

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

MAY 14, 1894.

SOUTHPORT FERRY.

The zeal of the Government for the interests of residents of the country south of the Hillsborough is exhibited in the removal of the electric lights which have illuminated Prince Street Wharf, and the substitution for them of oil lamps. This movement is characteristic of men who love darkness rather than light. It is suggested that personal motives have something to do with the change. Is it possible that, in the eyes of the Government, it is more important that a certain coal merchant should be left in the dark than that the public using the ferry wharf should have light? However this may be, complaint concerning the present management of the ferry is rife. We are informed that a time-table has not yet been issued; that the ferryman practically begins and stops crossing when he chooses, and that it is impossible for persons residing South of the Hillsborough to make connection with the morning trains from Charlottetown. Surely the Premier will, for the sake of his own constituents if not for the sake of the people at large, interfere and cause the ferry to be satisfactorily managed.

CORRUPT PRACTICES AT ELECTIONS.

There are two bills now before the House of Commons for the punishment of corrupt practices at elections. One of these reads as follows:— "Every employer of labor, or manager or officer of a company employing labor, who directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, makes use of any threat of loss of employment or reduction of wages or of other loss or injury to an employee, to prevent such employee from leaving his employment during voting on the day of holding any election of a member to serve in the House of Commons, for at least two working hours for the purpose of voting, shall be deemed to have committed the offence of undue influence, and is guilty of an indictable offence and shall forfeit the sum of two hundred dollars to any person who sues therefor."

The other is Dr. Welton's bill to disfranchise voters who have taken bribes. The latter sets forth that every voter shall be held to have taken a bribe who, "either directly or indirectly, or by any other person on his behalf, receives, agrees or contracts, or any money, gift, loan or valuable consideration, for voting or agreeing to vote, or for refraining or agreeing to refrain from voting at any election, or who, after any election, directly or indirectly, himself or by any other person on his behalf, receives any money or valuable consideration for having voted or refrained from voting."

Any elector found guilty of this offence shall be incapable of voting at any election of a member of the House of Commons held during the seven years next after the report has been received by the Secretary of State, and no such voters shall be placed on the list of voters."

Some of the details of the latter bill have been criticised, and may well be amended. But it seems fair that, when a bribe is subject to punishment, the receiver of a bribe should also be subject to punishment. It is to be hoped that an effective law to put down both intimidation and bribery will be enacted.

READING DAIRYMEN.

MR. DILLON, Superintendent of these factories here, said in the course of an address recently delivered:— "Dairymen should be readers. It is a work that is calculated to stimulate rather than retard a growth of intellect, and foster a love for learning. In order to acquire knowledge study is requisite; hence it might be readily inferred that dairymen should be students—not student readers of dairy literature—but students. That they should at least devote some time to the study of growing the different kinds of grasses, feeding and breeding of cattle. This would prepare them for the reading of works of science that are calculated to reveal the hidden truths of nature and lead the mind up through nature into communion with the Great First Cause—the God that dwelleth in secret and yet is not far from him that searcheth after Him."

It is a lamentable fact that multitudes of our dairymen are not readers. If they ever had any for learning, it is now dead, or it lies as dormant as the latent heat in a bar of iron, and requires quite as hard blows to incite it to action."

"We find dairymen, or at least owners of cows, everywhere, treating their animals with the most extreme cruelty. Animals that are called upon to perform all the fatigues of motherhood are fattened in the most cruel manner with stanchions in stables that are often cold, or damp, or dark, without bedding, half fed, turned out in the cold and expected to get what water they need through a hole cut in the ice. Ask them to subscribe to a dairy paper, or buy a book, and they show no interest whatever. It is true they will tell you they are supplied, have even more than they can possibly find time to read, but converse with them on topics of interest to the intelligent dairymen, and you will soon discover what they read is not calculated to improve them as dairymen. It does not mean to insinuate that there are no reading dairymen far from it. There are not a few who are students, indeed. They are often found among the most busy of men, but, in order to keep up with the intelligence and progress of the age, they find time to read a dairy paper, and, therefore, know something of what is transpiring in the dairy world at home and abroad."

"Yet it would be difficult to point out a human industry of one half the magnitude which the manufacture and sale of such a better has reached, carried on in such a careless manner."

"Some of us may suppose that we know nearly everything that is worth knowing, but let me tell you that, in such a world of knowledge as we are apt to suppose. Most of what we know we have learned from those with whom we have associated, or from reading, unconsciously, perhaps, but true, nevertheless. What brought about co-operative dairying? Was it an original idea of a master mind?"

No, necessarily was the cause. (See report of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association, 1891, p. 22.) The history of the kind reads itself ultimately into the history of a few individuals. Grand movements have been wrought by the multitude always through the individual. What would be the history of France without her Richelieu and Napoleons; of England without her Wellington and Bismarck; of the United States without their Washington and Lincoln, and Canada without her Wolfe and Montcalm?

With the opportunities we have at the present day of reading and learning from the experience of others, it would be a very short-sighted individual policy to attempt to learn altogether by experience and hearsay. Life is too short.

Every farmer in the Dominion can get the reports of the Dominion Commissioner, of the Experimental Farm, and the bulletins that are issued from time to time by asking for them.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Americans are a smart people; yet, the monument to the memory of George Washington, which was unveiled at Frederickburg, Va., on Thursday last, was begun six years ago.

Halt! Herald! The grip papers are making a great racket because Joseph Pope received an allowance of $10 a day for living expenses while engaged in the work of the Behring Sea arbitration at Paris. The ordinary commercial traveller is allowed at least five or six dollars a day. When Mr. W. S. Fielding in 1891 and 1892 made two trips to London he not only received his usual salary but he charged $3,200 extra for living expenses or about $25 a day, but the grip papers in Nova Scotia made no outcry against this expenditure. We venture to say that neither Mr. Pope nor Mr. Fielding brought home a very large surplus from their European trips.

Boston is soon to have a home school for truant and troublesome boys. They are to be gathered into families of about twenty-five, under the care of a superintendent and his wife. A teacher of rare gifts of mind and heart is to be assigned to each group, and under his direction, three hours a day is to be devoted to study. The boys are to do all the household work and to cultivate the estate thirty acres where the home is to be placed. They are also to devote four hours a day to training for occupations to be had in the city. The instruction on Sunday morning is to be moral and religious, and in the afternoon it is to be denominational.

The land of the Royal Berks Regiment discovered sweet music during the afternoon, and the ladies of the convent furnished the organ for the occasion. Admiral Sir John Hopkins and almost all of the naval officers were present, as was Governor Lyons and his wife, the Bishop of Newfoundland and the Archbishop and almost all of the Anglican clergy, the Rev. Wm. Dobson, Rev. Dr. Burroughs and other ministers, as well as the elite of the island, and there was such a delightful time that the Royal Gazette trusts "many more such happy reunions may be in store for us all."

P. E. ISLAND AFFAIRS AT OTTAWA.

(St. John Sun, May 12.)

Senator Ferguson, of Prince Edward Island, who is now on a short visit home, has given notice of a number of enquiries which he proposes to make of the Government on his return to Ottawa. He desires to know whether the Government proposes during the coming summer to complete the borings under the Straits of Northumberland, which were commenced in 1892. He has also asked for copies of correspondence between the Government of Canada and that of Prince Edward Island in reference to the financial claims of the Province of Prince Edward Island against the Dominion in reference to public works and steam communication. Senator Ferguson also requires information as to the days on which the Stairs crossed from the Island to the mainland during the past winter, and as to her point of departure on each trip, also the days on which the Government ice-boats crossed from Traverse to Tormentine. Senator Ferguson is evidently collecting detailed information in order to press home to the Government the disadvantages under which his Province labors, and the claims of the Island for better consideration. There is probably no Prince Edward Islander who is better qualified to deal with these matters than Senator Ferguson, but the best statement of the case for the Island Province ever made in the House of Commons was that presented by Mr. McLean, one of the members for King's County, who addressed the house on the subject in the evening of 1891. Any one who desires a thorough understanding of the situation up to that time from the Prince Edward Island point of view cannot do better than get Hansard and read Mr. McLean's speech. Senator Ferguson will probably, when his opportunity comes, bring the discussion up to later circumstances, and he is in a position to throw upon the matter the light obtained from a long official connection with affairs in Prince Edward Island.

AN OLD MURDER MYSTERY.

Arrest of a Wealthy California Ranchman for a Crime Committed Nearly Thirty Years Ago.

News just received at San Francisco from Yreka, shows that a murder mystery has been cleared up after nearly thirty years, and that a wealthy and prominent ranchman named George Decker has been arrested for killing his wife and baby. The facts are as strange as romance. Twenty-seven years ago Decker arrived in Yreka with his pretty wife and two children. He had some money, but it was soon noticed that he grossly neglected his wife, and that he seemed scheming to involve her with other men, whom he invited to his rooms. Decker had married after a child had been born to him he continued his conduct, and also paid much attention to a rich widow of the place. One day Mrs. Decker announced that she was going to Shasta with her husband. The whole family departed, but the next day Decker returned with his two children, saying that he had sent his wife to Shasta by the stage with her baby.

Mining excitement was running high then, and Mrs. Decker was soon forgotten. No one ever saw her again, but Decker soon afterward secured a divorce, alleging that his wife had eloped and married the widow. She soon died, and her money furnished the basis of Decker's present large fortune. He has lived for years on a fine ranch, but his friends say that he cannot endure to be left alone, especially at night and that he often is unable to sleep, rising and reading through the night. Last week a sheep herder, who climbed a high mountain and found the skeleton of a woman and child. The lady was, evidently, extremely young, as the jaw-bone was good, but the skull had been fractured, evidently by a heavy blow on the back of the head. When the skeletons were brought here, by the sheriff they were identified by those who had known the Decker family. The child, who was much proof was gathered that the sheriff arrested Decker, and now has him in jail. The district attorney says the claim of circumstantial evidence against Decker is complete. The feeling against him is strong.

The best farmers will have them, and the best freighters of the city cannot do without them. The size of the horse of the future will fix its value. The boom is up for big ones, so don't neglect to breed them, and afterward to feed them."

Talmage was in the church shaking hands with friends at the time. The fire was discovered back of the organ. It was probably caused by the electric light wire. Talmage and his friends were driven out of the church by the flames bursting from the organ loft. The flames spread with rapidity, and the sparks flew in all directions. The greatest excitement prevailed. Loss $400,000. It was insured. The Hotel Regan, near by, caught fire and was damaged to the extent of $50,000.

THE NO. 4 YOST.

In presenting to the public our No. 4 Machine, we feel that we have combined all the latest and best improvements of the most successful inventors and experienced mechanics.

The Carriage of this Machine contains many practical improvements, the usefulness of which will at once be apparent. Among those specially worthy of mention are the following:—

1. The new and improved Release Key, whereby the carriage can be released as it is raised, as when lowered, and can be positively stopped at a given point without the allowance of a single space for momentum. This instantaneous stopping will undoubtedly be much appreciated by rapid operators.

2. A new arrangement for making Single, Double and Triple spaces.

3. A new and improved Paper Feed, which is admirably adapted for its simplicity and the impossibility of getting out of adjustment. A line can be written clear to the bottom of the paper.

4. Still another feature is the new Space Key, which has a Perpendicular Drop, the same as the rest of the keys.

5. Besides the improvements, this Machine and aims all the good points of our No. 1 and No. 2 Machines.

The speed of the Yost can be limited only by the ability of the operator to find and properly strike the keys. This we guarantee.

In other words, its mechanism is contrived to respond instantly to the touch of the operator by the adoption of certain expedients, by the use of which—

1st. The touch is soft and even, and the depression slight.

2nd. The carriage feeds immediately after the type leaves the paper.

3rd. The escapement is so arranged as to be perfect and uniform.

4th. There is no ribbon movement to require attention or consume power.

5th. The arrangement of the keyboard conforms to great speed.

6th. Rapidity does not affect the alignment.

The Yost is by far the cheapest Writing Machine, because it is the most economical in respect to Inkings, Supplies, Repairs, Durability, Ease of Learning, Ease of Action, Size, Weight, Beauty of Work, Speed, etc.
