Monthly Meeting Ch'town C.W.L.

The regular meeting of the Charlottetown sub-division of the Catholic Women's League was held Tuesday evening, in the Knights of Columbus Home, with a good attendance.

Reverend Director, Father P. Francis MacDonald was present and opened the meeting with the League Prayer. Mrs. Fred J. Steele presided.

The financial statement was read by Miss Gertrude Ooady which showed the league to be in good financial standing.

Correspondence as read by the secretary, Mrs. Maurice Griffin, was as follows: P. E. Island Musical Festival Association, thanks for Scholarship; Sacred Heart Home per Reverend Sister Mary Rosalie, the family of the late Mrs. D. J. Riley for sympathy extended.

Mrs. Angus P. Pineau for sympathy extended, the Provincial Convener of Immigration, Mrs. W. J. P. MacMillan re the work in parishes for "New Canadians," Catholic Social Welfare Bureau per Sister Mary Eugene, expressing gratitude to the league members for their interest in helping several needy families with food and clothing at Christmas.

The family of the late Mrs. Ed. Cullen for sympathy in bereavement. His Excellency Most Rev. James Boyle, thanks for a remembrance from the league at Christmas, Rector and Faculty St. Dunstan's University re St. Dunstan's Centennial year, Red Cross Society's re annual meeting on February 12.

Mrs. John L. McGuigan for wishes expressed during illness, Prince Edward Island Chapter Polio re March of Dimes Campaign.

The following conveners gave monthly reports: citizenship, Mrs. Noonan; Social Service, Mrs.

Creamer; book review, Mrs. Holland; Girl Guides, Mrs. Art DeCoste; Publicity, Mrs. E. McTague; membership, Mrs. P. J. Nealis; program, Miss M. Dougan; finance, Mrs. Peter LeClair.

Several new members were introduced by the membership convener and heartily welcomed by the President.

A number of ladies volunteered to assist with the pantry sale and rummage sale to be held in February.

Satisfactory reports were given on the study clubs organized during the winter months, by several of the members who volunteered to start these groups.

The president urged the members to attend the annual meeting of the Red Cross Society.

Reverend Director gave an inspiring and informative address on the Bible, which was much enjoyed and appreciated.

A social hour followed and several delightful solos were rendered by Mrs. John Walsh, Sr., accompanied by Miss Dougan. Refreshments were served by the social committee, consisting of Mrs. John L. McGuigan, Mrs. Katharine Creamer, Mrs. J. B. Fleming, Mrs. Peter Holland, Miss Arnes Morgan and Mrs. Harold Nordkap.

CHAPTER X

"I hope to get away tomorrow," Gary replied as casually and coolly.

"What?" Harvey lifted his voice so that Maria jumped. "You're not going! I hired you. You've got to stick here and see me through this business. You agreed to stay."

"That was tentative, Mr. Mason. I think I'd better go. You can hire the men you need."

"I need you. You found this oil. You won't like Mexico anyway, not in summer."

"Dad, if Mr. Tallman has a job down there -" Grace was acid, and her eyes moved over Gary with slow superiority.

"A man with a job in sight had better hang on to it," stated Oliver.

Mona Lee looked at them all calmly. "Gary's not going," she announced with a serene kind of finality. "He knows we need him - if Harvey insists on going on with this business - and Gary wouldn't go and leave me when I need him. Would you, Gary?"

He was on the spot. There was nothing to do but to agree. To persist would be to show himself ungrateful - and yet, how could he stay - see her every day...?

Later, when Harvey had gone off to the canon, dragging Oliver with him, Mona Lee came upstairs and tapped on Gary's open door. "Gary," she said as he turned. "I do want you to stay! I'm worried - about Harvey - he's so impulsive and he believes everybody. You could help him a lot, and it would relieve my mind."

"I'll stay, Mrs. Mason." Gary turned from the window. "If you ask me... I can't refuse very well after all you've done for me."

"You mustn't be influenced by that, Gary. But we wouldn't let you lose anything, of course..."

"Please, Mrs. Mason! I got you into this." He smiled ruefully. "I hope you won't hate the sight of me before it's over."

"I'd never hate you, Gary. And if you hadn't found the oil, I suppose somebody would... somebody we couldn't even trust, maybe. If only Harvey would listen - take time to think things through."

"They never do. It's a fever. It works like a drug. I've seen it drive men crazy, often enough."

"We don't need any more money. We're comfortable. Too much money is bad for young people. Don't blame yourself - but I'll be glad if you'll stay - try to protect Harvey from being too foolish."

"I'll do that - as much as I can."

On Monday night Harvey peeled two twenty-dollar bills from a roll and tossed them across the table to Gary. Gary gravely handed them back. "I haven't earned this - even if I had, I owe you ten times as much." "Look here," blustered Harvey. "You quit that job in Mexico to help me out. You can't go around without money."

"I have enough. Put five dollars down on the book. That's more than I've been worth to you so far."
