COMPLIMENTARY SUPPER.

On the eve of his departure for Ontario the Directors of Stanley Bridge Dairying Company tendered their efficient and popular cheese maker, Mr. A. J. Biffin, a goose supper. This pleasant event took place at the beautiful home of the Vice-President of the Company, D. McKay, Esq., Campbellton, on Friday evening, the 30th of October.

The Directors, with their wives and invited guests to the number of thirty, spent a very pleasant evening. The night dove on with song and clatter "till the hour of 12, when all were seated at the tables and justice was done to the excellent repast provided by the ladies. The following toasts were then proposed and duly honored, the popular President of the Dairy Company, Thomas Reid, Esq., presiding:—

Our Guest.—Responded to by A. J. Biffin.

The Dairy Industry.—Dr. Macneill, Walter Simpson, W. J. Simpson and A. J. McLeod.

The Ladies.—Walter Simpson.

Our Host and Hostess.—D. McKay.

The speeches were a happy blending of the humorous and practical. Our honored President also gave an address on the great advances made along all lines during the last half century, noting the great step from the reaping hook to the self binder and from the flail to the threshing and separator, showing that the conditions of life for the farmer of to-day were much easier and better than fifty years ago. James Bristow, the gold medalist and first-prize cheese maker was present with us from Emerald, and helped along with the entertainment.

The piano music and songs by Mrs. G. W. Bell, and the Scotch songs by W. D. Whitehead, Esq., were highly appreciated, and did much to enliven the proceedings.

Mr. Biffin has, we understand, been engaged by the Directors to manage the factory next season.

In the "small we hours" again the "twal" in the meeting dispersed, well pleased that they had met to do honor to a worthy representative of the great and ever-increasing dairy industry.

COMPENSATION.

A face of wistful brightness, Clear shining after rain;

Eyes that can look forth calmly Yet with an inner glow;

A cheek with quivering lip, To the life-blood's ebb and flow.

A soul in touch and kinship With the things beyond our ken—

That yet hath felt deep yearning For the gifts more prized of men.

When lo! the years unheeded— Their sign the silver thread—

Have brought for all past missing, A wondrous grace instead—

The rare sweet grace of sharing All other hearts can know—

From the little child's first feeling, To the depths of joy or woe;

And more—for its own deep longing The spirit hath found rest;

A strange, new power of thrilling In answer to earth's best—

The glad, faintest of sky and tree and flower And all men's souls have wrought—God's own rich dower.

M. ALGON KIRBY.

"I am very fond of every body, but if they think they are to have a voice in the selection of my future husband they never made a greater mistake. If they take any extreme measures I shall be more determined than ever, for I am resolved they must not coerce me into a marriage which is distasteful.
