Aircraft Gamble Pays Off

MONTREAL (CP) — Sometimes a multi - million dollar gamble pays off and when it does, the dividends are large.
Canadian Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Co., recently re-named United Aircraft of Canada, sank $20,000,000 over a four-year period into research and development of a gas turbine engine for helicopters, fixed-wing airplanes and boats.
"And it was a gamble," said UAC President Thor E. Stephenson in an interview. "You have to spend a lot of money before your market is assured and people won't buy until the engine is almost ready to go into production.
"We went into the development of the PT6 (Pratt Turbine, model six) with the knowledge that there wasn't this kind of power plant available," he said.
The 500 to 700 horsepower engine is compact, powerful jet. It is described by the company as the first Canadian built and designed turbine to be certified by the United States government.

MUST BE SAFE

Mr. Stephenson said any piece of aeronautical equipment offered for sale in the U.S. must be certified under a series of government rules and specifications to make sure it is safe for flight.
Orders for the PT6 to date have been more than encouraging. Beech Aircraft Corp. is purchasing engines for 200 business aircraft. Indirect sparses. this order could reach 500 engines, about $12,000,000 worth.
The company says that if de Havilland of Canada follows present plans to re-equip its 1,500 Beaver aircraft with the PT6, the order could run into the millions.
The greatest triumph for UAC came when the French aircraft firm Henri Potez decided to use the PT6 in its four-engined 840 plane. The 840 had been using the Astazou engine—built in France's Turbomeca factory—for two years.
"We are in direct competition with the Turbomeca Astazou," said Mr. Stephenson. "There are some engines similar to ours under development in the United States, but they're not certified yet. We're about two years ahead of them."

TESTING ON LAUNCH

The U.S. Navy has also taken a liking to the PT6 and is testing it on a Norwegian-built patrol launch at Elizabeth City, N.C.

IN MEMORIAM

MacLURE — In loving memory of our mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. William J. MacLure who passed away, mother, on January 3, 1951, father, September 17, 1938.
Death ends the living, not the dead,
They sweetly sleep whose tasks are done;
But we are weaker than before
Who still must live and labor on.
For when come care and grief to us,
And heavy burdens bring us woe,
We miss the helpful, loving ones
On whom we leaned long years ago.
Ever remembered by their son, Laurie and family — daughter Janie and family.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my sincere thanks to Dr. Green, nurses and staff of the Prince Edward Island Hospital for their kindness to me while I was a patient there; also to all my kind friends who visited me and sent cards, treats. To all a sincere thank you.
Mrs. Evelyn Crossman,
Central Bedeque.

Third Pulp Mill In Nfld. Would Provide 9,000 Jobs

By DAVE BUTLER

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph R. Smallwood's Christmas Eve announcement that "I think we've got a third pulp mill" was his cautious way of telling Newfoundlanders that his — and their—eight-year-old dream has nearly come true.
Mr. Smallwood said only his government's decision whether to guarantee a bond issue for the Newfoundland Pulp and Chemical Company Limited stood in the way of the project which would employ 9,000 men in all its operations.
Several times since 1958 Mr. Smallwood thought he was close to having the third mill established. Several times the plans failed to come to fulfillment.
A study was made in 1958 by Crown Zellerback Canada Limited to determine if the plan was economically feasible. The firm decided it wasn't, reporting Labrador wood would be needed to supplement local Crown timber.
In 1962 Mr. Smallwood said negotiations were under way with a number of industrial firms, and if the deal did not come off, "you will never be able to blame me for failure to try."
The same year, Newfoundland pulp announced the mill would be built at Come-By-Chance, on the isthmus of Avalon that joins the Avalon Peninsula with the main part of Newfoundland. The firm also predicted $52,000,000 costs and 300 tons of pulp a day.

'GREAT•EST THING'

Come - By - Chance residents figured "it would be the greatest thing that ever happened but we've been through this all before."
Early this year the price of the mill was pared to $45,000,000 and production was increased to 500 tons a day. Mr. Smallwood said he would be "very surprised and disappointed" if the mill didn't start this year.
Even a market for the pulp—the Curtis Publishing Company—had been found, but before the deal could be closed, the United States Supreme Court handed down a $3,000,000 judgment against Curtis in connection with a story about football coaches published by the Saturday Evening Post.
Mr. Smallwood, not mention ing names, told the Newfoundland Legislature the contracts had been ready to sign when the court decision was handed down. They were never signed.
In his Christmas statement and a later, more detailed statement, Mr. Smallwood said his government had commissioned a New York firm to make a careful study of the whole operation.
He said this final report would be the basis on which the government would make its decision whether to guarantee Newfoundland Pulp's bond issue.

YEAR TO READY SITE

If the bond is guaranteed, construction would be started late this winter employing 400 men for $600,000 in wages in 1964. It would take a year to prepare the site.
More would be employed in 1965, increasing to about 9,000 in all phases of operations when the plant is finished. In Labrador, 3,000 men would be employed cutting pulpwood, and another 2,000 would cut local Crown lands. About 2,000 more would work in the mill and about 1,000 would be employed in transportation and trucking operations.
The mill would be built with the backing of eight companies within the European Common Market, and in return would receive all the pulp wood cut in Labrador as well as purchasing all the pulp the mill produces.
