LET'S EAT

A Lesson In Thrift

By Ida Bailey Aile

"Is penny-pinching really a lost art, Madame?" inquired the Chef. "Does the public still watch pennies?"
 "Many people do," I answered. "They are the ones who have learned that it literally is smart to be thrifty; that when the unnecessary expenditure of pennies is watched, dollars are saved. This in turn makes other expenditures possible, such as purchasing household equipment, better clothing, even vacations."
TOMORROW'S DINNER
 Chilled vegetable juice. Macaroni with cheese. Pan-fried Sausage cakes. Carrots with green onions. Spanish apricot cream. Hot or iced coffee or tea or milk.
 To serve: arrange around the macaroni and cheese.
 If the macaroni is baked in a go-to-table casserole, set it on a platter or small tray and surround it with the sausage cakes, tomato wedges and sprigs of cress or fresh parsley.
Spanish Apricot Cream: In a double-boiler top, combine the contents of 1 (12 oz.) can apricot nectar, 2 tsp. lemon juice and 1/2 c. water. Add 1 envelope unflavored gelatin, 1-3 c. sugar and 1/4 tsp. salt. Heat and stir until the gelatin melts.
 Next, separate 2 eggs. Beat the yolks until creamy. Slowly stir in 1/2 c. of the hot mixture. Return to the double boiler. Cook-stir until the mixture coats the spoon.
 Then beat the egg whites stiff. Fold in the apricot mixture.
 Rinse 6 good-sized individual molds with cold water and dust with granulated sugar.
 Spoon in the gelatin. Chill 4 hrs., or until firm. Unmold and serve with whipped cream or any whipped topping. Or garnish with halved sugared, fresh apricots and commercial sour cream.
SUGGESTION OF THE CHEF
 Scallions give a lift to many foods. Try them with 3 c. carrot rounds boiled 10 min. in 1" of salted water. Add 1/4 the quantity of scallion bulbs with 1" of the tops. Boil 5 min. longer. Add 1 tsp. butter.

COOK'S CORNER

DATE CAKE
 1 cup of chopped dates
 1 teaspoon of soda
 1 cup of hot water
 Put these ingredients in a saucepan and set aside.
 Cream one teaspoon of margarine, 1 cup of sugar, add one egg yolk. Then add 1 1/4 cups of flour, pinch of salt and 1 teaspoon of vanilla. Add the date mixture. Bake in 350 deg. F. oven for 35-40 minutes.

ELLEN'S DIARY

The Seeding Is Over

The seeding at Alderlea is over. Today saw last cultivating done, last drills fashioned, and then with the planting of the potato seeds and the sowing of turnips, we arrived at the end of the cropping. We always associate these activities in mind with the season of apple blossoms and pirating bees. So it was today.
 "You should see the bees among the apple blossoms in our orchard and in the hedge about the lawn. It's in bloom now too," grand-daughter came in to tell us today. "They're as busy as the men in the field" she smiled. "And the music you can call it that: June-music. I think it is that: June-music. The little gold-finch-mother is sitting now in the nest in the hedge." Mack offered, "I guess the eggs will be hatched before long. It didn't take long to build and settle, did it? They're fast workers, yes, and good ones, too! It's a snug nest and well made..."

MARY HAWORTH

Couple Has Status Lacking In Individual

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: A chance remark made in a beauty parlor 25 years ago sparks this letter. I was 23 at the time and newly married to a wonderful man, 10 years my senior, who had two young sons and lots of friends who welcomed me into their group. I was an only child, orphaned at 18, hence my life with Bob seemed the more wonderful.
 In the beauty parlor, a lovely looking girl remarked that she'd been in the city about a year. To which I replied: "Oh, so have I; don't you just love living here?" She surprised me by saying: "No, I don't. I think the people here are the coldest, most self-centered, most self-centered people I've ever met."
 While I gaped, she went on: "They have little cliques, and if you are included, fine; but try to get in! Nobody pays any attention to you; or gives a thought to your needs or feelings."
 The years passed swiftly. We were a close family unit and had a wonderful life and many friends. The boys grew. The elder finished his army service and married; and the younger was about to be graduated from college when I found I was pregnant. I was thrilled beyond measure.
EVERYTHING CHANGED
 Returning from the younger boy's wedding, Bob had a heart attack. A few days later Carol was born. For the next three years Bob was in and out of hospitals; and when Carol was three, Bob died. In those three years, everything had changed... Now I feel like the girl in the beauty parlor... I have money to entertain, I am left completely alone. Nobody remembers to invite me on Saturday nights, which years ago meant dinner parties for us, and still does for them. Occasionally I see old friends at church, who ask about the boys, and say how wonderful that I have Carol. But none of them thinks that at 49, I still have a life to live.
 I get so lonesome at times, I know exactly how that young girl felt. But don't think I just sit around feeling sorry for myself. I do my own thing. My days are full and I really keep busy, with church and charity work and an occasional job. But I feel so alone on weekends.
 I hope you publish this letter: It may help other lonely ones, by making the happy people stop and think and end a self-pitying attitude. I have done for the girl in the beauty parlor long ago. Do you have anything to add to this? Or any advice for me? R. D.
DISHONEST SLANT
DEAR R. D.: In your letter, here condensed, you say rather bitterly, with a good deal of self-pity, "I no longer belong to the clique, because I don't wear mink or drive a Cadillac." I think I ought to advise you against that kind of squawk. It is a dishonest slant, a false reproach against your former fair weather friends.
 It is a refusal to face up to precisely what you have lost, namely, your husband. It is pretty self-evident, and most women know it—as they prove in their scramble to marry—that adult society is organized around couples almost entirely. The pair has a status (potentially—an entree—that the individual (with rare exceptions) simply hasn't got.
 Also, you need to recognize that you aren't acting your age, nor giving a creditable account of yourself as a life-seasoned widow, when you identify yourself at age 49 with a young unmarried girl who was crying out against the loneliness of life in an indifferent town, many years ago.
 To assume that your present situation compares with hers of that time is to take for granted that you've been a static character for a quarter of a century—gaining nothing of wisdom or strength or adaptability from your experience as matron and mother. Have you been so blind to opportunities for growth? M. H.

R.C.A.F. STATION WEDDING

The R.C.A.F. Station at Summerside was the scene of a very pretty wedding when on May 19th Lorna Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Martin of Charlottetown became the bride of Alexander Lake, son of Mrs. Thomas Pike and the late Mr. Pike of St. Lawrence, Newfoundland.
 R.C.A.F. Padre F.O. Warren officiated.
 The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the Wedding March. She wore a suit of dusty rose with a white and white accessories and her corsage was of blue carnations. Her only attendant was her sister Marjorie who wore a white and black flecked suit with pink accessories and her corsage was of pink carnations. They both carried white prayer books.
 The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a navy suit with navy and white accessories.
 Her corsage was of white carnations.
 The groomsmen were Mr. Gordon Linehan of Newfoundland, a close friend of the groom.
 During the ceremony Flying Officer R.A. MacInnis sang three beautiful selections. The ushers were Ronald Smith and Norman Hanney of the R.C.A.F.
 Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Air Women's Lounge. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. W.E. Agnew of Charlottetown and responded to by the groom.
 Piano selections were rendered at the reception by Miss Nancy Gillis of Alberton and Flying Officer MacInnis also favored with several solos at the request of the guests.
 Mr. and Mrs. Pike left by plane late in the afternoon for a wedding trip through the Maritimes.

ELEANOR ROSS

Ready To Go Outdoors

It's time to take beachwear out of mothballs, get picnic equipment ready and plan for summer outdoor living.
 One of the cheapest and most effective methods of sprucing up summer equipment is with baking soda, that old reliable in kitchen cupboards and medicine chests.
 First take a look at your bathing caps. Perhaps you have some you feel should be discarded. But before doing so, try brushing them with a little moistened soda, then rinse them in fresh water and dry. They'll not only look brighter, they'll lose that stale rubbery odor and be all set for another swimming season.
BEACH BAGS
 Rubber-lined beach bags also benefit from a baking soda cleaning. Stored away for many months, the bag probably has a musty odor that will be passed on to your swim suit if ignored.
 Rub down the inside of the bag with a wet sponge, then wash with a solution of one tablespoon of baking soda to a pint of warm water. The bag will not only be clean but sweet-smelling, too.
 Apply the same technique when cleaning insulated bags in which picnic fare is stored. Since baking soda is a pure food product, it is completely safe to use on anything that comes in direct contact with food, as the interior of a picnic food bag. Same goes for vacuum bottles and jugs.
 To freshen, partly fill with water. Add two tablespoons of baking soda, shake well and let stand for a few minutes. Rinse with fresh water and let stand open to dry.
CRACKS AND CREVICES
 Corks and other closures, which can turn mildewy if put in the thermos while still damp, are freshened by brushing with moistened soda. Be sure to reach into all the cracks and crevices, for that's where mold settles.
 Diving masks, diving flippers and tubes are items that have been added to beach gear in recent years. This gear gets as dry and brittle from lack of use as from sitting around in the sun instead of being under water.
 Revive it with a rinsing in a solution of a quart of water and two tablespoons of soda. Then rinse in fresh water and dry. It's sound practice and good sense to put your beach gear and picnic equipment through the same cleaning process a couple of times during the summer to keep them in good condition.

MORNING SMILE

"You know, darling, she's been married to the same man for twenty years."
 "Not quite, dearie. After the first ten years or so no man's the same."
