a load of wood to town one day. No money in my pocket—none either at home. I had a long wait on the Market Square before a customer came along. He gave me the current price then—two dollars? Only two dollars. But to me it was a remarkable sum. I was able then to pay the ten cents for my horse's stabling and I had the remainder to take home to buy our necessities—the bit of tea and molasses and matches we must have."

Nowadays—of there's no comparison! None at all. It is a hard spring in a way because there are so many demands now on a farmer's purse and the prices of his sales' stuff is low in accordance. Seeds, lime, fertilizer, gas, oils, repairs to machines—there's no end to his outlay. But when we look back and remember how hopeless times were in those old days, it's not so bad after all. If they're careful, the farmers will weather it."

"They'll have to" our farmer grinned "or else get out and look for a job!"

In today's cloudy spell of weather and showery, the field-work must mark time. Not without signs on the part of the farmers who would like to have the grain all in.

"It's getting late" one commented eyes on the calendar. "It's hot late yet" we said "why we haven't had the sheep-storm!"

"And that" James commented "is another year ahead of us—the shearing."

Granddaughter brought us fetching and fragrant sprays of wild apple bloom from a tree adorned beautifully in white, up the stream.

"Will there be acorn this year?" Mack queried noting the lawn-oak winsome now in new leaf "leaf and catkins."

"Will there be field crops in abundance—and fruit? So many queries remain for the Summer to answer."

"I wonder where that goat's got himself to?" Mack asks now at the door the night at his shoulder. "I can hear his bleat, but I'm blest if I can find him in the dark. Where is he? That is the question. Perhaps if you'd come you could find him."

"This day too has now strayed away."

Until tomorrow—Diary—Good-night.

KINGSTON UNITED W.M.S.

The regular meeting of the Kingston United Church Auxiliary of the W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Lorne Smith on Tuesday evening, June 2nd.

Meeting opened with call to worship, followed by prayer of approach and Lord's Prayer in unison. Hymn "In Christ There is no East or West" was sung.

Scripture reading was taken from Ephesians and Acts, followed by comment, and questions and discussion of same. Prayer closed the worship service.

Missionary Prayer was given by Mrs. Elmer Younker. Mrs. Owen Younker had charge of study book. Reading "Our Christian Stewardship" was given by Mrs. Logie Smith.

Minutes of previous meeting were read and approved. Roll call was answered by 11 members repeating a verse of scripture from the Psalms. There were three visitors present. Collection for the evening amounted to $3.75, Friendship Fund $8 cents.

It was decided to have an ice-cream festival in the hall for the Mission Band on July 9th. It was also decided to have a pantry melts and pear centers are lightly caramelized. Serve warm or cold.

TRICK OF THE CHEF Here is a new way to saute liver: Order 1 1/2 lbs. thin-sliced veal or beef liver. Scald with boiling water.

Insert sharp knife under skin on outer edges and pull off in "ribbons."

HOUSEHOLD HINT

To protect the wood finish behind door knobs when you clean them, cut a cardboard shield to fit around the knob and key plate.

Press the sections of a clothes pattern before laying it out for cutting.

When giving a complicated dinner party, list times to begin preparing and cooking various items.

IDA BAILEY ALLEN

Only Non-Sweet Salads Are Right For A Dinner

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN "What does the term 'molded salad' mean to American homemakers?" queried the Chef.

"To me it means any vegetable, fruit, meat, egg, cheese or fish mixture added to a gelatin base, transferred to a mold, chilled and turned out to serve with a garnish of salad greens."

WHAT BASES? "What kind of gelatin bases are used for these American type molded salads, Madame?"

"Generally lemon or lime gelatin is used for fish, chicken or eggs and a fruit-flavored gelatin is favored for a fruit salad mold."

"A little fresh lemon juice is added to the base for fish, meat or eggs, which gives the gelatin a slightly tart flavor, but it's still too sweet to be combined with savory."

ONLY FRUITS "Only fruits should be molded into salads made with prepared gelatin and these belong only in 'ladies' luncheons' on a fruit or cottage cheese salad plate."

"Why do homemakers serve sweetish molded salads at dinner parties, Madame?"

"Because they mistakenly consider them elegant. Also, they are easy to prepare and look colorful."

"If a molded savory salad is to be served," the Chef observed, "it should be made with a basis of plain unflavored gelatin added to suitably seasoned clear consommé or broth. No sugar should be used."

AS A MAIN DISH "Such non-sweet molded salads are suitable for the main dish a luncheon, supper or informal summer dinners. But molded sweet salads, however they are made, are miscast at any dinner, formal or informal."

"Tossed green salads are the correct choice for dinner, with occasionally a saladette, which is a small portion of vegetable, fish, meat or egg salad on lettuce, served as a first course, when the tossed salad is omitted."
