Limit On Lobster Traps Is Urged At Miscouche

By CARMAN SMITH
S'side Bureau, The Guardian

Fourteen briefs were presented to the research division of the department of industry and natural resources at a meeting held in the Evangeline Regional High School at Miscouche last night.

Chairing a panel hearing the briefs was Research Director Hartwell Daley and assisting him were Eugene Gorman, deputy minister of fisheries; Stewart Wright, deputy minister of agriculture and Claude Smith, director of town planning.

Highlighting the meeting was a brief presented by the Acadian Fisheries Co-operative which made the following requests: A limit on lobster traps for each fisherman and a limit on fishing permits; better method of fishing, especially of ground fish; varied methods of processing herring; availability of more oyster seeds for leases; Irish moss processing plant established in Prince County; assistance in improvement and modernizing of present processing plant; subsidy on new boats under 45 feet comparable to larger boats.

Progress in the fishing industry in the area was "pretty well standing still." Ulric Poirier, who presented the brief, said.

Concerning the Irish moss situation, Mr. Poirier commented that there was an overproduction in 1962 and in 1963 fishermen were unable to find outlets.

In regards to the limit of lobster traps, Mr. Poirier said it seemed like a dog race to see which fishermen could have the most traps and equipment and for the first few days of the season these fishermen with a large number of traps pulled in big catches, but later the catches dwindled to nothing.

As for licenses, with no limit the opportunity presented itself for the person who wished to get in there at the start of the season and make a fast dollar. Mr. Poirier added "if 50 or 60 fishermen can make a living, why let 100 come in"?

ORGANIZATION SUGGESTED

Mr. Gorman said that this matter had been twice mentioned to the federal government and suggested that the fishermen organize into a professional fishermen's organization.

It was suggested that a processing plant or drier for Irish moss might be erected in a central area to serve the entire county.

Several of the briefs recommended that a study be made into the harvesting of cranberrey, blueberry and other fruit crops as thousands of pounds were going to waste and it was also recommended that a packaging and marketing plant be established in Wellington to serve the area.

The illegal sale of beer and intoxicating liquors, especially on weekends and on the Lord's Day, drew strong criticism and a plea was made that the attorney-general's department make a study of the liquor laws and that a revision be made to stamp out the illegal traffic in these spirits.

EGMONT BAY BRIEF

An agricultural brief presented by the Egmont Bay and Mont Carmel Exhibition stated that the main obstacles to agricultural growth in the west Prince area were lack of proper marketing legislation and high cost of farm machinery and that farmers were losing thousands of dollars each year due to the haphazard way the potato crops are marketed by the marketing board.

Concern was also shown to the lack of agricultural subjects taught in the regional schools.

It was suggested that a road sign at Simon Day's Corner depicting the French speaking area be erected and that bilingual road direction signs be erected through Wellington, Egmont Bay and Mt. Carmel.

In the same brief a suggestion was made that a French manufacturer be encouraged to come to the area, possibly an European manufacturer with, for example, a cognac bottling plant. The word "bottling" was stressed.

Construction of a home for the aged was also urged with the benefits extended for elderly single men and women.

MORE FRENCH

Other suggestions were that more French be taught in teacher training courses at Prince of Wales College, more French personnel be employed by existing travel bureaus to better inform the tourists; that small farmers be encouraged to grow vegetables to be processed by the food processing plant in Kensington.

A strong plea against the proposed CNR curtailment of services in the West Prince area was also made.

A brief by the Women's Institute of Egmont Bay asked that family allowances be continued to the age of 20 for students.

Briefs were presented by the following organizations: Acadian Fisheries Co-operative; assumption Societies of Wellington and Mount Carmel; Lacordaire Movement; Egmont Bay and Mont Carmel Exhibition; Village of Wellington; Unite Scolaire Evangeline; Wellington Co-op Association; Egmont Bay WI; St. Jacques Laymen's Association of Egmont Bay; Prince Federation of Agriculture; Catholic ladies aid and ladies' society of Abram's Village.

Springhill Mine Survivor Knows German Group's Fear

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP)—Maurice Ruddick, a coal mine hero five years ago and unemployed today, said Monday night it is "a horrible feeling" to be trapped underground.

The 31-year-old ex-coalminer said in an interview the "feeling of helplessness would be just as bad 200 feet from the surface as it was for us 13,000 from the top."

Ruddick, one of seven men found alive Nov. 1, 1958, after being given up for dead in a coal mine here, was asked to comment on the discovery of 11 men in a West German iron mine 10 days after water flooded the shaft. They were located 200 feet from the surface.

"All my joy goes out to those men and their families," the husky father of 13 said. "I certainly feel awfully close to anyone in that kind of a predicament."

EIGHT TRAPPED

Ruddick and seven other men were trapped in a small area of the 13,000-foot level of the Cumberland Railway and Coal Company's No. 2 colliery here when the mine was shaken by an upheaval Oct. 23, 1958.

Seventy - five miners were killed, including one in Ruddick's group. The seven survivors, later referred to as "miracle miners," were found eight days after the underground "bump." Ruddick was credited by his companions with keeping their spirits up by singing Hymns and telling bible stories in the darkness of the mine after their lamps burned out.

Ruddick, who worked for a few months last year as a laborer but has been on welfare payments since last November, said the "desperate feeling" of being trapped must have been as great for the West German miners as it was for his group.

"It doesn't matter how far down you are—it's really bad if you're trapped and you know you can't help yourself."

British See Canada As Tough Market

OTTAWA (CP)—Many British industrialists regard Canada as a "tough market" made more difficult by Canadian customs regulations, Sir Henry Lintott, newly - appointed United Kingdom high commissioner to Canada, said Monday.

He told a press conference that solutions to the problem can be found if it is given sufficient time and thought.

Sir Henry, former deputy undersecretary of state in the Commonwealth relations office, said that before leaving for Canada he made an extensive tour of British industry and communities outside London. He found "there is life in the old country yet."

"Having been here only a few days you won't expect me to say anything bold or dashing, but I deem it a great honor to be one of the trustees of the immense fund of friendship and goodwill that exists between our two countries and I hope to add some small mite to that endowment."

EXCHANGE SHOTS

PARIS (AP)—One man was killed and seven were wounded in a noon-hour gun battle Monday when a holdup gang snatched a bag full of money and ran into a dozen policemen staked out at their hideout. The gang and policemen shot it out for several minutes in a narrow street just off the busy Left-Bank Boulevard du Montparnasse. The dead man was the driver of the getaway car. Four policemen were among the wounded.

Mme. Nhu Informed Husband Brutally Killed By Rebels

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu was told by a top Vietnamese general Monday that her husband and her brother-in-law were "brutally killed" in the military coup that overthrew the ruling family of South Viet Nam Friday, an aide reported.

Col. William K. Eliscu of New York City, the aide, said Mme. Nhu was told by telephone from Saigon that her husband, political strongman Ngo Dinh Nhu, died of stab wounds.

South Viet Nam's new military junta had announced after the coup that her brother-in-law, President Ngo Dinh Diem, and Nhu had committed suicide.

Other sources in Saigon said the men had been killed by the insurgents.

Eliscu said he did not know the name of the general who telephoned Mme. Nhu.

The call was believed to have been the first word Mme. Nhu has received directly from South Viet Nam that the two men were dead and the victims of assassination.

POSTPONE REUNION

Mme. Nhu also postponed Monday night for 24 hours her anticipated reunion in Rome with her three younger children. She said through an aide that she wanted to talk with the children by telephone first to be assured of their arrival in Italy.

The children were expected to be assured of their arrival in Italy.

The children were expected to arrive in Rome and from South Viet Nam around noon today.

Mme. Nhu probably will leave for Rome Wednesday, her aide said. She had earlier announced that she would leave today on a polar flight to Europe.

Mme. Nhu was told in a telegram from washington that her younger children were being flown to Rome from South Viet Nam via Bangkok, Thailand.

Mme. Nhu's brother-in-law, Archbishop Ngo Dinh Thuc, has been in Rome attending the Roman Catholic ecumenical council.

Planning to accompany her to Europe are her eldest child, Le Thuy, 18, and her secretary, Nguyen Thi Tuan, 29.

Her aide said he did not know whether Mme. Nhu planned to return to the United States.

Experimental Cold Vaccine Given Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) —Development of the first experimental vaccine against one of the sizable brigade of viruses believed linked with the "runny-nose" type of common cold was reported Monday.

A U.S. government scientist said the achievement is encouraging in that it constitutes the first step in the quest for a shotgun vaccine—made up of a number of different viuses—which might be used to combat this form of cold. But Dr. Robert Huebner of the National Institute of Health cautioned that it might take years to develop such a weapon—if, indeed, it can be achieved.

Successful testing of the vaccine was done with the aid of prisoner-volunteers at a reformatory at Lorton, Va.

Surgeon - General Luther L. Terry of the U.S. Public Health service made brief reference to it in addressing the annual meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons and further details came from other sources.

Terry said the vaccine is made of killed viruses. Prisoner - volunteers vaccinated with in were protected against illness when subsequently exposed to live viruses of the same type.
