LIFE IN THE GREAT CITIES.

Wheelwomen in Paris.—London and Paris Notes.

German ladies have at length decided to adopt the bicycle, and at the same time the costume which shocked them so terribly at first. At the "Corso" just held in Berlin all the fair "wheelers" dispensed with skirts, and wore garments, in many instances, far from becoming or tasteful. The members of the Berlin Ladies' Bicycle Club appeared in Eton jackets and tight-fitting knee-breeches of dark blue cloth, white vests and small white "Cantonier" hats, which were far more becoming to the majority of wearers. The crowds of sightseers commented with extreme freedom on the appearance of the performers and when they did not approve did not hesitate to proclaim the fact. One costume made of Tussore silk, with jacket and cap matching, met with universal applause, and the wearer was cheered as she spun gayly along on a bicycle very prettily adorned with crimson roses, but a stout and elderly dame in an elaborate white gown, all frills and furbelows, was greeted with ironical laughter and comments that were needlessly unkind.

The Many Milks of Paris.

Says a Paris correspondent of The London Court Journal: Having heard that Queen Elizabeth of Roumania has gone to the Kalmuck Steppes, in Russia, in order to drink "koumiss," (mare's milk), a cure from which she has before derived much benefit, many Parisian ladies intend to follow the example of her Majesty, and will go to the steppes to drink mare's milk, this doubtless in consequence of the great admiration all France feels for all Russia. Just, however, as if they could not get all kinds of milk in France; even here unadulterated cow's milk, asses' milk, goat's milk and mare's milk are plentiful—also pig's milk can be obtained.

Midsummer in Paris.

The Paris season is dying fast. Society is packng up their boxes, the theatres shut one by one. Now the boulevards are given over to the tourists, the Americans being in full force just now, while August will bring the annual rush of cheap visitors from England. Paris, however, never looks so deserted as London, for the great bulk of the middle classes stay at home, or at most, indulge in a day's outing at the suburban resorts on the Seine.

Trees in Smoky London.

It is satisfactory, says The London Graphic, to be able to chronicle the great increase in the planting of trees in London, and to note how well they flourish in all parts. Years ago some wiseacre announced that it was no use planting trees on the Thames Embankment, because they would not grow. The extraordinary beauty and luxuriance of the trees in the quarter alluded to show how entirely wrong this authority was in his views.

FLORAL DECORATIONS.

A Unique Novelty Evolved With Flowers and Gambler's Tools.

The decoration of rooms, says The London Queen, especially where expense is no great object, is assuming astounding proportions, and the task of the artist in floral designs must be an arduous one this season. The groups of plants and flowers at certain weddings and receptions given during the past weeks were a sight to be seen, and certainly never to be forgotten. At one of the former a prominent staircase decoration consisted of a mass of orange trees, with the ripe fruit hanging in profusion, the rich, dark foliage being arranged in a frame and background of golden crotons, all the surroundings were carried out in white, and the effect was quite unique. At a crowded evening reception the centre of attraction was the exact reproduction (in flowers, of course), of the regulation "Watteau grotto," in which a rich black effect threw up the more delicate colorings with a very happy result.

The plan of taking an empty house for balls is rapidly gaining ground. It is decidedly a saving of one's household goods and obviates much worry and discomfort. This has probably made a display of flowers even more imperative than it is in one's own home, as the windows and doors need hiding, hence some truly magnificent designs, which, by the way, can all be seen by intending purchasers. The sketches are realistic, and quite convey the idea of the decorations when fully carried out. Among the most fascinating should be mentioned "The Cascade," a wonderful effect for a fireplace and overmantel; some ingenious and handsome arrangements for corners, and a couple of beautiful designs for windows. The first is most artistic and fresh, the clever and delicate arrangement of flowers falling from the top of the overmantel right down to the floor is contrived in such a perfect way and with such suitable blossoms that at a distance, and thanks to the reflection of the mirror at the back, the movement and bubbling of water are very easily imagined; in fact, quite without the effort of the imagination so frequently necessary in poor representatives of such effects. Designs a la Louis XVI. are also much in vogue this year.

A quite novel and most original idea is called "The Gambler's Floral Overmantel," and is easier imagined than described; that playing cards, champagne bottles, and wine glasses should ever combine to form anything specially striking or suggestive of grace, certainly seems next to impossible, and yet such is absolutely the case. They are arranged with so much cleverness that they seem to be indispensable to the tout ensemble, and the rest of the decoration carried out in beautiful plants, dark foliage, grapes and many kinds of flowers not often used for floral ornamentations is worth seeing, and deserves special praise for originality. Never have flowers been more lavishly or more generally worn than they are now—morning, noon and night, in the park, at the races, at the theatre, flowers, buttonholes, sprays, are everywhere to be seen, and judging from the appearance of the male portion of tout Londres, are indispensable to the wearer if he aspires to being "correct."

MR. DEMOREST.

All classes of temperance workers in the world sincerely mourn the recent death of one of their leaders, W. Jennings Demorset, of New York city. His name is a household word. Thousands of our brighest youths have engaged in contests for the various grades of medals he so generously gave them. These youthful but dead in earnest prohobitroy orators have appealed to audiences aggregrating millions of citizens.

Mr. Demorsest was welcome and the centre of attraction when present at contests for the higher grade of medals. His last visit was at the Diamond Medal Contest for all new England held at the Northeast Chautauqua Sunday School Assembly, Mass, July 13, 1894. No one present on that occasion will soon forget the great interest he manifested in the representatives of the various states as they so earnestly expressed his sentiments in their splendid and almost pathetic appeals to the large audience to 'lend a hand' in this great work. With voice broken with deep emotion, he presented the diamond medal to the successful contestant in "the best contest he had ever attended."

He has gone from us; his work is done; but oh, what a grand record he has left in trying "to make the world better" through this one agency alone.

Over forty-two thousand medals awarded over two hundred and fifty thousand of the flower of the youth of the youth of the world engaged in this grand reform, and they in turn appealing to audiences of over fifteen million people of the best class of citizens. Who can estimate the influence of this grand feature of temperance work.

I am confident no person in the world has ever reached so many young people, individual hearts, lives and homes, or helped so many to decide once for all their position of "right against wrong," as W. Jennings Demorest by these same medal contests, and eternity alone will reveal his good work.

All nationalities have been included in his benefaction no one excluded on account of creed, sect, sex, or color; his work and ambition was to lend a hand to the weak and oppresed, and lift up humanity nearer to God.

His hand was outstretched, his purse open and his heart overflowing with love to all the oppressed of all nations from the drink curse.

His work accomplished is the best monument he possibly can have. It will stand longer than a shaft of marble, for "though dead he yet speaketh."

Oh! young men and women of the whole world, when the question comes "is the good work to cease?" reply in a voice that everybody may hear "I am but one and cannot do everything, but I can do something, what I can do, I ought, and what I ought to do, with the help of God, I will do—for prohibition."

HEART-BEATS.

The Reason Why the Heart Flutters, Palpitates, and is Oppressed, and How to Relieve it.

The heart has a hard old time of it and within itself does not excite much disease, but it is very often called upon to display the troubling symptoms of palpitation, fluttering, labored breathing, oppression, etc., on account of diseased Kidneys offering increased resistance to the passage of the blood through their defective secretive structures, causing a morbid change in the blood unsuited to nourish the tissues and noxious to them. The minute arteries resist the passage of this foul blood, resulting in the muscular walls of the arteries and the ventricle of the heart becoming partially paralyzed, and from this cause results much of the so-called heart disease, which is owing to wasting Kidneys not being able to perform their functions. In order to relieve heart trouble remove the cause in the Kidneys with Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They relieve the blood of poisonous deposits, it goes on its way a stream of health, relieving the heart and imparting strength to every tissue of the body. When your heart is in trouble Chase's Pills quickly remove the causing condition, no matter whether it exists on account of disorder of the kidneys, liver, stomach, or of nervous affection. THE TIDE TURNS.

Great Improvement in the Health of a Well-known Peterboro' Lady.

Peterboro, Aug. 5.—General satisfaction is expressed here at the greatly improved condition of health of Mrs. K. Stephens, the well-known music teacher of this town. Her friends have been much exercised over her condition for a long time, and a number of remedies have been tried during the ten years that she has been a martyr to a complication of complaints, which recently became very severe. She suffered frightfully with pains in the back, nervous prostration and swelling of the limbs. She has been taking the new remedy for kidney troubles, Dodd's Kidney Pills, and has already experienced the most beneficial results.
