Scientists Ponder Period Selected For Moon Flight

By RALPH DIGHTON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some space scientists are beginning to wonder whether the period 1967-70 is a good time to try to send a man to the moon, after all.

The reason: Solar flares — tremendous bursts of lethal radiation from the sun—are scheduled to reach a peak of intensity during those years.

Solar activity comes in cycles, with the highest intensity 10 to 11 years apart. The last peak was stretched over the years 1957-58.

One of the world's top authorities on solar radiation Dr. Seth Nicholson of Mount Wilson Observatory, says the next peak can be expected to stretch from 1967 to 1970.

TWO-YEAR MINIMUM

"Solar activity is declining now," he said in an interview, "and will reach a minimum in 1963-64. After that the intensity will increase each year.

"It's difficult to say just how great the activity will be in 1967-70, but certainly travel to the moon would be far more hazardous then than it would be in the next two years."

The U.S. hopes to make a moon landing this decade and to send a three-man Apollo capsule around the moon, perhaps by 1968. Russian cosmonaut Maj. Yuri GRagarin recently said his country could possibly mak a lunar landing in five years.

Solar flares are gigantic explosions on the sun, each millions of times more powerful than a hydrogen bomb. The worst usually last three or four hours, says Dr. Nicholson, "but there are indications some last as long as 24 hours."

These explosions spew out into space great flames of radiation far deadlier than those from the most powerful x-ray machine. A spaceship caught between earth and moon by one of the hours-long flares would be in serious trouble unless heavily shielded.

Just how much radiation can be expected — and how much shielding would be needed—has become the subject of a top priority research program.

Hospital Boards AndUnionToTalk

Locals 805 and 826 of the National Union of Public Employees, which cover non - professional workers at Charlottetown Hospital and Prince Edward Island Hospital respectively, are to go ahead and negotiate 1962 contracts with the hospital boards, according to a directive sent to the union locals Friday by Welfare and Labor Minister Henry Wedge.

The union asked wage increases of $20 per month for non-professional workers at the hospitals. Hospital boards pointed out that since the provincial Hospital Services Commission sets hospital budgets, the boards were not sure whether or not they could sign a contract involving hospital funds.

Mr. Wedge said Saturday that the union and the boards are to go ahead and arrange a contract; then the boards are to apply to the commission for the necessary money to cover any pay raises that might be called for in the contract.

The minister said that if satisfactory contracts cannot be arranged, a conciliation board will be appointed to settle the matter.

Landmark Mill Burns In N.S.

CONROD SETTLEMENT, N.S. (CP) — A heap of ashes, charred timbers and a couple of millstones are all that remained or Conrod's Grist Mill. Fire burned it to the ground Thursday night.

The ancient wooden structure, more than a century old, was one of the few pioneer water-powered mills still standing in this part of Canada.

It was owned by brothers Herman and Watson Conrod and had been built by their great-great grandfather. Herman said the monetary loss is about $5,000 but the sentimental value attached to the old landmark was far more.

The mill was built in the early part of the 19th century —no one knows exactly when— to grind grain for local farmers. Conrod Settlement is a tiny village a mile north of the main highway along Nova Scotia's eastern shore and about 20 miles east of Halifax.

Five generations of Conrods ground grain in the old mill. It drew its power from a wooden water - wheel driven by water held behind a dam at the south end of Conrod Lake.

The last grain was ground about 25 years ago then it became a shingle mill. The old water - wheel lapsed into disuse about four years ago. Since then the mill, converted to saw fire-wood, has been gasoline - powered.

Herman Conrod shut off the engine to go to supper Thursday night. Fifteen minutes later he looked from his house and saw smoke coming from the mill. He says he believes a spark from the gas - engine exhaust caused the fire.

Two other Conrods operate water - mills nearby on the same stream. One is a saw-mill, the other a shingle mill.

Island Man Is Ordained UC Minister

SACKVILLE, N. B. — (CP) — The United Church's Maritime Conference ended here Sunday with the ordination of nine men as ministers.

Ordained were Elmer W. Asaph, Baddeck, N.S., Douglas I. Cosman, Head of Millstream, N.B.; Graeme M. Frawer, Fairview, N.S. and Saint John, N.B.; Harold W. Higgins, Trenton, N.S.; Ralph B. MacCauld, Carleton Siding, P.E.I.; Donald L. Pierce, Jordan Ferry, N.S.; Stewart B. Russell, Amherst Point, N.S.; Robert E. Stevens, Glace Bay, N.S.; and Gilbert F. Todd, Moncton.

The candidates for ordination were presented by Rev. W. Clarke MacDonald of Sydney, secretary of the conference. Dr. David A. MacLennan of Rochester, N.Y., preached the ordination sermon.

"you've got to go, John" and You've had it, John," until Mr. Diefenbaker snapped: "You with the hoarse voice, you ought to take some horse medicine."

When Mr. Diefenbaker said he had been interrupted by only three or four persons, another heckler cut in with "and common sense."

DIEF TAKES BRUNT

The prime minister has encountered more heckling than any of the other leaders. He has also run into two demonstrations -- at Vancouver and Chelmsford, Ont. — in which wisecracks, if any, were drowned out in the general din.

Perhaps the most novel interruption of this or any other campaign was the self-disrobing by five women members of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect at Trail, B.C., while Mr. Diefenbaker was in mid-speech.

Mr. Diefenbaker said "that's no novelty to me" and "I was raised on a homestead in Saskatchewan and that's why I know what those things are."

BOY 13 IS IN COLLEGE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lance Kerr, 13, has finished his freshman year at the University of California at Los Angeles. He says it went pretty well.

"It won't be an A average," he said of the grades he expects in anthropology, physics, mathematics and Russian. "I believe I can depend on at least a strong B."

Lance is less than five feet tall and weighs 85 pounds. His vocabulary is vast, his pronunciation precise. He is quiet, poised and mannerly. He speaks like a grownup.

He learned to read at age two. How he learned was a mystery to his parents, Sylvia and Leon Kerr. "No one ever taught him," said Mrs. Kerr.

When he was just barely four he obtained a library card. By the time he started kindergarten, a few months later, he was reading 10 books a week.

He rushed through grade school, junior high and high school, mostly in private schools, and entered UCLA last September at 12.

"I intend to be a physicist," he said.

TORONTO (CP)—Jim Bremner, secrdtary-manager of the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club for 35 years, retired Saturday. Friends and Jersey breeders from various parts of Canada feted Mr. Bremner at a picnic at Cedar Branch park near here. Mr. Bremner plans to return to his home town of Chatham, N.B.

IN MEMORIAM

ACORN — In loving memory of James Everett Acorn, Alliston, who died by drowning on June 11th, 1960.
Sweet are memories that never fade,
Of one we loved but could not save.
Always so true, unselfish and kind,
Few in this world his equal you'll find.
Beautiful life that came to an end.
He died as he lived everyone's friend.
Always remembered by Laura and Bert.

ACORN — In fond and loving memory of our dear son James Everett Acorn, Alliston, who died by drowning on June 11th, 1960.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought the end was near.
And only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting without farewell
More each day we miss you, Son
Friends may think the wound is healed.
But little they know the sorrow that lies
Within our hearts concealed.
Fondly remembered by Mom, Dad, Brothers and Sisters.

HARPER — In loving memory of my dear husband Harold Arthur, who passed away, June 11th, 1958, Vancouver, B.C.
Those we love we never lose
For always they will be
Loved, remembered, treasured,
Always in my memory
I cannot forget your smiling face
Your happy carefree ways
The smile that won so many friends
In those happy by gone days
One of the best the world could hold
Your cherished smile, your heart of gold,
Always so good, unselfish and kind,
What a wonderful memory you left behind
Ever loved and greatly missed,
His loving wife, Babe.

MACDONALD — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Spurgeon MacDonald, who passed away June 11th, 1961.
We miss you, dear, with your heart of gold,
You were more to us than wealth untold.
The sorrow we feel words cannot explain,
The ache in our hearts will always remain.
If all the world were ours to give
We'd give it, yes, and more,
To hear your voice and see your smile,
Just as we did before.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they'll wipe out never
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.
Lovingly remembered by his wife and family.

IN MEMORIAM

BUELL — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Chesley S. Buell, who passed away, June 11, 1960.
We miss him because we loved him
He was dearer then silver and gold
No one on earth can replace him
His memory will never grow old
Although his smile is gone forever
His hands we cannot touch
Still we have so many memories
Of the dad we loved so much.
Sadly missed by wife, Florence, and Family.

BUELL — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Chesley S. Buell, who passed away June 11, 1960.
Sadly missed and always remembered by Velma, Stuart and Sheryl.

SIMONS — In loving memory of John Henry Simons, who passed away June 10th, 1961.
His life was unselfish,
For others he lived,
Not for what he received, but, for what he could give,
Just a loving memory,,
Just a silent tear,
Such a beautiful memory of a Father so Dear.
Ever remembered by daughter, Alice, son-in-law Angus, and family.

Price Hikes Noted Here

Price increases have been noted here in a number of grocery items, with others expected, but a large oil distributor said Saturday there would be no general price increase in the price of gasoline sold through its service stations.

A wholesale grocer in Charlottetown said Saturday that thus far he has had increases of 40 cents per case in starch, 25 cents in corn syrup, and small price hikes in such things as cereals and soda paper used to wrap meats, etc. for the customer), and they have been told there is a price increase coming in flour, although it hasn't come through yet.

There has been no increase in bread prices yet, it was learned, but it is expected when the price of flour increase reaches this area, it was stated.

The wholesale grocer said that candy is one of the items that has dropped slightly in price recently.

Imperial Oil Ltd. said the company "has no present intention of making a general increase in the price of gasoline sold through its service stations. Price fluctuations, up and down, can be expected to continue in price war areas, but it is our considered opinion that a general increase in service station prices cannot be sustained at this time, in view of the competitive situation in the market, even though crude and other costs have increased."

Argument Heard In Police Court

Argument by counsel was completed in the case of Willard M. Kennedy, Parkdale, and the accused was remanded for judgment until June 13, by Magistrate A.J. Haslam in city police court Saturday.

Kennedy, counselled by Lester P. O'Donnell, is charged with the possession of stolen goods, a Pioneer chain saw, valued at $215, the property of Holmans of P.E.I.

For operating a motor vehicle without a number plate attached to the front, an accused was fined $5 and costs or two days in jail.

Three drunk and incapables were each fined $20 and costs or 10 days.

Political Heckling Appears Almost Lost Art In Canada

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Is political heckling a lost art?

Certainly the wisecrack and pointed question from the audience have been undistinguished in the current election campaign.

In fact, some of the hecklers have been so inept that they have fed straight lines to the politicians who have swooped on them like a cat on a mouse.

For instance, in Victoria, when Prime Minister Diefenbaker was discussing the Bill of Rights an alleged heckler shouted: "What about the Indians?"

Mr. Diefenbaker fairly rubbed his hands in glee. Hadn't he given the Indians the vote? Hadn't he appointed an Indian to the Senate? Red-faced, the heckler subsided and was not heard from again.

No wonder, Mr. Diefenbaker said after his return from the west: "I love those questions."

ARE OLD HANDS

The prime minister, Liberal Leader Pearson and T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, are old hands at fielding interjections from the audience. But they haven't been really tested in this campaign.

Imagine Mr. Pearson being fed, as he was in Winnipeg, the question "how?" when he said a government headed by him would eliminate chronic unemployment.

"By electing a Liberal government pledged to put into effect the Liberal program," Mr. Pearson said—hardly a definitive test of wit for him or any other politician worth his salt.

Political audiences comprise mainly supporters of the platform speaker so that the speaker doesn't have to produce brilliant repartee to raise loud cheers. Any old gag often will do.

Mr. Diefenbaker has relied sometimes on two or three standard replies for hecklers, such as "you've earned your pay," "that's the usual percentage of Liberal supporters" or "that's the kind of interruption one heard before man acquired intelligence."

Mr. Pearson dismissed heckling in Edmonton one night with: "At the United Nations I have been heckled by Mr. Vishinsky, so I'm not going to be affected like that tonight."

Heckling was practically dormant in this campaign until the late trips west of Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson.

STARTED IN WINNIPEG

It began in Winnipeg in a small way ("What about Coyne?" when Mr. Diefenbaker was saying the Liberals had trampled on the rights of Parliament) and picked up steam on the westward trail.

At Prince George, B.C., a heckler sang out at Mr. Diefenbaker: "Why don't you bring up the 1930s?"

The prime minister: "How old are you? Your question indicates you weren't even born then."

In the same city, Mr. Pearson caught a heckler's remark about the "same old (Liberal) gang."

Mr. Pearson: "The same old gang that did such wonderful things for Canada from 1945 to 1957. This is that same party which ushered Canada into a new era."

In Victoria, one megaphone-voiced heckler gave Mr. Diefenbaker his hardest time.

When the prime minister said socialism had "driven" 240,000 persons from Saskatchewan, the heckler shouted "you're still there." And he went on with
