BIRDS. Sure, maybe you've heard the storm thrush. Whistling in the March, Before there's a primrose peep out Or a wee red one on the lawn. Whistling in the sun to come out of the cloud, An the wind to come over the sea, But for all he can whistle so clear an loud, He's never the bird for me.

PEACE OF THE PAST. It Was Brought About by a Good Man and His Good Wife For a Couple Who Had Loved and Been Separated.

"For the land's sake, pa," called out Mrs. Drusilla Gladden to her husband as he wiped his feet on a piece of carpet at the kitchen door. "I thought you'd never get in! Guess who's sent me a letter. You'd never think in a month of Sundays. It's from Devah Bland—my cousin Devah." Pa gave a smile of interest and rubbed his hands. "Well, I swan now! And what has Devy got to say for himself?"

The pathetic story of Romeo and Juliet is repeated every day in modern life, with the exception that Juliet does not die by poison. She dies because of her own neglect or ignorance. Neglectfulness causes much of woman's peculiar sickness. Neglect of the minor troubles causes serious complications. The irregularities, the burning, dragging ache, the debilitating drains that mark the progress of feminine diseases, are passed lightly over or are borne in ignorance of their cause. Their continuance means death or insanity. This is all unnecessary. So-called female weakness can be cured. It can be cured quickly and permanently, and right in the privacy of the home without the humiliating local treatment so universally insisted upon by physicians. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription does this and more. It acts directly on the delicate organs concerned and makes them strong and healthy. It banishes the usual discomforts of the expectant period and makes baby's coming easy and almost painless. It tones and strengthens the nerves. At all medicine stores.

I don't want to miss none of it, do you? How can we fix it? Pa was so appreciative of his wife's praise he tilted back in the rocker and gave the matter solemn thought. "I calculate we kin have this all to ourselves," he began, "if you can hold out 'gainst mentionin' Devy's comin. It will be hard work for you, Drusilly, but it's the only way. Do you think you kin hold that news over prayer meetin' and Sunday? I tell you what," he went on excitedly. "We can just have the whole thing happen right here, meetin' an all, if you don't tell."

Mrs. Gladden's pleasant face fell. "I wonder if it'll be fair not to tell the rest of the folks?" she began. "You see, Devy'll be expecting a big welcome." Asahel Gladden rose up in his socks. "Drusilly, I have jest set my heart on managin' the whole thing. Don't you disappoint me. I never had so much chance as this in all my mortal life. I always wanted to do sech directin' and managin', and don't you disappoint me."

"What'll folks say when they find we held that news?" asked his wife, much impressed, but giving up, as usual. "They'll say you've come to years of discretion, though I don't want to hurt your feelings none, Drusilly. You can take it all out fixing up the spare room and Marindy's room. It air lucky Angeline hain't been down here yet—another clear pintin. Now hurry up the dinner and write Devy a letter tellin' him he must come right here, and we won't take no for an answer. I'll hitch up the cutter, and we'll go over to town and engage Angeline for the whole endurin' week."

The two were as excited as children. The letter had to be strong enough to suit pa and was the labor of an hour for Mrs. Gladden ere it suited him. Dinner over, they tucked themselves into a green sleigh and drove over to New California. "We'll stop on the way," said the small and rosy man. "I feel so anxious to get hold of Angeline."

"Oh, you do?" questioned the wife demurely. "Well, as our Marindy declared, your pa's passenger'n any one." Angeline Culver—Angeline Porter that was—was visiting at old Dr. Norman's. She and Cissy Norman had always been close friends. She came out to the sleigh to speak to Mrs. Gladden. She was quite dressy and had on a pink house sack trimmed with white lace. She had tied a little white cascade over her brown waves.

than she war. Devy air a man; that settles it all. Now do your part. Leave Devy to me. Men understand men!" He brought Angeline and her valises back in an hour. Mrs. Gladden rejoiced in her womanly beauty. She kissed her as tenderly as if she had been a young girl when she helped her in. Angeline's face beamed. "How nice you've made everything for me!" she cried. "It's like home coming." Her face grew thoughtful. "It makes me think of old times—old friends."

"Well, just settle down and make yourself at home," said pa, coming in. "I have to be gone an hour or two. You and ma can have a good old talk." A while later he was stamping off the falling snow on the platform of the station. The express stopped, an unusual proceeding. A tall, bronzed man alighted, and pa met him, so eager he almost cried over him as he shook hands. "Alas, alas! All pa's finesse and subtle phrases were forgotten. Finally he reined in Dolly, almost in sight of the house. "Devy," he quavered, "I always felt so sorrowful 'bout you an Angeline Porter's break off. You war so happy together when you was young. Devy, I've got Angeline here. She air a widow; she air a finer woman 'n you could see in a day's travel. It air the desire of my heart to bring you two together."

Good Ma Gladden came out to the sleigh. She, too, had forgotten her part. She had been crying and broke down. "Please 'scuse Angeline," she said brokenly; "she's there in the parlor. Don't you want to go in, Devah? I guess you needn't be afraid." The tall man strode past her, his own eyes misty. The wedded couple left on the steps were not ashamed to kiss each other with tears and smiles. —Chicago News.

Important Auction Sale

I am instructed to sell by Public Auction, at the Court House, in Charlottetown, on Wednesday, December 20th, 1899, at 12 o'clock, noon, that large four story brick building on Grafton Street, now occupied by F. Perkins & Co., as a dry goods store. This building was erected in 1896, and is one of the largest and most attractive store buildings in the city; it is centrally located, being immediately opposite the Post Office; and on the street which most persons from the northern and eastern sections of the country now use when driving into market, and which those from the southern districts will use, after the bridge over the Hillsborough River is built. This is one of the rare chances to secure property in the very centre of the business part of the city. Terms: Ten per cent at sale; balance on delivery of deed within ten days. R. BEARISTO, Auctioneer. Charlottetown, Nov. 28, 1899.

IT'S TOO RISKY

To undergo an operation for itching. Piles when Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment is a surer, cheaper, easier way to cure. Cruel, barbarous methods belong to the dark ages of the past. There was a time when a surgical operation was considered the only possible cure for piles. Not so now. Occasionally there is still found a physician who adheres to this dangerous and expensive method, but to every one who still believes in using the knife, ninety and nine recommend the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Dr. C. M. Harlan, writing in The American Journal of Health, said: "We know that 'Dr. Chase's Ointment' meets all the requisitions of the highest standard of worth, that it will be held in high esteem wherever it is used, and consequently we endorse it to every reader."
