

Win with 'R and G'

"Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are Dead" is not your average play. Aside from being a smash hit on Broadway, the play also promises to set some dramatic precedents as far as the UPEI Theatre Society is concerned.

There are many, many strange things happening during the rehearsals. This comedy is as funny as they come and is as black as an Arctic afternoon.

The play is marking the debut of a number of students on campus as well as bringing back a variety of your favourites in new and exciting roles.

The director is rumoured to be worried about the possibility of the RCMP vice squad interrupting his stark interpretation of this modern theatre classic.

Only the opening night will tell if those who are marked for death die.

If you have read Hamlet and can tell us the name of the two childhood friends of Hamlet you would win Two Free Tickets to the show. The names will be drawn by the Netted Gem editor.

It's too simple: What are the names of the two spies who are assigned to bring Hamlet to England?

The theatrical event of this (or any other) season will be offered for your critical taste and praise March 14 to 17 at the Steele Recital Hall at 8:00 p.m. Admission for students is a measly 3 bucks.

You simply cannot buy real culture and good clean fun any cheaper. Don't worry: there will be many more chances to win an unusual evening of entertainment.

Attention Psych majors

In September of the 1983-84 academic year, Psychology Majors elected three students to represent them within the Department.

As student representatives, it is our responsibility to assist any student of Psychology in various areas of concern such as: student/professor conflicts; course problems; course selections; graduate school information; faculty advisor selection; suggestions for new courses? recommendations for changes within the Department, etc. ...

Should you need to employ our services in any of these or other relevant situations contact: Ms. Lynda Robertson, Ms. Sandra Fullerton and Mr. Colby Lewis in the Basement of Memorial Hall, Department of Psychology. (Or, leave a message with the departmental secretary B. Gillis).

If we can't help, we will locate someone who can.

Apply for degrees

All full-time and part-time students who expect to graduate in May, 1984 are reminded that they must make application for a certificate, diploma, or degree.
